Court Order To End Strike Is Ignored By Miners

Lewis Expected To Contest Action As Government Awaits His Move

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Neither John L. Lewis nor any of his striking coal miners gave any sign yesterday of obeying a court order to get the mines back in production.

The court order, signed Saturday night by Federal Justice Matthew F. McGuire, was served on the union president yesterday morning. Lewis is expected to contest it—perhaps ask that it be withdrawn—but he has not yet made any court move to this effect. His lawyers awere studying it yesterday.

Meantime, the order was also served on a large number of coal mine operators. They, too, were named as defendants in the order, and were told to bargain with Lewis on the issues of the dispute. They relate to the setting up of a pension fund for retirement-age miners.

No Immediate Action

The order told Lewis and other union officials to cease permitting or encouraging the strike, and to direct the men to return to their jobs. Lewis' failure to comply at once will not, it appeared last night, provoke immediate counter-steps from the Justice Department.

Instead, the department will probably give Lewis a "reasonable" time—possibly two or three days—to heed the court instructions. If he does not, however, the department will ask that he be fined or jailed for contempt of court.

The strike, now 22 days old, has already had serious affects on industrial production and threatens to have much worse ones. Some of the repercussions:

1. Unemployment. Almost 100,000 persons, besides the 400,000 strikers themselves, have been made idle. Some are in the steel industry, most are on coal-carrying railroads. At Baltimore the Baltimore & Ohio line announced a layoff of 8500 workers as of today.

Steel Operations Curtailed

2. Steel. More and more steel companies are curtailing operations. Production, which averaged about 93 per cent of capacity for the first three months of the year, was about 87 per cent last week. Assistant Commerce Secretary David K. Bruce forecast to a congressional committee yesterday that it would drop to 75 per cent this week. The American Iron and Steel Institute, less pessimistic, forecast 84.4 per cent.

3. Utilities. A possible brownout was hinted for parts of Virginia. J. G. Holtzclaw, president of the Virginia Electric & Power Co., said curtailment of electric power may be necessary unless the strike ends within "the next few days."

Home for Aged A Fire Hazard, Its Officials Say

The District Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains was described as "every inch a fire hazard" yesterday as two Congressmen paid it a visit.

The Congressmen also were told (1) The home lacks money to supply the inmates with adequate diet, and (2) the home's budget is so low medical supplies are available only for those acutely ill.

Visiting the home were Representative A. I. Miller (R., Nebr.) and Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.), chairman and members, respectively, of the House District Subcommittee on Health, Welfare and Education. Conditions at the home were described by Otto J. Cass, superintendent, and Dr. John J. Calarco, staff physician.

15,000 to Take Part in Today's Army Parade

Truman to Review Marchers; Return of Flag to Be Highlight

An elaborate parade of 15,000, the reactivation of the Third Infantry Regiment and the return of the "Flag of Liberation" to Congress are scheduled as the highlights of the local observance of Army Day today.

President Truman, Cabinet members and other officials, and members of the Diplomatic Corps will review the parade of military and civilian units from a stand at Constitution ave. and 17th st. nw., beginning at 2:45 p. m. The parade will start at the Capitol Plaza at 2:15 o'clock.

All Army installations will have "open house" during the day, and special activities and displays have been announced for various units in the area.

Royall Banquet Speaker

Final event will be the annual banquet of the Military Order of the World Wars, sponsors of Army Day activities, at 7:30 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel, with Secretary of the Army Royall as the main speaker.

The Third Infantry, whose first rosters in 1815 included the names of Valley Forge veterans, will comprise the 703d Military Police Battalion and the Ceremonial Detachment of Fort Myer, Va., and the 712th M.P. Battalion of Fort Lesley J. McNair, after today's reactivation ceremonies at 12:15 p. m. at the East Plaza before the Capitol Building. The units will become, respectively, the First Battalion, the Ceremonial Company, and the Second Battalion, of the Third Infantry.

Col. Jesse Matlack, Fort Myer post commander, will command the Third Infantry.

Flag Ceremony at 1 p. m.

At 1 p. m. in the same plaza, Congress will receive the "Flag of Liberation," which flew over the Capitol when World War II was declared, and which was later raised in victory over Rome, Berlin and Tokyo. Senate President Pro Tem Arthur Vandenberg and House Speaker Joseph W. Martin will receive the flag in a ceremony from six Army veterans of the war.

The line of march of the parade, headed by Grand Marshal Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commander of the Washington Military District, will leave the east plaza at 2:15 p. m., proceed north to Constitution ave. and turn west. It is scheduled to reach the stand at Constitution ave. and 17th st. nw., at 2:45 p. m., and will take an estimated hour and a quarter to file by.

The parade will be sparked by 20 bands, including the Marine,

Regrets on Air Crash

Britain, U. S. Cancel Orders to Escort Planes as Latest Crisis Is Eased

Berlin, (Tuesday) April 6 (AP).—Russia expressed official regrets early today that a Russian fighter rammed a British transport plane over Berlin, killing 15 persons, and assured the British it was not intentional.

Britain and the United States immediately canceled plans to convoy all their air transports in and out of Berlin under the guard of fighter planes.

The crash in the air occurred yesterday near Britain's Gatow airport in Berlin. Fourteen persons aboard the British plane, including two Americans, were killed. The Soviet pilot also died.

Sokolovsky Expresses Regrets

Soviet Marshall Vassily Sokolovsky expressed his regrets to the British commander in Germany, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson. He said the Russians had no intention of interfering with British aircraft using the international corridor into Berlin.

After a two-hour talk with Sokolovsky, Robertson canceled his orders for fighter plane escorts for transports. The American commander, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, rescinded similar orders which would have become effective today.

The Russian answer to the British protest turned aside a new crisis between the Russians and the western powers in Germany.

After the crash yesterday, an official British spokesman blamed a "frolicking" Soviet Yak fighter flying illegally over the British airport for the disaster. He added that Russian fighters had buzzed British transports before.

Conference Eases Tension

Robertson made it clear an investigation into yesterday's crash must be held. While an investigation may fix the blame for the collision, it was believed unlikely it would add to the new tension in this conflict-wracked capital, which eased considerably following the Robertson-Sokolovsky conference.

The British general gave full report of the talk to British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin by telephone.

A British spokesman said "Sokolovsky regretted as much as General Robertson the catastrophe which caused the death of the victims."

Truman, Guards View German Art, All Unheralded

That all-time record figure of 62,983 visitors to the German-owned art exhibition at the National Gallery on Sunday should be revised upward—uncounted were President Truman and his Secret Service bodyguards.

It was learned only yesterday that in the Chief Executive's favored unscheduled manner, he turned up at the gallery about 11 a. m. to startle the guards there on routine duty, waiting for the Sunday opening hour of 2 p. m.

When they quelled their gasps of astonishment, one guard volunteered to conduct the President on a brief viewing of some of the German-owned masterpieces which have drawn 418,401 spectators since March 7.

Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) last week introduced a bill to keep the art works here long enough to insure their safety when returned to Germany and send them on a tour of this country. The gallery is open daily from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. Sundays.

Cites Grilling by Adults

Psychiatrist Surprised More Children Don't 'Blow Tops'

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—A child psychiatrist said today it was a constant source of wonderment to him that more 5 or 6 year olds didn't blow their tops.

If you think Junior can get pretty exasperating himself, think of the effect your adult counterpart probably has on Junior.

"What's your name?" asks an inquisitive but otherwise well-meaning stranger. "How old are you? Do you go to school? Are you a good little boy?"

This sort of thing daily besets any child who goes afield from the family hearth, said Dr. Leo Kanner of Johns Hopkins University. He and a Johns Hopkins associate, Dr. Paul Lemkau, took over the lecture platform on the first day of a 10-day neuropsychiatric seminar at the Richmond Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Kanner, a clinician of wide experience in child behavior problems, has a high opinion of the mentality of the so-called problem child that an anxious parent brings in for treatment.

"Don't forget that on this first interview the patient is examining you just as much as you are examining him," he told physicians from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, North and South Carolina and the District of Columbia.

"More than that, he's putting you through a series of tests and if you flunk them, it's just too bad."

Falling in love is increasingly shown to be a matter of propinquity rather than matches made in Heaven, Dr. Lemkau said, and you're more apt to marry the boy or girl in the same block or the same college than you are to be swept up in some superior romance from beyond your social or economic horizon. There are enough exceptions, though, to keep the speculation interesting.

A goodly share of parents' complaints to teachers have their basis in jealousy—because another adult is vieing for the child's affection, Dr. Lemkau asserted.

British Agree To Talk Over Berlin Curbs

Accept Red Offer And Suggest Full Four-Power Parley

Berlin, April 5 (AP).—British authorities accepted today a Soviet offer to talk over the Allied deadlock over Russian restrictions on railroad traffic to and from Berlin. They suggested a full four-power meeting

The United States previously had accepted the Russian proposal for discussion of these restrictions.

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, British chief of staff, is scheduled to fly into Berlin for meetings tomorrow with the military commanders of all four occupying powers. His plane may be escorted.

The present difficulty over transportation began March 31 when the Russians sought to inspect military trains of the western powers. The western powers refused.

The Soviet move was interpreted by the west as the first step of a campaign to force Britain, the United States and France from Berlin.

Regularly scheduled passenger trains still were suspended today, but freight trains of the western powers were getting through to Berlin The Americans brought in a 52-car military freight train. It passed through Soviet territory on presentation of cargo manifest documents and without on-train inspection such as the Russians had demanded.

8 Acres of Farmland Falls Into 60-Ft. Hole

Greensboro, Fla., April 5 (AP).—Farmer D. W. Pitts lost 8 acres of land last week.

Looking over his farm today he found the section had fallen into a hole 60 feet deep. Neighbors recalled hearing a loud noise Thursday, but Pitts hadn't got around to investigate because of continuous heavy rains.

State Geologist Robert N. Vernon said the collapse probably resulted from water eating out underlying limestone formations.

Count Buying Coal for France Divorced as Torch-Carrier

The count was buying coal to keep France warm, but he also found time to kindle a hot little blaze of his own, Mrs. Genevieve de Sugny complained in District Court yesterday. So she was awarded a divorce decree from Count de Sugny.

The count also is known as Joseph Leopold Jean Marie Ramey and Jean de Sugny. He is a high ranking official with the Association Technique Internationale Carboniere, the French coal purchasing commission at 1605 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Mrs. de Sugny, a chic blonde of 27, said the passion bonfire which her hubby started was shared by Mrs. Jeanne Bach Walker, a 26-year-old brunette who is also employed by the French coal purchasing commission.

She testified that prior to November 11, 1947, the count frequently returned to their manse at 2724 Chesapeake st. nw., late at night and charged with firewater. He wouldn't say where he had been, she added.

But on November 11 (Armistice Day, appropriately enough), the count promised to stop burning the torch with Mrs. Walker, Mrs. de Sugny told the court.

The pledge, she said, was briefer than a French bathing suit. Three days later, she continued, the count brought Mrs. Walker to their home and announced she would be the next Mrs. de Sugny.

Mrs. de Sugny then hired the talents of a private detective, one Perry Bonner. The detective testified yesterday that on several occasions he tailed the count to Mrs. Walker's apartment at 2322 40th pl. nw.

Bonner said Mrs. de Sugny accompanied him to the apartment the night of December 6, 1947. He said they were admitted by Mrs. Walker. Mrs. Walker, the private eye recalled, was wearing a turkish towel robe.

"When she walked you could tell she didn't have anything on beneath the robe," Bonner replied.

Mrs. de Sugny said on this occasion she made a bee line for the bedroom. The count, she said, was in bed.

Questioned by T. Emmett McKenzie, the count's attorney, Mrs. de Sugny admitted that after her visit to Mrs. Walker's apartment she went to their bank and withdrew about $5000 from their joint bank account. She said she also removed their valuables from a safety deposit box, later returning to the count "what belonged to him."

In awarding Mrs. de Sugny an absolute decree, Justice Alexander Holtzoff also ordered the count to pay $250 a month for the support of his three children, France, 6; Antoine, 3, and Nichole, 9 months.

The count and Mrs. de Sugny were married in France 10 years ago. Her attorney was John J. Carmody.

Hoffman Seen Choice To Direct Aid

Studebaker Head Reported Selected By President For $20,000 Post

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman has chosen Paul G. Hoffman of the Studebaker Corp. to be the $20,000-a-year director of the foreign aid program it was reliably reported last night.

Hoffman is a close friend of Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. He is now on his way back from Japan where he made a survey for the Department of the Army.

The foreign assistance program, aimed at helping free Europe and Asia to withstand Communist expansion, is to be put into effect quickly.

Mr. Truman late yesterday ordered the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make $1,105,000,000 immediately available to the Executive Office of the President so as to permit "a prompt initiation" of the program.

The letter to the RFC, which was signed at 5:30 p.m., said the money would be used as follows:

One billion dollars for the European Recovery Program proper.

Five million dollars for Trieste.

Mr. Truman at the same time authorized Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett to negotiate "temporary letters" of agreement between this country and the 16 participating countries of Europe. These letters would cover assistance that will be made available in the period prior to the negotiation of country-by-country agreements under the Foreign Assistance Act.

Hoffman, reported in Administration circles as the President's choice to direct the program, is 56 years old and is president of the Studebaker Corp. He makes his home in South Bend, Ind.

As chairman of the Committee for Economic Development, Hoffman has gained the reputation of being a "progressive-minded" business man. He does not list his political affiliations in "Who's Who," but he is believed to be a Republican.

Hoffman already has had a hand in the Marshall Plan to the extent of having served on the Harriman committee. This committee made a survey of United States resources last year to determine what this country could "safely and wisely" do for Europe.

Clayton Was First Choice

Will Clayton, former Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, was the Administration's No. 1 choice for the director's post. A report to this effect two weeks ago was not well received on Capitol Hill. The chief reason for Clayton's retirement from the State Department, it was understood, was Mrs. Clayton's warning that he was working himself to death.

President Truman, according to a well-posted source, attached so much importance to the director's post that he thought of having W. Averell Harriman resign as Secretary of Commerce to take it over. Harriman is believed to have backed Hoffman for the job.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said yesterday that the appointment of a director may

Wisconsin Primary Today Is Major Test On GOP Nomination

MacArthur Seen Finishing on Top With Slim Chance For 3d-Place Man

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Milwaukee, Wis., April 5. More than half a million voters will go to the polls Tuesday to pick Wisconsin's top man on the GOP totem pole but most interest centered on who will run second or third.

In fact, at least two of the three contending Republican presidential camps are already counting out the low man in this race from any real chance at the GOP nomination.

"I don't think anyone can survive running third here," Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) leading supporter of Harold E. Stassen, told reporters here today.

Insists Dewey Will Trail

McCarthy said that went for Stassen as well as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, but he continued to predict Stassen will run first and Dewey will trail.

Unless the tremendous MacArthur buildup in this State is badly punctured, surface indications are that the General will run first and one of the other two is going to get badly hurt.

The MacArthur camp, a curiously mixed aggregation of former America Firsters, old La Follette Progressives and conservative Republicans, claims MacArthur will receive 16 to 20 of the 27 delegates, if not a sweep.

How far MacArthur could get in a national convention, even with a Wisconsin send-off, was to say the least, a matter of doubt, but even the general's stanchest supporters say a flop here would stop him short nationally.

Issues "Understatement"

Lansing Hoyt, national chairman of the MacArthur for President clubs, authorized this understatement:

"If MacArthur does not get a majority of Wisconsin delegates, I feel it is very unlikely he would win the nomination."

Stassen himself has said he personally will not count anything as final until a series of four primaries in which he is entered (Wisconsin, Nebraska, Ohio and Oregon) is completed.

Dewey likewise is represented as determined to "stick to the convention finish," regardless of what happens here. A spokesman again said he does not expect to do well in Wisconsin but on Wednesday, regardless, will have "a majority of all delegates chosen to date."

Betting Volume Small

The first primary bets of any size meanwhile were being placed here, but the volume was small. A local betting commissioner said he had placed some at 3 to 1 and 5 to 1 that MacArthur would win a majority and others at 3 to 2 that Stassen would not win a majority.

Senator McCarthy offered the first breakdown of Stassen camp claims of a majority. McCarthy gave Stassen 14, MacArthur 9 and Dewey 4. One man yesterday made a small bet, even money, that Dewey would not get a delegate. It was snapped up and there have been no more offers.

Stassen Speaks 3 Times

Across in the western section of the State, Stassen again entered Wisconsin today to campaign right up to the closing bell. He spoke at Sparta and LaCrosse, and later made a broadcast.

The "Stop Russia" pitch, that has been the single theme of the MacArthur campaign, and has been emphasized more and more by Dewey and Stassen, meanwhile, was reflected in McCarthy's statement.

Said the Senator: "Stassen is the only Republican candidate who has distinguished himself not only with the military forces of the United States, but in civilian and foreign affairs. He is the one man who can stop Russia without war."

With local interest stirred up, all camps are predicting that with good weather tomorrow's vote may run to three quarters of a million, as against only 320,000 voting in the wartime 1944 primaries. With

D. C. to Record 1st '49 Baby as 108-49-000001

Adopts Plan Census Bureau Rejected As Un-American

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The District of Columbia plans to join the Nation-wide scheme of serial registration of new babies beginning next January 1.

At the same time, it was learned yesterday, the baby registration was turned down several years ago by the Census Bureau, then the Nation's keeper of vital statistics, as un-American.

J. C. Capt, director of the United States Bureau of the Census, disclosed last night that he had flatly rejected the "Book of Life" proposal when it was broached to the Census Bureau several years ago.

"I thought it unnecessary, and hardly in keeping with our manner of life in the United States," he said.

Turned Over to FSA

The job of handling the Nation's vital statistics was taken from the Census Bureau in the PJresident's Reorganization to Federal Security Agency.

The proposed system would provide an eleven digit, lifetime identification number to all babies born n United States after this year.

It would be adaptable, even its sponsors, the American Association of Registration Executives admit, to Society Security, military duty, police identification and for all other identity purposes.

District birth registration under the new system, Irvine said, will begin next January 1 with the first recorded birth listed as No. 108-49-000001. The starting one, he said, stands for United States (Canada is already using a 2 for its designation). The 08 in the initial grouping is the District's "State Number," since the States were assigned numbers in alphabetical order.

The second numbers group, 49, designates the year of birth, he said. And the final group of six digits is the numerical order of recording births that year.

Joseph B. Irvine, director of the District's Bureau of Vital Statistics, of the District Health Department, said yesterday the plan would be put into effect here next January 1.

"We hate to give up our own system of numerical registration of births (since 1874), but we have agree dto go along with the other States. The new system undoubtedly has meny national advantages."

Action Against Reds Opposed By Argentina

U. S. Accused of Meddling in Nation's Internal Affairs

Bogota, Colombia, April 5 (U.P.) Argentina threw a monkey wrench into the deliberations of the ninth Pan American conference here today by denouncing proposals for inter-American collective action against communism as "the basic element of super-state."

Pascula La Rosa, secretary general of the Argentine conference delegation, rejected charges that Argentine is a "fascist state" and indirectly accused the United States of meddling in Argentina's internal affairs.

Observers were reminded of the situation which developed at the American Foreign Ministers' conference in Rio de Janeiro in 1942, just after Pearl Harbor, when Argentina blocked formation of a solid hemispheric front against Nazi Germany.

Paraguayan Foreign Minister Cesar A. Vasconcellos kept conference anti-Communist sentiment alive today with a speech at the third plenary session in which he charged that last year's civil war in his country had "the characteristics typical of a Moscow invasion."

Vasconcellos, Paraguay's chief conference delegate, charged that "the criminal attacks and then the Communist rebellion in Paraguay broke out during a regime of absolute freedom."

The anti-Communist resolution proposed by Chile and the U. S. would condemn recent Soviet activities in Europe and call upon the Americas to suppress all "subversive activities"—implying that all Communist parties in the hemisphere should be outlawed.

The Argentine delegate's explosion today followed a speech by U. S. Delegate Willard L. Beaulac. Beaulac sought to forestall Argentina's known opposition to a super-state by declaring that the U. S. would oppose the grant of any broad or undefined political powers to the Pan American Union.

Argentina Cheered, U. S., Britain Booed

Madrid, Spain, April 5 (U.P.).—More than 100,000 people demonstrated in the streets and squares of Madrid today, cheering Argentina and booing Great Britain and the United States.

The celebration marked the signing of a four-year, $437,500,000 agreement between Spain and Argentina, which was announced here just after the United States Congress voted to bar Spain from taking part in the Marshall Plan. The city was festooned with Argentine and Spanish flags.

Negro Jurors Challenged

Death Sentence of 3 Bandits Upheld in Court of Appeals

Death sentences of three Negroes for a holdup killing here last year was upheld yesterday by a 2 to 1 vote of the United States Court of Appeals.

Dissenting was Justice Henry W. Edgerton, who said the men ought to have a new trial because District Court prosecutors had, in effect, kept Negroes off the jury by challenging their suitability in the case. Justice Edgerton agreed, nonetheless, that the three men "were plainly guilty."

Victim of the fatal shooting was Frank C. Kelly, 56, who was held up at 11th and Euclid sts. nw., the night of March 11, 1947.

Shirley Harris, 23; Joe M. Gray, 19, and Herbert M. Hall, 18, confessed the holdup, saying they used a pistol stolen by another man some hours before.

Before the higher court, they contended that Negroes had been excluded from the jury that tried them, in violation of the Constitution. They also declared they were beaten to make them confess.

Justice Wilbur K. Miller said for himself and Justice Bennett Clarke that the men had a fair trial. There were 19 Negroes on the jury panel that was called for the trial, he pointed out, and both the Government and the defense had a right to challenge members of this panel.

So, the court found, it could not be fairly said that Negroes were kept off the trial jury.

However, none of the 19 sat in the case, because the prosecutors used 19 of their authorized 20 challenges to strike off the Negroes, one by one, the court was told.

Justice Edgerton said in dissent that this was the same thing as keeping Negroes off the panel. Both the spirit and the letter of the law, he wrote, forbid "systematic exclusion."

Justice Edgerton could see no difference between systematic exclusion by the jury officials and by the prosecuting attorney.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Rep. Deane, Advocate of D. C. Home Rule, Worked Hard Preparing for Congress Term

Representative Charles Bennett Deane, who yesterday said home rule in the District might be an answer to infrequent Commissioner visits to local institutions, worked hard preparing for the maiden term of Congress he now is serving.

He came to Washington last year steeped with knowledge of the rules and procedures of Congress so as to "be able to take advantage of the privileges granted."

Since his accession to office, he has become interested in Washington's home rule bill—he was one of seven members of the House who helped to draw it up, has actively supported the national hospital construction program, and has been interested in legislation affecting flood control, soil conservation and forestry projects.

A balding, quiet spoken, friendly citizen, Deane frequently gives the impression he is suppressing a smile as he talks.

He explains this quizzical quirk as part of his own philosophy that if you get a witness in a happy frame of mind, it helps you to get more information.

Deane, who keeps office hours from 8:30 a. m. to 6 p. m., has indulged his golf hobby once this session, playing "a bit over par."

His family, Wife Agnes and two younger children, Agnes Carol, 14, and Charles, jr., 11, are remaining at his home in North Carolina, while his eldest daughter, Betty Cree, 18, is a fresman at Wake Forest.

Deane, who admits he misses his family very much, hopes they will be able to join him in Washington next year. He makes his home here at the Fairfax Village.

Now 49, Deane was born in Anson County, N. C., son of a tenant farmer. He worked for a textile mill, but at 17, realizing the need for a formal education, entered Trinity Park School.

Graduating from Wake Forest College in 1923 (an institution of which he subsequently became a trustee), Deane was licensed as an attorney by the North Carolina Spreme Court the same year.

He has served as register of deeds of Richmond County, N. C., and as county chairman of the State Democratic executive committee.

For four years Deane was compiler of the United States Congressional Directory, and an administrative attorney for the hearings branch of the Wage and Hour Division in Washington during 1938 and 1939.

Deane is "hopeful" that home rule for the District will be approved. "I believe," he said yesterday, "that as we work up the final draft of the home rule bill, even the Board of Trade (which opposed it at hearings) will take a different view."

Violence in W. Va.

Pistols Crack, Fists Swing In Coal Fields

Pittsburgh, April 5 (AP).—Swinging fists and the crackle of pistol shots into the air today brought violence to the 22-day national soft coal pension walkout.

Some 500 roving pickets restored to forceful measures in West Virginia, the leading bituminous coal producing State, to advise non-union strip mines to remain closed.

This State's 120,000 United Mine Workers joined the rest of the 400,000 unionists in the Nation in ignoring a Government order to return to work.

A truck driver reported he was bruised in a free-for-all between 100 pickets and employes of a non-union strip mine of the Grafton Coal Co. C. E. Compton, president of the firm, said "three or four" shots were fired as pickets stormed a tipple and disabled it by ripping out electric controls.

Compton added that pickets told employes "we will return to blow this place sky high" if it does not cease operations. Fifty to 60 truckloads of coal were dumped and tires on some of the trucks were cut, he claimed.

Barbour county prosecutor, W. T. George, jr., disclosed steps were taken to issue warrants naming pickets in the clash, which occurred at Bear Mountain. Compton declared "both the company and its employes are determined to work."

State police were dispatched to Bear Mountain and other West Virginia areas visited by the roving pickets.

The State Troopers reported 300 to 400 pickets appeared at the Johnson Coal Co. property near McWhorter, W. Va., and attempted to pull several workers from a railroad car they were loading.

Quiet prevailed at other bituminous pits across the Nation. The wailing work call of a siren at a U. S. Steel Corp. mine at Bridgeville, Pa., brought no coal diggers. It was the same story in Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Alabama, Virginia, and other coal States, big and little.

This was a typical view of the miners, as expressed by John Delprato, 33, of Burgettstown, Pa.:

"We won't go back to work until we get the pensions. Some day we younger men will be old, too, and we'll need the money then.

"We really need the work—I've got three kids—but we're going to stick it out."

Here is what David Fowler, UMW District 21 president in Arkansas and Oklahoma said:

"The miners are mad. They believe they have not had a square deal from the operators and the President's fact-finding board."

Picket Shot in Thigh In Packinghouse Strike

Omaha, April 5 (AP).—A picket was shot in the thigh today in the first violence of the packinghouse strike here.

William Schultz, 42, "pulled a pistol" and shot Picket Captain Jesse Foster, 38, when pickets tried to prevent his wife, Anna Schultz, from going to work in the Armour ham house.

particularly at Norfolk and Bremo, have coal for only two weeks, he said. He pointed out that it always takes from one to two weeks more after production is resumed to get new supplies. Therefore, he stated, curtailment will have to start in a few days if the strike continues.

Tuck Plans to Act

Governor Tuck, meantime, indicated he would take emergency steps unless the strike ends soon. On Saturday he declared he would reactivate the State Emergency Fuel Commission, now dormant, if the walkout continued much longer.

The fuel commission was first named in November, 1946, by Tuck following a Nation-wide coal strike. Virginia authorities then lined up plans to increase coal production at independent "wagon" or strip mines in the State, unaffected by the mine shutdown, and to open new production of coal by strip operations in coal fields not already utilized. In 1946 units of the National Guard were alerted and told to "stand by."

Farm Machine Workers Vote To Go on Strike

Peoria, Ill., April 5 (AP).—A CIO United Farm Equipment Workers' local voted today to strike next Thursday at the Caterpillar Tractor Co. here.

A spokesman said the strike would be called to support union demands for increased wages and a new contract. The amount of the wage demands was not disclosed.

Company officials said they had no comment at this time.

On March 15, however, the company recessed negotiations with the union because its officials refused to sign non-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley Act. The union's present contract expires Wednesday.

A National Labor Relations Board hearing will be held April 13 on the applications of three other unions for collective bargaining elections among employes of the company. The unions include the AFL United Auto Workers.

The plant employs approximately 17,000 persons and the UFEWA claims a membership among the workers of 11,000.

Suit Would End Painters' Benefits Pact

The president of the Union Painting Contractors Association brought suit yesterday in District Court to end a trust fund agreement with local painters' labor unions.

The action came as efforts to end a five-day walkout of AFL Painters continued frutless.

The trust fund agreement was for health, sick and life benefits. The suit says local contractors paid 3 per cent of their payrolls into the trust fund. But it contended that Locals 368, 896 and 797 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America have violated their end of the agreement by failing to honor a collective bargaining agreement.

The association has already filed charges with the National Labor Relations Board that the unions involved have refused to bargain in good faith in violations of the Taft-Hartley law. The walkout is over wages.

Road-Weight Sitdown Stalls 1000 Trucks in Pennsylvania

Carlisle, Pa., April 5 (AP).—A spectacular drivers' "sitdown" protest halted a police-estimated 1000 giant trucks today along the famed Pennsylvania turnpike.

Upward of 500 were parked bumper-to-bumper near this eastern terminus of the toll road that tunnels beneath seven mountains.

Other idle carriers, their motors cold and silent, were scattered across the 160 miles to the western end at Irwin, near Pittsburgh. State Police Sergt. Earl McGill said the total was 1000.

Normal automobile traffic, and some trucks carrying perishables, continued to roll smoothly along the divided four-lane ribbon of concrete. The truckers had pulled their huge vehicles to the side before stopping. State police kept up a watchful patrol.

Mark Holliday, of Somerset, a spokesman for the drivers, said the "sitdown" protest was against a State law fixing a maximum weight of 45,000 pounds for trucks and pay load.

Some of the trucks alone weigh 25,000 pounds, he said, adding that other States have higher weight limits than Pennsylvania.

"We can't make an honest living under the weight laws now," Holliday told reporters after a conference with State officials at Harrisburg.

Col. C. M. Wilhelm, State police commissioner, told the group, however, that only the Legislature which meets in January can change the law.

N. Y. Printers Will Return To Job Shops

New York, April 5 (AP).—Theodore W. Kheel, director of the city's division of labor relations, said today he had been advised that striking printers in some 250 magazine and job shops here will return to work tomorrow.

Kheel said he was informed the men would return to their jobs under an agreement whereby the wage question in dispute would be negotiated.

Approximately 4200 men have been involved in the work stoppage by the union, the AFL International Typographical Union.

The men ceased work March 21 after the employers posted notices which the union said arbitrarily lengthened the work week from 36¼ to 40 hours and changed other management-labor relationships.

Kheel said he also had been informed by the Printers League section of the New York Employing Printers Association, the employers, that its members would remove the new posted conditions of work in their composing rooms.

He added that the union previously stated its members would return to work under the wage and hour conditions prevailing before the work stoppage if the notices were removed.

The union currently is negotiating with 14 daily New York papers for a new contract. The old one expired March 31. The commercial printers' old contract expired December 31.

A union official said previously the union had asked for the printers $100 weekly for day workers and $110 for night workers, and the employers offered $93 for day workers and $100 for night workers. He said the employers' offer involved working 40 hours instead of the 36¼ in effect before.

Present wage scales were listed as $80.71 for day work and $87 for night work.

Kheel told newsmen that among the points at issue which have been settled was an agreement providing for the 36¼-hour work week.

Reds Launch New Campaign In Mongolia

Peiping, April 5 (AP).—A new Communist campaign in Inner Mongolia, aimed at Kweisui, was reported today by pro-government Chinese dispatches.

Kweisui, capital of Suiyuan Province, is 400 miles northwest of Peiping.

Gen. Fu Tso-yi, who was credited only last week with breaking the back of a Communist offensive in Inner Mongolia, was reported rushing nationalist troops to Kweisui.

Manchurian press accounts said the government was preparing a new drive to close the gap in the Peipin-Mukden railway.

(Closing of this gap was announced on March 17, along with plans to run truck convoys to Mukden until the railway could be restored. Nothing has been said of this since. In the light of today's reports, the announcement appears to have been at least premature).

Carrier Task Force To Visit Norway

From Germany

Civilian Kin Called Home By Russia

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

For the second time in six months the Soviet government has ordered its dependent civilians in Germany to come home, The Washington Post learned yesterday from a reliable German source.

The first order came last November, when Russian wives and other dependents of army officers and civilian occupation officials were ordered back to Russia. As usual with Soviet orders, there was no explanation.

Army and othe roccupation personnel were moved out of private houses in Berlin and other cities, and a special train brought their families back to Russia. Apparently the order did not apply to all Russian civilians in Germany, nor did it prevent newly appointed Russian occupation officers from bringing their wives and families with them.

Now, however, a second order has been issued, reportedly covering Berlin, Dresden and certain other cities in the Soviet zone. The deadline mentioned for their evacuation was June 15.

It is not unusual for the Soviet government to try to prevent what it regards as foreign contamination of its citizens living outside Russia.

Last year's Soviet decree against marrying foreigners was believed motivated, in part, by the large number of Russian soldiers marrying German or Austrian girls in the occupied areas.

Informed sources here thought yesterday that the "come home" order to civilians might be nothing more sinister than the ban on foreign marriages.

But there was also a feeling that the order could have ominous implications, since it might mean that the Soviet Government foresaw trouble in Germany in the Summer.

Similar reports have reached American occupation authorities in Germany, it was learned yesterday, but for security or other reasons there has been no newspaper transmission of these reports from Berlin.

Navy Announces Good Will Mission; Pact Aid Weighed

An American carrier task force will visit Norway—reportedly now under Soviet pressure—on a "good will" cruise late this month.

The Navy announced the forthcoming visit of the six-ship squadron, as top Government officials discussed the possibility of giving military aid to nations of western Europe.

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett and Belgium's Prime Minister Paul Henri-Spaak talked about support for the new five-power western European union yesterday morning, officials stated. Spaak said after the 80-minute meeting that revival of military lend-lease to strengthen western Europe did not come up but that President Truman's March 17 preparedness message was among the topics under consideration.

By Appropriate Means

Mr. Truman then said that the five-power agreement between Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg "deserves our full support" and that we should support it by "appropriate means."

The Navy announcement said that the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Valley Forge will visit Bergen, Norway, April 29 to May 2. Accompanying her will be the cruiser Fresno and four destroyers.

The Norwegian trip, said the Navy, will be "in continuation of the Navy's policy of making visits to friendly countries for the promotion of good will and the furtherance of friendly relations."

Prior visits of American warships to countries under Russian pressure were described officially in the same way. Naval chiefs have acknowledged that the Navy is an "instrument of American foreign policy."

Report "Heat" Applied

According to reliable reports, Moscow has been "putting the heat on" Norway in recent weeks. Norway has a common border with Russia and the latter is said to be pressing the Norwegian government for a mutual assistance military pact similar to that now under negotiation between Finland and the USSR.

Communist domination of the strategic Scandinavian countries would directly affect American security. Soviet control there could lead to Russian air bases in Iceland and Greenland.

The Navy said that Admiral Richard L. Conolly, commander of the Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean Fleets, will head the squadron during its Norwegian visit.

Meanwhile, it was announced here that Ambassador Wilhelm M. deMorgenstierne, Norway's emissary here, left for Oslo yesterday to confer with his goernment. He is expected to return from what the embassy described as a "normal visit" late this month.

Paul Hoffman Is Selected

come "possible, but not certainly" today.

If the appointment does come quickly, a row which broke out yesterday will be short-lived.

Senator H. Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) and Representative John Taber (R., N. H.) chairmen of the Appropriations Committees of Congress, were up in arms over reports that the Administration intended to let the State Department run the aid program for the next 30 days.

—The Foreign Assistance Act, which Mr. Truman signed on Saturday, authorizes him, pending the appointment and confirmation of a director, "to provide, for a period of not to exceed 30 days after the date of the enactment of this act, for the performance of the functions of the administrator through such departments, agencies or establishments of the United States Government as he direct."

In accordance with this provision, Undersecretary of State Lovett announced last week that a temporary interagency staff had been set up in the State Department for the 30-day period.

Lovett said that Paul Nitze of the State Department would supervise the work, directing a group from the executive departments which has had experience in handling the Greek-Turkish aid and stop-gap relief programs.

It is always possible for the President to put the temporary staff in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or the Export-Import Bank.

In his letter to the RFC yesterday, Mr. Truman made no mention of temporary administration. If a director takes office soon, there will be no need of a temporary set-up in any other agency.

The Foreign Assistance Act authorized the RFC to advance a billion dollars to get the program started in advance of actual appropriations by Congress.

British Plane Strewn Over Ground When Hit by Red Fighter

RUSSIANS TAKE OVER—Russian soldiers and an ambulance appear after a British passenger plane and a Red fighter collide and crash in Russian territory in the Berlin area. Debris was strewn over a wide area. Fifteen lives were lost swer was seen in the spokesman's comment that a dinner tonight at Robertson's home, with Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery and Sokolovsky as guests, will be held as scheduled.

Russians Express Regrets On Air Crash Fatal to 15

Sokolovsky's statement that the Russians did not intend to interfere with the air corridor into Berlin "in accordance with our mutual agreement" was considered an indication the Russians would not contest the rights of the western allies to fly freely to the capital—at least in the near future.

It was held likely the Soviets would order their fighters off the western air channels.

A British spokesman quoted Sokolovsky as saying he "would issue immediate orders to give the British access to the bodies and baggage in the Viking (transport) aircraft" involved in the collision.

Previously, Russian soldiers had refused to let the British remove the bodies from the scene of the crash. The British plane had fallen in the Soviet zone of Berlin.

The British transport, inbound from London, was lowering for a landing at the RAF's Gatow airport when the crash occurred at about 500 feet. There was 6 miles visibility at the time.

The Soviet Yak fighter was reported to have dived on the transport, then come up underneath, shearing off the transport's wing. Both planes plummeted to earth. The Soviet plane fell inside the British sector border. The British plane fell in flames into Soviet-occupied territory.

The British said there was no evidence that the Russian plane was out of control at the time of the collision.

The British spokesman said Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin took a "very serious view" of the happening. A full report will be made to the House of Commons in London this morning.

British European Airways' London office gave this passenger list:

A United States sergeant named Pintus stationed in Berlin.

Mrs. Frances Ruth Clough, 25, American wife of Briton P. G. Clough of London.

Miss J. Shea, daughter of Gen. Sir John Shea of Putney, England.

J. E. Roberts, British controller of the postal section of the Berlin Control Commission's postal and telecommunications branch.

S. J. Stocking, Mitcham, England.

A Captain Flamings, a Briton stationed in Berlin.

Waldemar Hald, of Sydney, Australia.

H. Read-Hahm.

A Mr. Lewin.

The crew members, all formerly of the RAF, were John Ralph, pilot; Norman Mcrrington, copilot; Charles Mamser, radio officer, and Leonard G. Goodman, steward.

The collision was exactly the type of incident which western airmen had feared might happen and were seeking to avoid. The Americans had cancelled at least one night flight up the corridor from Frankfurt to avoid any chance of such an incident after the Russians announced that their night fighters were holding maneuvers.

The attitude of Soviet soldiers at the scene of today's crash angered the British. For several hours Soviet guards around the British plane refused to let RAF ambulances remove the battered bodies. A cordon of Russians drove photographers and reporters away.

Legion to Give Truman Flag in Ceremony Today

The American Legion District Department will open its "Fly Your Flag" campaign, to encourage flag displays on patriotic occasions, with presentation of an American Flag to President Truman today.

The ceremony is scheduled to take place at 12:45 p. m. at the White House. Department Commander Owen C. Holleran and his staff will participate.

In the campaign, to continue through July 4, each of the 59 local Legion posts will be assigned an area for distribution of flags.

Big 4 Deputies Suddenly Agree On Austrian Oil for Russians

London, April 5 (AP).—The Big Four Foreign Ministers deputies sullenly agreed today on how much oil Russia should get from Austria.

It was the deputies' first major stride toward an Austrian peace treaty. However, Significance of the agreement must await the test of delicate and difficult issues still unsettled.

Official British observers said both Russia and the Western powers had made concessions.

The United States, Britain and France have served notice that any agreements reached in the course of negotiations must be regarded as tentative and dependent upo na final accord on all the terms of a theaty.

Still to be settled are the problems of Austria's future frontiers, the size of he rarmed forces, the withdrawal of occupation forces and Russia's demand for an unspecified amount of reparations.

The oil claims are part of the Soviet's demands for compensation from Austria in return for surrendering former German property on Austrian soil which the Russians claim under the Potsdam agreement.

Subject to a final accord, the deputies decided that Russia should receive:

1. Control for 30 years over Austrian oil wells capable of producing between 58 and 60 per cent of Austria's present output. The Russians had sought two thirds of Austria's oil production for 50 years.

Sardinia Priest Stabbed to Death

Rome, April 5 (U.P.).—The fatal stabbing of a parish priest on the island of Sardinia boosted the pre-election death toll to 13 today as Communist labor leaders gathered in Rome to consider a general strike.

The executive committee of the Communist-dominated Labor Confederation began to gather here for tomorrow's meeting which will decide, informants said, whether to call a strike of six million workers to protest political murders of Communists in Sicily. Thirty-six have been reportedly killed there in two years.

Police said labor leaders could not blame the death of the priest at Lei, in the center of Sardinia, on rightists. They branded it a political crime, but said extreme leftists who invaded the priest's home to kill him are suspected.

The meeting of 18 Communist and three non-Communist committeemen will hold the key to whether the last two weeks before the April 18 election will be marked by widespread labor agitation, which has been absent from the campaign.

Communists Launch Trieste Campaign

Trieste, April 5.—Communists here launched their pre-Italian election campaign in earnest tonight by attributing the death of a union functionary to "political assassination."

They blamed the Allied Military Government for failing to safeguard the rights of union members and charged Anglo-American authorities with winking at "neo-Fascist" activities.

The death on Saturday night of 30-year-old Doleslao Planinack in a scuffle with a group as yet unidentified but believed to be pro-Italian youths will provide the Communists with political ammunition for a full-fledged anti-western campaign in the next two weeks, informed sources felt.

U.N. Food Unit To Name Head Here Today

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) will meet here today to pick a successor to Sir John Boyd Orr as its director general.

Among those being considered by the 55-nation organization is American Undersecretary of Agriculture Norris E. Dodd.

Orr has asked to be relieved. He is a veteran British nutritional authority.

He is being paid $18,000 a year, tax exempt, and up to $5000 for expenses.

Others Considered

Dodd also has been mentioned as a possible successor to Clinton P. Anderson as Secretary of Agriculture. Anderson has said he will quit soon to run for the Senate from New Mexico.

Others being considered for the FAO post include:

G. H. Barton, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Canada; Jamshed Vesugar, until recently director of India's supply mission to the United States; and F. T. Wahlen of Switzerland, who presided over an FAO conference at Geneva last September.

Meanwhile, the FAO's food council said in a report the world food situation continues to be marked by shortages.

It recommended a continuation of machinery for dividing scarce foods among importing areas, and further international efforts to expand production.

Report of Council

The report said:

"In view of world prospects, there is continuing need for (1) international allocation of scare foods and production materials; (2) steps to make the best use of current food supplies; (3) efforts to expand food production within the next few years.

"Likewise, the world timber situation is such that, in general, similar action is needed for forest products."

Truman Wrote: No Need for Emergency If Congress Talked Less About It, Did More

By The Associated Press

President Truman has written to a member of the House that "if the Congress would act on the measures which I have asked for there would be no necessity for any world emergency."

"If there was a little less emergency talk and a little more activity on the part of the Congress to meet the international problem we would be able to meet it," Mr. Truman wrote Representative Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.).

Johnson made the letter public. It was dated March 22 and referred to the broad legislative programs which Mr. Truman has asked for from time to time.

It said:

"As you know, these measures were asked for in November, 1945—again the problem was gone over in the State of the Union message of 1946; also in the spring of 1946. They were reiterated in the fall of 1946 and again in the State of the Union message of 1947, but apparently this country never looks ahead in its international relations until the actual emergency comes forward."

Johnson has been a consistent Administration supporter. He had suggested to the President in a letter March 20 that the War Assets Administration be directed to reexamine its program for disposing of World War II surplus.

Mr. Truman replied that the matter had already been taken care of in contracts covering sales of the properties.

The presidential letter then went into the question of Congress and the world emergency. It wound up with this paragraph:

"I hope you will put your shoulder to the wheel and help get those statute books—that is the only way to meet this situation."

A Strong America is a Peaceful America

A Salute to Our Peacetime Army

Army Day, April 6, 1948

Because the Army, largest of the Armed Forces, is the backbone of national security . . . we honor it as an instrument of peace. In its strength can lie much of the strength of our Nation . . . and a strong America can play a major role in the preservation of international peace.

Every American should be aware of the Army's vital peacetime duties and responsibilities. Through "open house" at Army posts, through parades, demonstrations and exhibits . . . throughout the Nation today, the Army offers you an opportunity to become better acquainted with its peacetime program . . . so you may see for yourself why a strong Army is essential to a strong America . . . strong so it may continue a peaceful America.

A special salute, this Army Day, to the "oldest regiment of the Regular Army," the Third Infantry Regiment, being re-activated today.

Industrial Output Up in East Europe

U. N. Economic Report Says Coal Shortage Solved in Western Nations

Geneva, Switzerland (Tuesday), April 6 (AP).—The Economic Commission for Europe said today the Soviet Union and her neighbors have raised their industrial production to levels consistent with the achievement of their five-year-plan goals.

The commission issued an analysis of Europe's economic troubles and suggested remedies. Most of Eastern Europe was treated separately in an appendix. The commission is a United Nations body.

Prospects for the industrialization of eastern Europe apparently have increased since the war, the commission said. Before the war Germany dominated the foreign trade of Russia's neighbors. Germany was a buyer of foodstuffs and raw materials and a supplier of manufactured goods.

The Soviet Union, on the other hand, is chiefly a source of supply for raw materials and foodstuffs and a market for industrial goods.

"Owing to the great dependence of each of the countries of this region (eastern Europe) on imported materials and equipment, the realization of their plans will clearly be closely tied up with the development of their foreign trade . . . It seems fairly evident that in order to realize the planned production targets their foreign trade must expand well beyond current levels," the report said.

The commission reached the following conclusions with respect to western Europe: The coal shortage has been solved. Agricultural production is lagging. Industrial reconstruction is making progress. Heavy industries have to boost exports to, reestablish a balance of trade.

The main portion of the commission's report dealt generally with the problems of western European nations. Russia, Yugoslavia, Romania and Germany were not included in this 400-page analysis.

During 1947, the commission said, Europe imported almost seven times as much from the United States as she exported to America.

The rest of the world has almost as large a trade deficit with the United States as Europe has.

Europe probably will be compelled to seek a balance in its trade with America "partly through selling more goods in the United States, but largely by a contraction of imports from the United States," the report suggested.

Regarding western Europe's coal position, the commission said available coal supplies, including imports from the United States, will exceed requirements for the second quarter of 1948.

Steel production, outside Germany, promises to be 7 million tons, or 22 per cent higher in 1948 than in the previous year.

British Income, Borrowing Rise Sharply

London, April 5 (AP).—Britain's national income shot up to £8,770,000,000 ($35,000,000) in 1947, a government white paper said today.

This was an increase of £670,000,000 ($2,680,000,000) of the 1946 figure.

At the same time, borrowing abroad rose to £675,000,000 ($2,700,000,000), an increase of £295,000,000 ($1,180,000,000).

The white paper's double warning of new inflationary pressure at home and a continuing drain on the national credit abroad came on the eve of budget day.

Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, will outline his 1948-49 budget Tuesday. He disclosed its contents today to King George in an audience at Windsor Castle.

The big question is whether he will cut the purchase tax, which runs as high as 133 per cent on some items. Stores say sales have been far below normal lately because customers have hopes that he will.

The stock market also has been marking time, although financial circles doubt there will be any startling changes in the labor government's fiscal policy.

There was a budget surplus of £636,000,000 ($2,534,000,000) in the fiscal year which ended March 31.

Injnred Girl, 16, Weds in Hospital

Elkton, Md., April 5 (AP).—An automobile accident delayed her wedding, but 16-year-old Floy Bingeman wouldn't let it stop her. She was married today while in a hospital bed.

The girl was hurt when the car in which she was returning home to Manheim, Pa., Saturday collided with a truck. She and John Fansler, 21, had just obtained a wedding license and planned to be wed this morning.

But Floy suffered a broken collarbone and her mother, Mrs. Eva Bingeman, a broken jaw in the accident. Both are in neighboring beds in Union Hospital.

That's where the couple was married this afternoon by the Rev. W. F. Hopkins.

1000 Delegates Discuss Health

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—More than 1000 delegates from 17 States participated in discussions today at a convention of the Eastern District Association of the American Association of Health, Physicial Education and Recreation.

Dr. Thomas C. Ferguson, Maryland health director, was elected president of the district group.

Other officers are:

Dr. Minnie Lynn, University of Pittsburgh, vice president in charge of health.

Dr. Harlan Metcals, Cortland State College, New York, vice president in charge of recreation.

C. Walter Kadel, Wilmington, Del., secretary treasurer.

Mother, Children Perish in Blaze

Richlands, Va., April 5 (AP).—A coal miner's wife and two of her children were burned to death today when their home was destroyed by fire at Raven.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Trula May Kennedy, 39, her daughter, Banna Sue, 5, and her son, Glen Ollie, 2.

Krupp Heads Acquitted of War Plotting

Nuernberg, Germany, April 5 (AP).—A United States tribunal today acquitted Germany's gun maker, Alfried Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach and 11 other directors of the Krupp munitions combine of plotting aggressive war.

The defendants still face two other war crimes charges—plunder and spoilation of conquered nations, and deportation, exploitation and abuse of slave labor.

Originally they were indicted on four counts. The two on which they were acquitted charged them with committing crimes against peace and participating in a conspiracy against peace.

It was the first ruling on whether a German industrialist can be held criminally guilty for helping Hitler build his war machine. The directors of the I.G. Farben chemical combine also were accused. No verdict has been reached yet in the Farben trial.

Friedrich Flick and Bernhard Weiss, only German industrialists thus for convicted, were not charged with crimes against peace.

Escaped Convict Pair Recaptured

Elkridge, Md., April 5 (AP).—Two prisoners, one a Washingtonian, were back in the Maryland House of Correction today after their escape in a stolen car from a State roads camp near Chestertown.

State police captured the pair yesterday a few hours after the escape, in an old house at Starkey's Corner. They had fled on foot after their car overturned near Church Hill, killing another fugitive convict, Edward Staples, 26, of Baltimore.

The recaptured convicts are Cornelius Washington, 20, Washington, D. C., and Francis Butler, 22, Port Tobacco, Md.

Missing Veteran Found Drowned

Perryville, Md., April 5 (AP).—A hospitalized veteran who, a county medical examiner thinks, may have been trying to swim the Susquehanna River was found drowned yesterday off White Crystal Manor.

He was identified by Dr. R. C. Dodson, the medical examiner, as John Madden, 24, of Philadelphia. The infantryman had been in Perry Point Veterans Hospital for two years, Dr. Dodson said.

Madden disappeared February 18. The body was found by two children.

Lane Undecided On Assembly Call

Annapolis, Md., April 5 (AP).—Governor Lane made it plain today that anything other than State salary increases which might be discussed at a special General Assembly session this year would have to develop from talks with legislative leaders. That a special session will be held at all is still uncertain.

The Governor said Saturday he had heard from a committee appointed to study present salary scales for State employes.

He did not disclose contents of the report, but said "budgetary angles" are now being investigated by the department of budget and procurement.

Little Value Put On GI-Draft 'Club'

Forcing Veterans Into Reserves, Guard Seen Providing Less Than 100,000 Men

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Administration plans to force veterans into the National Guard and Reserves by holding a draft club over their head would fall far short of meeting military manpower needs, officials said last night.

The proposal in the selective service-universal military training bill sent to Congress last week would provide less than 100,000 "acceptable" men for the guard and Army and Air Force Reserves, Defense Secretary Forrestal's office estimated.

Under the terms of Administration bill veterans who had less than 18 months in uniform would be subject to the proposed draft. Those with at least 90 days service, however, would be exempt if they enrolled in one of the reserve branaches of the armed service.

The National Guard now is 450,000 men short of its top goal, while the Army has only 35,000 in organized Class A Reserve units, compared with 505,000 desired.

Some objections to the plan of drafting veterans or forcing them into the reserves have been heard on Capitol Hill, while other members of Congres suggested it might provide a way of building the guard and reserves to full strength without UMT.

Meanwhile, the armed forces proposed the creation of a large, permanent military reservation in the Aleutian Islands, a move which brought an immediate protest from Alaska Delegate E. L. Bartlett.

Bartlett said he would oppose the plan unless he could be convinced it is "essential in the interest of the people of Alaska."

The Army, Navy and Air Force proposal was disclosed in a Department of Interior announcement that public hearings will be held on the plan at Juneau, Alaska, May 4. Such a hearing must be held before any area can be withdrawn from the status of public lands and closed to homesteading, exploration mining or fishing.

A spokesman for Secretary Forrestal said the whole matter is "routine," aimed at giving the armed forces permanent legal title to bases built during the war and still maintained. The Navy's application, he said, is 18 months old.

Bartlett contended, however, that the Aleutian Islands the armed forces want are only of "secondary" military importance. He said that Federal agencies already have taken over nearly one-third of Alaska.

Officials said that estimates of the effect of the draft-veterans proposal "take into account the present higher standards" for the armed services. Many veterans with less than 18 months' service who were released after VJ-Day were let go because they were "subcaliber"—men who "didn't fit in well" or were of the lowest intelligence group, it was said.

During the war, men with scores as low as 59 in the Army general classification tests were accepted. Today, the Army and National Guard take no one with less than a score of 80.

Discounting these unacceptable former GIs, a Defense spokesman said, the draft-veterans proposal would bring in less than 100,000 former Army and Air Force men, under the best available estimates.

No figures were available for the Navy, but the total is not believed to be large, one official said.

The National Guard now has a strength of 231,000 officers and men. Its top goal—air and ground—is 683,000. There are close to a million officers and men in the Army-Air Force reserve, but very few in organized class A units.

Under the draft-veterans proviso in the Administration's military manpower bill, the former GIs would have to elist in the Guard or organized reserve units as long as vacancies exist. If such billets do not exist, they would be enrolled in a reserve pool where no drills or summer training is required.

Naval Reserve strength is now about 963,000 officers and men—212,000 short of the goal.

Meanwhile, the Senate Armed Services Committee scheduled a meeting this morning to begin the consideration of the draft-veterans and other provisions of the Administration bill.

First decision to be made apparently is whether the group will recommend a "single-package" measure, including both a stopgap draft and UMT.

Sentiment in Congress for the former is growing, with the long-range training plan still a doubtful starter. Chairman Chan Gurney of the Senate committee favors the "one-package" idea. Without UMT, he fears the draft may have to be continued for years. With it, Gurney feels selective service can be dropped in a year or two.

Senator Roberts (R., Wyo.), a member of the group, says he is opposed to the single-package plan, but believes Gurney "has enough votes to get committee approval of it. Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), also a member of the committee, said he favors both the draft and UMT, but predicted the lateer would meet much opposition.

That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low

If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Four More Marines May Be Prisoners

Shanghai, April 5 (AP).—Four more United States Marines were feared to have fallen into Chinese Communist hands today.

Four Marines who had been held since December 25 were freed only last Thursday.

The pilot of a Marine observation plane said he saw a Marine transport plane make a forced landing due to engine failure about 18 miles west of Tsingtao.

He said all four crewmen stepped from the plane and were taken into custody by Chinese troops who appeared to be Communists. Some sources held hope the troops may have been nationalists. None of the Americans appeared to have been injured in the crash, which occurred during a routine training flight.

(In Washington, Marine Corps headquarters identified the four marines as:

Vice Admiral O. C. Badger, commanding the Western Pacific Fleet based at Tsingtao, said efforts to arrange the men's release would begin immediately.

House Group Vote Airport At Sandy Point

By The Associated Press

A House armed service subcommittee voted unanimously yesterday to push for quick action by the House on a proposed 12-million-dollar airport at Sandy Point, Md., for the Annapolis Naval Academy.

Chairman Bates (R., Mass.) told reporters he will ask House Republican leaders this week for a go-ahead on bills to permit 500 million dollars of construction, including the Sandy Point airport, for the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Bates' subcommitte and the full armed services committee approved the bills last year. The Rules Committee has refused several times to send them to the House floor for debate.

Municipality Meeting Called in City Jail

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 5 (AP). Representatives of municipalities in the 15 counties of the Second Congressional District will meet here April 23, Mayor Paul B. Martin announced today. The session will be held in the city jail.

The meeting has been called by Lee Bushong of Charles Town, vice president of the West Virginia League of Municipalities.

Winchester Girls Win

Winchester, Va., April 5.—Paramount studios talent department, judges in a Nnation-wide soft-drink promotion stunt, have selected Miss Grace Underwood as Miss Winchester 1948, and Miss Iris Cornelius as Miss Martinsburg 1948 from photos of area girls entered through the Winchester bottling plant. J. Curtis Fray has announced that photographs won by the girls will be presented at a special ceremony.

Senators Demand Action on U. N. Veto Rule

A potent Senate bloc took shape yesterday behind a demand for overhaul of the United Nations veto rule—with or without Russia's consent.

While the Soviet Union is not mentioned by name in the draft of a joint resolution to be submitted to the Senate this week, there is no doubt as to the measure's intent.

It calls upon and officially authorizes the President to take immediate steps through this country's U. N. delegation to revise the world organization's Charter.

Senate and House must approve the resolution, but it does not require the President's signature.

Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.), one of the sponsors, told a reporter the revisions are aimed at making it possible for the U. N. to take "decisive action" to:

1. Prevent wars of aggression.
2. Limit armaments, including atomic and other weapons of mass destruction.
3. Establish an effective international police force to maintain peace in the world.

"The United Nations, because of the veto power, can take no action now to stop aggression," Baldwin declared.

To remedy this, the Senate group would eliminate the veto right of the five permanent Security Council members of aggression, armaments for aggression and admissions to U N. membership.

The so-called Big Five are Russia—which has used the veto 22 times—France—which has used it twice—and the United States, Great Britain and China—none of which has resorted to the veto.

This, in effect, would tell Russia and her satellites either to cooperate or get out.

Other proposed revisions would:

1. Define aggression as (a) an attack with weapons of violence by a state or its citizens against the recognized territory of a member state or (b) illegal occupation by a state of territory outside its borders. The present Charter does not attempt to define aggression.
2. Adopt the official United States proposal for an atomic development authority to control atomic weapons. As for heavy armaments, the Security Council would set annual production ceilings for each of the big five. Smaller states would be assigned a collective quota.
3. Confine the world police force to volunteers from small states who would be armed with weapons from the small nations' collective quota.

"Talk about VALUE," says America
"CHEVROLET and ONLY Chevrolet IS FIRST!"

You'll get much better performance with economy from Chevrolet's world's champion Valve-in-Head engine. It has the finest record of dependability of any automotive power plant! And Valve-in-Head engines are exclusive to Chevrolet and more expensive automobiles.

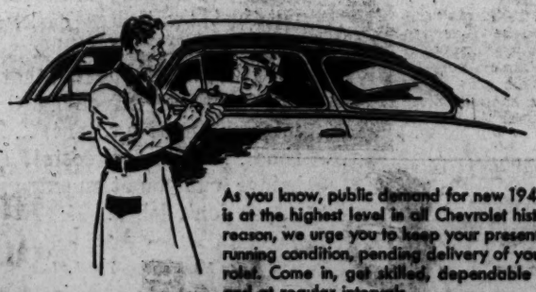
You'll find that new front-end styling—new colors—new and even more luxurious interiors add still further to the Big-Car beauty of Chevrolet's Bodies by Fisher. They're the world's finest bodies, found only on Chevrolet and higher-priced cars.

CHEVROLET

Yes, from one end of the country to the other, public enthusiasm for the new 1948 Chevrolet points to a great public conviction that CHEVROLET AND ONLY CHEVROLET IS FIRST in all-round value as in popularity. More people drive Chevrolets, according to official nationwide registrations and more people want Chevrolets, according to seven independent nationwide surveys than any other make of car. You'll understand why when you see this newer, smarter, finer Chevrolet for '48. Your own judgment will tell you that it gives more value . . . that it alone offers BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST!

How much more smoothly and steadily Chevrolet rides on all types of roads! Here's real Big-Car comfort. It's the fine result of the Unitized Knee-Action Gliding Ride; and this feature, too, is found only on Chevrolet and higher-priced cars.

You and your family will have Big-Car safety, too. For Chevrolet brings you the three-fold protection of Fisher Unisteel body-construction, the Knee-Action Ride, and Positive-Action Hydraulic Brakes—another combination of features found only in Chevrolet and more costly cars.



As you know, public demand for new 1948 Chevrolets is at the highest level in all Chevrolet history. For that reason, we urge you to keep your present car in good running condition, pending delivery of your new Chevrolet. Come in, get skilled, dependable service, now and at regular intervals.

20 Slain in Egypt As Police Strike

Underworld Runs Wild in Alexandria, Looting, Burning

Alexandria, Egypt, April 5 (AP).—A strike by 3000 policemen in this port city of 700,000 today unleashed a reign of terror by the underworld in which 20 persons were killed and more than 100 buildings looted and set on fire.

(The United Press reported 30 killed and more than 200 injured.)

Property damage was estimated in millions. No official figure was available.

Order was restored by nightfall. A 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew was imposed of the city and hundreds of troops patrolled the streets.

In Cairo tonight the government issued an ultimatum for striking police to return to work tomorrow or be dismissed. It applied to police in Alexandria, Cairo and in the Suez Canal region, which were also affected by the strike.

The strike resulted in demands from opposition quarters that Prime Minister Nokrashy Pasha resign. Police asked higher pay and better working conditions.

Nokrashy Pasha supplemented the government ultimatum with a special warning to noncommissioned police in Alexandria. He said military tribunals would try those who urged participation in the rioting.

Troops were called out. Seven police strikers and 13 civilians died as the soldiers' guns blazed during the day. Official tabulations showed 40 persons seriously wounded.

Nokrashy Pasha hurried here by plane from Cairo, but was unable to persuade police representatives to meet with him to discuss mediation.

Wins 204 Prizes In 12 Years

The Washington Post

MRS. ROBERT A. MILLION holds some of the certificates she has won in homemaking contests at Maryland County fairs. In 12 years she has won 204 firsts in cookery, gardening and dressmaking

Fair Winner Of Fair Prizes One in Million

One in a million—is Mrs. Robert A. Million of 6138 Central ave., Capitol Heights, Md.

Not only does she make all her own clothes—including hats, gloves, lingerie and jewelry, but she has found time to win 204 first prizes for cuisine, handicraft and other domestic arts in Maryland fairs during the last 12 years. In addition, she operates a stand where she sells potted plants—all grown by herself.

Last fall for the first time she entered the State fair at Timonium. All three of her entries won first prizes.

"I guess I come by it naturally," Mrs. Million explained. "I was brought up on a farm near Culpeper, Va., and my mother was an excellent cook."

Asked if her husband, a locomotive engineer, appreciates her talents (total clothing bill last year —$250) Mrs. Million replied: "I haven't heard any complaints."

Her prizes have totalled more than $1000 in cash. The Millions are childless.

Jewish Colony Under Fire by Arab Artillery

Jerusalem, April 5 (AP).—The Arab army turned its artillery today on embattled Jewish Mishmar Haemek colony in northern Palestine, where 40 Arabs and 6 Jews were reported killed in fierce fighting. Other incidents in the Holy Land brought the day's fatalities to 67.

Outcome of the battle on the historic Plains of Armageddon remained in doubt, with both sides issuing conflicting statements of success.

In another military development of the day, commando units of Haganah, the Jewish army, blasted the headquarters of Hassan Bey Salameh, commander of the Mediterranean Arab army, at Sarafand College near Ramle on the central coastal plain.

An official statement said 16 Arabs were killed and 12 wounded in that attack. Today's casualties boosted to 2375 the unofficial toll since the November 29 U. N. decision to partition Palestine.

British army sources said fighters from the Arab Yarmuk army used seven 25-pounder field guns, equivalent to French 75's, against the outer defenses of Mishmar Haemek.

The British did not say whether the Arab force, estimated at 1000, succeeded in occupying the colony or whether it withdrew.

Meanwhile, fighting was also renewed in Kastel, the fortress village, 5 miles northwest of Jerusalem, controlling traffic on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv hwy.

One report said 2000 Arab fighters had surrounded the village and messaged for Jews to surrender or die. An Arab informant said the Arabs mounted field guns in an attempt to regain control of the village, seized by the Jews three days ago.

U. S. Suggests Troop Force For Palestine

New York, April 5 (AP).—The United States suggested today that foreign troops be assigned to Palestine if necessary to maintain order under a United Nations temporary trusteeship.

United States Chief Delegate Warren R. Austin did not commit his government to participate in the international force or declare which countries should send soldiers. He said only that "such states as would be specified" should agree to keep the peace in the embattled Holy Land.

Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko and the Soviet Ukraine's Vassily A. Tarasenko boycotted the session. Russia insists the U. N. should stick to partition.

Delegates adjourned after two hours. Austin called another meeting for Wednesday morning. A spokesman said special invitations would be sent to Gromyko and Tarasenko.

These were the first proposals made by the United States since Washington asked the U. N. to sidetrack Palestine partition and insead accept a U. N. interim trusteeship.

The program included these points:

1. The temporary trusteeship should terminate as soon as a majority of the members of each o fthe two principal communities in Palestine (Jews and Arabs) agree on a plan of government. This section apparently meant that the Arabs would continue to exercise a veto over partition as an eventual solution. The Jews support the splitup scheme; the Arabs bitterly oppose it.

2—The U. N. itself would become administering authority for Palestine with the trusteeship council as the supervising body. A separate body called the Governor of Palestine would be set up with a U. N.-appointed governor-general.

3—Specific provisions would be made for immigration and land purchase. These steps would be carried out after consultation with Jewish and Arab leaders.

Meanwhile, a United Nations committee today discarded Russia's atomic ipan as inadequate and abandoned in failure its effort to agree on world-wide atomic control.

By a vote of 9 to 2, the working committee of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission decided formally to throw out Russia's proposals.

The commission is expected to meet later this month.

6-Pt. Farm Program Advocated by Taft

Candidate Backs Bigger Payments For Soil-Building; Wife Makes 3 Talks

Grand Island, Nebr., April 5 (AP).—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) came out tonight in favor of bigger Government payments for soil building practices.

In a major farm policy address, at a dinner meeting here, Taft also:

1. Said the farm cooperative system should be "sufficiently developed so no one can take advantage of the individual farmer."

2. Called for "steady expansion of rural electrification to every farm," even though it means "in some of the more remote districts a subsidy from the Federal government will be required."

3. Voiced his agreement with the general theory of government support of farm prices.

4. Renewed his indorsement of the Pick-Sloan plan for developing the Missouri Valley.

5. Demanded a solution of farm problems without production controls "except perhaps in the most extraordinary emergencies."

6. Declared that revision of the parity formula to include recognition of "fundamental changes since 1913" must be undertaken before determining the exact methods by which the Government shall support farm prices.

Taft's farm policy address highlighted the first day of an intensive final drive to win his first preconvention ballot contest in Nebraska April 13. He is pitted against Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York, Harold Stassen of Minnesota and four other declared or potential candidates for the GOP presidential nomination in Nebraska's all-star preference primary. He spoke in Scottsbluff, Ogallalla, North Platte and Kearney today.

Believed Effective Answer

Taft supporters vaiced belief that his speech was an effective answer to what they called a misimpression that his address in Omaha last mointh proposed a cut in farm support price levels.

Taft said he believes the Government is "morally bound" to carry out its guarantee of price support at 90 per cent of the old parity formult and that "this obligation extends to the 1948 crop even after the end of the year 1948."

At Ogallalla, a street-corner crowd of about 200 heard Taft's talk given from the rear of a truck. Senator Butler (R., Nebr.), Taft's Nebraska campaign manager, shared the "platform."

Mrs. Taft, meanwhile, covered another route. She made campaign speeches in behalf of her husband at Alliance, Hyannis and Broken Bow.

WILLIAM E. SWANN AND MARGARET WILLIS KOONTZ
At the hearing on the death of William Campbell

Pair Charged With Murder Of Veteran

The common-law wife of a one-legged war veteran and a man who roomed with them were charged with the veteran's murder yesterday.

A coroner's inquest held them for the grand jury.

The victim, William Campbell, 52, of 603 G st. nw., died at Gallinger Hospital on Sunday of brain injuries caused by a blow or fall eight days earlier.

The two held, who did not testify at the inquest, are Margaret Willis Koontz, 42, and William Edward Swann, 44, bricklayer.

Detective Sergt. Bernard D. Crooke of the homicide squad testified at the inquest that Miss Koontz told him Swann had struck Campbell with an electric light socket, while she had struck Campbell with the straw end of a broom.

Crooke testified Swan told him he had struck the war veteran with his fists after Campbell had ripped off Swan's shirt, while Koontz had hit Campbell with a stick.

The fight followed a drinking bout, Swann was quoted by Sergeant Crooke as acknowledging. Campbell had torn the light socket from the ceiling as he was attempting to strike Swann with his crutches, according to Swann's account of the fight as related by the detective.

Edward Humm of Fall Church, Va., operator of a sign shop at 603 G st. nw., who rented the apartment above the store to Campbell, testified there had been "an awful lot of difficulty between Campbell and the lady, usually on account of liquor."

As the fights always seemed to occur after he left his shop, Humm told the jury, he saw only the results.

The veteran, who lost his right leg in an air crash during the war, was brought to the hospital on Friday after Humm had found him lying unconscious beside his bed, police reported.

Hospital physicians said he was then in a coma and was bleeding from head injuries. Both eyes were blacked, they testified, and a large part of his right arm was black and blue.

Hague Backs Truman for Reelection

Jersey City, N. J., April 5 (AP).—Frank Hague, 71-year-old vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee and former mayor of Jersey City, announced today he was supporting President Truman for reelection.

In personal letters to New Jersey's 4000 Democratic committeemen, Hague launched his annual pre-primary election drive. He said he would stand by Truman as the party's logical choice.

"We are fortunate in having an outstanding candidate for the Presidency, Harry S. Truman," he wrote.

Asked previously if he thought Truman would be nominated Hague replied: "Who else?"

Both Parties in N. Y. Pick Delegates Today

New York, April 5 (AP).—Ninety Republican national convention delegates, all claimed by campaign strategists for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, will be chosen tomorrow at New York State's spring primary.

The course of the 90 Democratic delegates to be elected at the same time is not so clear. Some candidates have announced they will oppose President Truman.

However, the Democratic State and New York City leaders are expected to point the way for the entire delegation by the time the July national convention rolls around. Any insurgent revolt probably can be killed by the unit rule.

The State's delegates are uninstructed by law.

The solid bloc of 97 New York State delegates will furnish Dewey more than one-sixth of the 548 votes he needs to win the GOP presidential nomination at the party national convention in June.

The 90 delegates to be elected tomorrow will be chosen on the basis of two from each of the State's congressional districts. Seven Republican delegates-at-large at a state committee gathering here April 16. Each of these will have half a vote each, giving the party 98 votes in the national convention.

Hecklers Douse Lights During Taylor Speech

Logan, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—The Truman Administration's foreign policy is leading to war, Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho) said last night—and hecklers turned the lights out at that point in the speech.

"We're in our usual condition," Taylor quipped. "The American people are in the dark."

Iowa Party for Truman, Sweitzer 'Assured'

By The Associated Press

Corroll Sweitzer, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Iowa, said yesterday the party in his state is for President Truman.

Leaving the President's office, he told White House reporters that "I received assurances from the President that make it appropriate for me to say that in Iowa the Democratic Party is for the President wholeheartedly."

He declined to say what those assurances were.

Episcopalian Leaders To Meet in Baltimore

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—A town and country church institute for leaders in the Episcopal diocese of Maryland, Washington and Easton, Pa., will be held here tomorrow.

The University of Maryland extension service is cooperating in sponsoring the one-day institute. Dr. T. B. Symons, director, will preside.

Attending will be the Right Rev. Nobel Powell, Bishop of Maryland, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Washington Bishop, and the Right Rev. William McClelland, of Easton.

Primary Loser In Spotlight

three complete slates of 27 each entered for MacArthur, Stassen and Dewey, the ballots are long and complicated and tabulation of returns may be late. The Democratic ballot carries only a Truman delegate slate. Regardless of party affiliation, the voters here may mark whichever ballot they choose. Democrats are expected to cross over in large numbers for a say in the more lively GOP race. Since none is sure how the Democrats will vote, that's another unknown factor in an already uncertain outcome.

Baltimore Frees Slaying Suspect

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—Police today questioned a suspect in connection with the slaying of a Baltimore woman but released him after several hours.

Policemen had been stationed near the man's house seeking the slayer of Mrs. Elizabeth Telljohann, who operated a small grocery store. She died last Friday of bullet wounds suffered two days before.

She had been shot in the back by a man attempting to steal her pocketbook.

High Court Denies Draft Evader Plea

Rubinstein, Wealthy Promoter, Must Pay Fine, Serve Term, and Quit U. S.

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Serge N. Rubinstein, rich promoter who got 30 months in jail for draft dodging, lost his plea for a Supreme Court hearing.

This cost Rubinstein a $50,000 fine, left him to finish the sentence he began in the Federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., last April 23, and means he will be put out of the country when he is turned loose.

Rubinstein was born of Russian parents, but claims he is a citizen of Portugal. He came to this country in 1938, and is said to have made five million dollars in Wall Street. When the war came, he claimed he was needed for war work by two companies in which he owned stock. When he was tried in New York for dodging Army duty Rubinstein said this was just his opinion and he did not mean to mislead his draft board.

Foster Refused Hearing

Also refused a hearing yesterday was Allen G. Foster, an official of one of the Rubenstein firms, who backed up Rubenstein's claim for deferment. Foster was fined $10,000 and given a suspended jail term of two years.

The Justice Department yesterday said Rubenstein recently asked for parole, but was turned down.

Harrison Parker of Chicago argued his own appeal before the justices several months ago. They heard him with attention but voted 6 to 3 yesterday that he must serve the 90 days in jail given him for contempt of court in Chicago.

The Chicago courts three years ago told Parker to show cause why he should not be made to produce certain papers, which accused a number of judges and others of bribery and other corruption. Parker filed the papers with the clerk, and was held in contempt for doing so. He claimed this violated his constitutional rights.

Sentenced Second Time

Parker made this claim in the Illinois Supreme Court, but was turned down. He was then sentenced a second time, on the same charge, to correct a flaw in the first sentence. This time, Parker did not go to the Illinois Supreme Court, but went to the Appellate Court of the State, where he lost again.

The Illinois law says that a man must claim his constitutional rights in the State Supreme Court, and that he loses them if he takes his case to the Appellate Court. And having lost them, he cannot claim them again in the United States Supreme Court.

Justice Douglas said for the majority yesterday that the justices found no fault with this rule, that Parker ought to have appealed his second sentence to the State Supreme Court.

Justice Rutledge, joined by Murphy and Black, said the Illinois rule was "hypertechnical," that it wiped out Parker's rights with legal traps.

Still before the justices is Parker's appeal from another sentence, to six months in jail for writing a letter to a Chicago grand jury offering to testify that the Chicago Tribune Co. defrauded the State of tax money.

The court in other cases yesterday ruled:

That Joseph Sunnen, a Clayton, Mo., inventor must pay income taxes on $262,000 in patent royalties that he gave his wife;

That the Government does not have to be brought into a lawsuit among the heirs of Thompson Downing, a Cherokee Indian, over who ought to have his land; and

That it would review an Interior Department order granting the Kariuk Tribe of Indians exclusive fishing rights in certain Alaskan waters.

Small Radio Station Bill Opposed by 16 Big Outlets

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

There are too many small radio stations in almost every city in the United States, Louis G. Caldwell, counsel for 16 major radio outlets, told a Senate committee yesterday.

Caldwell appeared before the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee in opposition to a bill introduced by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.).

The Johnson bill would:

1. Forbid the license of any standard A. M. broadcast station for power over 50,000 watts.

2. Require the FCC to break down all the remaining class 1-A clear channels in the United States.

The Federal Communications Commission has been considering the question for some three years. The agency has been requested by the committee not to take any action until the Johnson bill has come before Congress for decision.

Caldwell represents 16 of the 24 clear channel stations in the United States, including the Chicago Tribune's WGN, whose counsel he is.

Maintaining that the argument over the Johnson bill is not a fight between different groups of broadcasters, but a battle between many millions of rural listeners who want better service, and commercial interests who want more city outlets, Caldwell said:

"Enactment of the Johnson bill will simply open the floodgates for many more stations furnishing service only to cities and their immediate environs."

Acting Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) denounced charges that Congress, in dealing with the Johnson bill, is interfering with the administrative duties of FCC.

"I think it is about time that everybody understands that the Federal Communications Commission, like a number of other agencies, is the arm of Congress and carries out functions which the Congress has directly delegated to it by law," Tobey said.

The question before the committee, Tobey insisted, "is a broad one involving such matters as possible monopoly control of the most important organ of public opinion and propaganda in the world today."

Tobey and Johnson maintained this as a question on which Congress must lay down public policy, since they fear it might lead both to monopoly of news and expression of opinion over the air waves.

In his formal statement, Caldwell accused Edward Cooper professional staff member of the committee, of "assiduously writing individual letters to broadcasters."

"What is the reason for his having so great an interest in one side of this controversy before the evidence is heard?" challenged Caldwell.

Ship by Paintings

Aside apart from any concern for AIR safety, we are wholly in accord with plans to retain the German-owned paintings here in this country for another year. There could be no better evidence of the popular appreciation of this magnificent heritage than the crowds that have been visiting the National Gallery of Art since these paintings were put on display. Some 404,031 persons attended the National Gallery during the first 19 days of the exhibition; and on Sunday a turnout of 62,983 made impossible anything but a fleeting glimpse.

If there is such great interest in Washington, it is a reasonable assumption that there would be a similar reception for the paintings elsewhere in the country where there is normally less access to such cultural advantages. For this reason we agree heartily with the purposes of the Fulbright bill to provide for tours of the paintings under the supervision of the National Gallery—a move, incidentally, which Senator Fulbright had been preparing in consultation with the War Department and the National Gallery, even before the current wave of comment. Senator Fulbright's sensible proposal is enhanced by a provision that reasonable admission fees be charged and that the proceeds be turned over to the International Children's Emergency Fund for the benefit of German children.

It is doubtful whether the paintings would see any such utility if they were returned to Germany in these days of unrest. Indeed, the fact that they were found cached in a salt mine does not speak well of the Nazi regard for them. A decision to keep the paintings temporarily in the United States need raise no question of their ownership. That ownership is specifically recognized in the Fulbright bill, and it could be implemented further by adopting the suggestion made by several persons to bring over German curators to explain and protect the paintings. In providing for the eventual return of the paintings to Germany, the United States will be completely reversing the policy of the Nazis, who pilfered Europe of its art from one end to the other as a "right" of conquest. The truth is that art treasures such as these are not exclusively the property of one country; rather, they are a trust for the people of the world. The safeguarding of these paintings for the time being in the United States would merely be assurance that this trust will be respected.

Atom Holiday

The plea addressed to the U. N. Atomic Energy Commisson by a group of American scientists for a ten-year ban on large-scale production of fissionable materials is indubitably an expression of good will. It seems also, unfortunately, an expression of the escapism which the terrifying potentialities of atomic energy tend to generate. The proposal, however well-intentioned, is altogether unrealistic, for it ignores the central fact that the Russians are not now willing to accept any atom control plan entailing relinquishment of any portion of their sovereignty.

The "emergency" memorandum of the Association of Scientists for Atomic Education would, on its face, be unacceptable from the Russian point of view, even if it could be held to offer adequate safeguards to the rest of the world. Whether other nations than the United States, Britain and Canada have yet discovered how to utilize fissionable materials as weapons can perhaps no longer be said with certainty. It can be said with complete certainty, however, that the United States is the only country in the world which now has sizable stockpiles of fissionable materials. The Russians would be unlikely to adhere to or abide by a moratorium which would forbid them to produce what this country already possesses.

From the point of view of the rest of the world, the eleventh-hour proposal of the science group appears to present all the difficulties of the Acheson-Lilienthal proposal in aggravated form. "An international moratorium on the large-scale production of fissionable materials," says the scientists' memorandum, "would eliminate the need for international operation of atomic energy plants by eliminating that type of plant entirely." But the United States now has huge plants of that type which it cannot be expected to "eliminate" in the absence of complete, enduring and effective international control. And to determine that such plants are not being constructed or utilized in the Soviet Union would require policing and inspection at least as rigorous as that envisaged by the Acheson-Lilienthal report. Moreover, the possibilities of evasion and deception would be so great as to deprive the world of any genuine sense of security.

The crisis which the Atomic Energy Commission faces today in the anticipated rejection of the Soviet control proposals and the abandonment for the time being of further efforts to reach agreement which is implicit in that rejection is a crisis of confidence. There is no trust today between East and West. And without at least a modicum of trust, effective agreement is impossible. Resolution of the atomic energy dilemma must await, apparently, resolution of the political dilemma which is the underlying source of the world's tragic unrest.

Road To Unity

Perfunctory official welcomes will have no place in the visit to Washington this week of the Prince Regent and the Prime Minister of Belgium. They are visitors whom the Government of the United States and the people of Washington are genuinely glad to see. Belgium was the first European country to put its financial house in order after the war. She was a leader in forming the Benelux Union and in setting the pattern for a wider economic union in Europe. Her Prince Regent, Prince Charles, has shown himself worthy in every way to be the son of King Albert, whom America will never forget. And her Premier, M. Spaak, is more than a great Belgian; he is a great European in the authentic tradition of Aristide Briand. We have already suggested that the 16-nation European organization should have its headquarters in Brussels so that it could have the continuing benefit of M. Spaak's inspiring and imaginative leadership.

We hope our officials will leave M. Spaak in no doubt as to our determination to help free Europe resist the threat of Communist aggression. If he had been sitting in the galleries of Congress last week, he would have seen convincing proof of it in the prompt and overwhelming approval of the European Recovery Program. We hope our officials will assure M. Spaak of our support for further efforts to bring about unity in western Europe. Although western Europe must set up its own recovery organization, without dictation from us, we hope our officials will have a clear answer ready if M. Spaak should ask what kind of organization the United States would like to see. It should be strong enough to look over the shoulders of all the 16 participating countries as they launch their great cooperative program. It should prevent any member nation from promoting its own narrow interests at its neighbors' expense. It should have an international staff of men and women with greater loyalties to the union than to their own government. Let it be emphasized once more: the continuity of American support will depend at all times on the continuity of European self-help and cooperation.

On the political side, the five-power Brussels pact was a brave achievement, but we cannot help feeling that it was only a beginning. It made no mention, for example, of joint military staffs. It needs to be strengthened steadily by its European participants, and it needs American support which will surely come as we extend our military preparedness and work out the supply problems involved. Perhaps the United States is not yet ready to give an outright military guarantee, but there is one thing we could do at once. We could expand the present Combined Chiefs of Staff to include the military representatives of the five nations that signed the Brussels agreement. Later we could include any other nation associating themselves with this defensive arrangement. An alliance? An "entanglement?" We have it already in British participation in the combined staffs.

We needed no treaty, no secret commitment, to continue the Anglo-American partnership of wartime. In the same way the Administration would need no treaty to invite France, Belgium and the Netherlands to consult with our military officials as to strategic planning. We can think of no more appropriate gesture, and none more telling in its effect abroad, than to give M. Spaak this invitation and this assurance while he is our guest in Washington.

Army Day, 1948

Today, through long tradition, Washington will witness another parade in celebration of Army Day. Despite valiant efforts to put on a good show, onlookers are likely to find the symbol of our military might just a little pathetic. To be sure, it will not be essentially different from other such demonstrations in peacetime. But this year the small contingents of Regular forces, the National Guard and the rather hastily impressed Reservists will serve to emphasize Secretary Marshall's remark that our defenses are now a "hollow shell."

This need be no disparagement of the Army. But in assessing the status of our land forces on Army Day, it would be foolish to ignore the fact that the Army is now in poor shape to defend anything. It has two and one third combat divisions in the United States; it has various other divisions stationed at such widely separated spots as Germany, Japan, Austria, Trieste and Korea, spread perilously close to the line of ineffectiveness. It has, presumably, considerable stocks of World War II materiel, but not much else. Presently it is more than 100,000 men under the 669,000 authorized by law, and its current strength is constantly being sapped by the expiration of enlistments. It has a current budget of less than one billion dollars for all purposes after occupation costs are deducted. In short, the Army which will be represented today on Constitution Avenue is reduced to little more than a holding operation.

Army Day affords Americans a timely opportunity to reflect on what they expect of their land forces. Such reflections, if they are realistic, must take account of the Army's revised position. Irrespective of the implications of the atomic bomb and air power, however, the Army continues to have an essential mission. There is as yet no substitute for land forces for a variety of purposes. The best evidence of this is our position in Europe where we confront the Russians directly. Weakness in manpower invites disrespect. Here a general strengthening of our land forces would have the most immediate benefit. For we need to back up our determination to resist further aggression in two respects: first, we must convince the Russians that we mean business; and, second, we must convince the people of western Europe that we will not sell them short. It is in this connection that the measures proposed to Congress to augment the Army — the draft, universal training and the establishment of a mobile striking force—have the most vital significance. For the Army's prime mission today should be to prevent the outbreak of war through the proper deployment of strength before war conditions arise.

Our defense will not be fully effective unless it is balanced. This is a fact which is ignored by both the blind adherents of a nonexistent pushbutton warfare and the groups that oppose conscription on the ground that it would promote militarism. The draft and UMT alone, to be sure, are no guarantee either of victory or against the outbreak of war. But the danger of militarism is not in democratic measures to strengthen our defense. It is rather in what would ensue if, through unpreparedness, we should allow the remainder of free Europe to fall and lay ourselves open for conquest. That ought to be the main consideration on this Army Day.

Shift Of Scenery

Chiang Kai-shek's refusal to seek reelection as President of China and his talk of the Kuomintang's "sincere intention to establish constitutional rule" is a gesture intended to make a favorable impression both at home and abroad. "The only hope I cherish," he said, "is how to lay a sound and solid foundation for China's constitutional government." Undoubtedly this is what the Chinese as well as China's friends everywhere wish to hear. But there is no indication that the Generalissimo's decision will mean any shift in the actual seat of power in China.

Several changes in Chiang Kai-shek's title in the past have effected no major change in his authority. Now he proposes to relinquish the presidency into the hands of a "nonpartisan candidate" who is "loyal to the basic policy of rebellion suppression" and to assume a new position such as premier or chief of staff of the army. The specifications he laid down for the new President are generally considered an indorsement of the able and scholarly forthan is the Generalissimo. But Dr. Hu Shih, who now heads the National Peking University. Dr. Hu would cetrainly be a more appropriate symbol of democracy than is the Genelaissimo. But Dr. Hu has a weak heart and would not likely be able to carry the back-breaking burden of governing China in its present chaotic state. Nor is he known as the tough, crusading type of leader that is needed to make an impression on the corruption and ineptitude that characterize the present regime.

It must be assumed, in the circumstances, that the Generalissimo contemplates only a shift of scenery. He has been subjected to much criticism in China as well as in other countries in recent months. Apparently his refusal to run for the presidency "as long as the nation remains disunited" is a means of getting himself off the hot seat. It would be naive to assume that any change in the presidency would relinquish the grip of the present Kuomintang leaders on Chinese policy.

Negro College Fund

So long as racial segregation prevails in the educational institutions of the South, white Americans will remain under a moral obligation to give financial aid to the colleges which afford Negroes a chance to secure higher education. Thirty-three such institutions, mostly in the South, all accredited and respected, have joined again, as in several years past, in an appeal to the public through the United Negro College Fund. Their goal this year is $1,400,000—a small sum as university endowments go, yet one which in this realm can be productive of immensely beneficial results.

The Negro colleges participating in this appeal have rendered invaluable service not only to the men and women they have educated but to the whole Nation as well. Out of them has come the Negro leadership which has sought not only advancement of Negro welfare but also betterment of racial relations. Education is, of course, the key to economic opportunity. Given this kind of opportunity, Negroes can themselves deal with the disabilities which lie at the root of what the Swedish sociologist, Gunnar Myrdal, called "an American dilemma." In the resolution of this dilemma, all Americans are vitally concerned. A contribution to the United Negro College Fund is an effective means to this end.

"Anti-Poll Tax Bill"

The Washington Post is so often right that it is perhaps ungracious to disagree with it. However, I cannot avoid feeling that your March 29 editorial "Antipoll Tax Bill" deals somewhat cavalierly with what is really a difficult question of constitutional law.

You base your opposition to the antipoll tax bill solely on constitutional grounds, which is always dangerous. It is your contention that, under the original Constitution, the States have sole power to determine the qualifications of those who may vote for members of Congress. This is unquestionably true. There still remains, however, the question of whether the imposition of a tax as a condition of a right to vote is a "qualification" or merely a restriction upon the right to vote. Surely, you would not argue that every burden which the State may choose to impose upon the franchise constitutes a "qualification." Certainly, it is at least arguable that a "qualification" must in some way relate to the capacity of fitness of the individual who seeks to vote.

In the past, it is true, the Supreme Court has taken a different view; but there is a substantial difference between the function which the court exercises when it refuses to declare a State law unconstitutional and the function which it exercises when it affirmatively strikes down a law of Congress. May there not be, in the definition of "qualification," a twilight zone in which the State may be free to impose a restriction in the absence of congressional action, but in which Congress may be free to define more precisely the term used in the Constitution? Certainly, the issue is not foreclosed.

Furthermore, the power of the States in this as in all other matters is limited by the subsequent adoption of the fourteenth amendment which forbids the States to deny to any person the equal protection of the laws and which empowers Congress to take affirmative action for enforcement. If the Congress determines that in its actual operation and practical effect the poll tax deprives a large number of persons of equal protection of the laws, is its judgment not entitled to that respect which courts customarily extend to their copartners in a government of checks and ballots?

These are difficult questions on which students and lawyers may well differ. To you the answers seem easier than they are—and my objection is they seem too easy.

Aid To Education

Today the American people are facing the most trying problems that they have ever been called upon to solve. But to solve these problems requires an enlightened citizenry that has had the right—not privilege—to an adequately supported public education. Yet look at the plight in which our public schools are found today—heavily increased enrollments, particularly in the lower grades and at the college levels, understaffing of teacher personnel, poor and inadequate equipment, and many school buildings which are so overburdened that they are unable to take care satisfactorily of the numerous demands of them.

The 1940 census indicated that almost two million school children between the ages of 6 and 15 were not attending school. I doubt if that deplorable and shameful situation has improved since the last census.

What must be done? The answer is: Congress must immediately enact the Federal-aid-for-education bills (S. 472, H.R. 2953). This legislation is imperative if our democracy is not to be impaired and undermined. The States and local governments cannot do the job of rendering public education that has democratic vitality without Federal aid. The task is too big. Of course the distribution of Federal aid should be carried out in such a manner that administration and control of the schools will continue to rest with the States and local school systems.

Three hundred million dollars is little enough to do the job of strengthening this Nation's best defense—its public schools.

Negroes In The Draft

Every Negro in America who has any self-respect can sympathize with the Negro witnesses who testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that millions of Negroes will court treason charges before they will submit to segregated Army labor battalions. However, only foolish, short-sighted American Negroes would actually indorse such a program.

I confess that there have been many times, when I have suffered humiliating experiences because of the color of my skin, that I would have rejoiced to see this country bombed. But what would that gain me? What kind of a bomb would it be that would only use the white folks as targets? No, we must either learn to live together or we will all die together.

The white people fought and freed the Negro slaves. The first world war helped to raise the Negro in the economic world and the second one pushed us still higher up the ladder to social, political and economic freedom. Maybe after the third world war, America will have made up her mind that dark-skinned citizens have full rights to the benefits of our Constitution, the same as other citizens.

Civil Rights Now

In your issue of March 21, you carried an article by Prof. Philip J. Allen, the gist of which was that radical mores can't be legislated. With this there can be no quarrel. However, I respectfully point out that it is not racial mores with which his article is concerned, but civil rights. I think his article, stripped of its sonorous language, could be paraphrased as follows:

"When the founding fathers evolved the Bill of Rights they were in the unfortunate position of realizing that only 90 per cent of our people could enjoy those rights. The power of the United States Government could never be used to extend these rights to the remaining 10 per cent for fear of hurting the sensibilities of some of the 90 per cent who had fallen into naughty thinking habits!"

He says: "It is a sad commentary on American politics that so grave and delicate a human problem should have turned into a political tool." It is a sadder commentary that an effort to insure civil rights to all citizens should be referred to as a political tool. It is true that some unscrupulous politicians have used it as such. But misuse of the civil rights issue does not destroy it as an issue. It is an issue which we must face up to regardless of sophists who as Professor Allen does, "believe there is something wrong in a society where little children are born with two strikes against them" but who say (again Professor Allen) "they (the mores) can be changed but only slowly . . ."

I'm in a bigger hurry than Professor Allen is.

Carrier-Based Planes

Diogenes' interesting letter in The Washington Post of March 28 is significant as a presentation of the standard Navy argument for "getting in the act"—an argument opposing the use of long-range bombers in favor of carrier-based planes for delivering the atom bomb. The argument really advocates cutting Air Force appropriations in favor of increased Navy appropriations.

At first glance the argument is arresting. Analyzed, however, it falls apart. Here is the glaring fault—while admitting that carriers are vulnerable to the atom bomb, it fails to offer any solution to this problem. Instead, it sets up a straw man to knock down—stating that Air Force bases on foreign soil are even more vulnerable than the carrier to atom bomb attack and therefore that the Navy carrier rather than the Air Force bomber should get the defense dollar. However, unlike the problem of the complete vulnerability of the carrier to the atom bomb—for which the Navy apologist fails to offer a solution—there is an obvious and complete answer to the Navy's "straw man."

The answer is simply this: In the 5 to 10 years necessary to design and build a jet bomber large enough to carry the atom bomb and also able to take off and land on the deck of a carrier—assuming a jet plane of such size could ever be designed capable of accomplishing what even a small jet fighter plane is able to do only under perfect conditions and assisted by catapults—the Air Force will have a long-range heavy jet bomber with the range and speed necessary to deliver an atom bomb effectively anywhere, without the need for foreign bases vulnerable to atom bomb attack.

The Air Force has long-range heavy jet bombers, such as the Boeing B-47, already flying. The Navy has no jet bombers. Even if the Navy had a jet bomber large enough to carry an atom bomb and still able to operate from a carrier large enough to handle it (yet to be built), we come back to the fatal vulnerability of that carrier not only to the atom bomb, but also to the conventional submarine. In its anxiety to "get in the act," the Navy should not allow itself to forget so soon the fate of the Wasp, the Hornet, the Lexington, the Yorktown, nor the foreign submarines which it so conveniently "discovers" at appropriation time.

Dupont Circle Building

I would very much regret should this slight correction of The Washington Post's Dupont Circle Building story of March 30, detract in any way from the position that was maintained by the lady featured in the article.

It happened, however, that the undersigned maintained his real estate office in this building until November 1, 1941, when he voluntarily left the building because it was no longer suitable for conducting the kind of real estate sales engaged in.

While it took some effort to arrive at an understanding as to my rights in the matter, I must say when this was finally reached the courtesy extended was noteworthy, even to the extent of maintaining telephone switchboard service for the convenience of my office.

For the belated information of the many tenants who were forced to give possession within the 9-day deadline, to my knowledge two full floors, the second and third, with the exception of my office, were held vacant for nearly three months from the time that the evictions had been completed.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Behind The Jitters

WHAT IS happening in Berlin today was clearly foreshadowed by a highly secret report sent some weeks ago by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who is the man on the spot in the present grave peril. In fact, it was Clay's report which precipitated President Truman's call for the draft and the other moves aimed at altering this country.

Part of the report, with its forecast of a shadow that might mean war, was communicated to the Senate Armed Services Committee. It brought about a long and solemn discussion that got down finally to what policy should be followed with respect to the families of American soldiers and civilians stationed in Berlin.

The fear of "another Bataan" was frankly expressed as the possible fate of the Americans on the lonely island of Berlin was debated. General Clay was urging that nothing be done to upset the precarious balance inside Germany.

He knew the effect on the jittery German population of an order evacuating American wives and children. The repercussions would spread throughout Europe.

This is a real threat to the American position. But a parallel threat is the danger of war hysteria in the United States which would express itself, not in a firm resolve to be strong, but in senseless jitters. An example is the report of a recent incident in the Middle West in which the house of an alleged Communist was attacked by a mob and destroyed.

HOW TO STRIKE a balance between what to tell and what not to tell is one of the problems most troubling to those who are trying to formulate policy. They quote James L. Reston of the New York Times, who said about Congress: "If you tell them too little they go fishin', and if you tell them too much they go crazy."

The present tendency is to hold back in the belief that any further warnings will produce more jitters rather than more action. For most of us living several thousand miles away from the continent of Europe, it is difficult to realize the fearful realities of the present moment.

But those who live on the ramparts have few illusions. A recent report from France gives this a fateful emphasis. The present government represents a heroic effort to steer a middle course between the extremes of communism and De Gaulleism. Within this embattled government it is clearly realized there could be no resistance to Russian armies of invasion.

The most highly trained French troops—perhaps 150,000—are in French Indo-China trying stubbornly to put down a revolt in that tragic colony. Any attempt to resist an invading Soviet army would in all probability precipitate a sort of civil war within France.

THAT IS WHY the approach of an invading army, in the event of war between Russia and the United States, would be likely to bring the following sequence of events. The present middle-course government would resign, to be followed by an all-Communist government.

The new government would ruthlessly suppress any attempt at opposition. It would welcome in the Soviet troops as defenders of a "free" Europe from the threat of "imperialistic" America. Clearly the possibility of a large organized resistance movement such as functioned in France throughout the last war, cooperating with British and American agents, would be remote.

That is why French leaders of the middle course are putting a question that comes to visiting Americans like a dash of ice water. Has the time come to form the basis of a government-in-exile which could be removed at the first threat either to London or to Washington?

The startled American in turn puts a question. He asks: But what can we do to prevent such a catastrophe? And the response comes: Do you have a million and a half or two million trained troops that you could send immediately to western Europe?

That last hardly takes an answer. The state of our unpreparedness in trained manpower is advertised daily. The Russians have exact information on the situation inside France.

They might well believe that by moving now they could consolidate western Europe, with its 270 million people and its great resources of industry and science. That is the threat in the grim testing of force taking place on the island of Berlin. And meanwhile we are in the middle of a coal strike that the law may be unable to end, and Congress passes a tax reduction bill.

Daylight Saving

You have repeatedly in your editorials stated that the majority of people interviewed in the District favor daylight saving time. Wouldn't the fairest way to handle this situation be to allow the Federal employes to have a voice in this action, since more Federal employes are affected than any others?

The only people to whom I have talked who favor daylight saving time are young unmarried people with no responsibilities, or young married people who shift their responsibilities to their relatives, mostly their mothers. The large majority of people who dread returning to daylight saving time consists of war widows who are doing a dual job of trying to rear their children and holding down office jobs.

Today And Tomorrow

Acid Test In Italy

THE ITALIAN elections are providing as conclusive a practical test as we are likely to get of a fundamental question, which is much in dispute among students of the Communist movement. The question is whether the Communists can rule any European nation without the support of the Red Army.

Lippmann

FOR 30 years, during the whole time in which the Communist movement has been an active force, no country has ever been subjugated by the Communists unless the Russian army was able to intervene decisively. After the first World War local Communists seized power in Hungary, in parts of Germany, in northern Italy, and in various other scattered places. They were soon overthrown. The Soviet Union was unable to give them military support, and the native Communists plus the Russian agents were unable to hold power against the nationalist forces and the national armies.

In the interval between the two wars, western Europe remained democratic and capitalistic, central and eastern Europe, with the exception of the Czechoslovak democracy, were authoritarian or Fascist. But no European country, however dislocated and impoverished, went Communist.

AFTER the second World War the Red Army advanced to the center of Europe. All the countries behind it, and enveloped by it, have been brought under Communist domination. But as yet no European country has gone Communist which was not occupied or surrounded by the Red Army.

Italy is, therefore, a crucial test as to whether or not the limits of Communist expansion in Europe (the backward parts of Asia may present a different problem) are the boundaries of the Red Army. For Italy is not occupied like Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, or surrounded like Poland and Czechoslovakia, or dominated strategically like Yugoslavia and Finland. Italy is, on the contrary, within the military orbit of the west.

If, then, the Italian nation and the Italian government surrender to Communist rule, Italy will be the first country where the Communist fifth column alone, separated from the four columns of the Red Army, has ever captured a modern state.

THE OUTCOME in Italy will, therefore, demonstrate whether or not the Kremlin can win the mastery of Europe by waging a cold war. I am one of those who have thought they could not, that in any European country not within the orbit of the Red Army and not threatened by invasion, the national forces would prove to be stronger than the Communist fifth column. Relying on the protection of the non-Communist world, they would be able to mobilize their strength to resist, and then to subdue, the local Communist forces.

Italy is the proving ground as to whether this hypothesis, drawn from the experience of 30 years, is true.

WE SHALL see what we shall see. Though the indications from Italy are not unfavorable to the hypothesis, we must wait for the results. But this much may be said now: all the main contenders in the Italian election, inside the country and outside, have recognized that the crucial and determined factor in the voting is where the decisive military power actually is.

The Communists cannot hope to win by persuading the Italian nation that a Communist government in alliance with Russia and, in opposition to the West can give them peace, security, and plenty. Only a minority, a fairly considerable minority but still only a minority, believe that. This minority can hope to become a decisive majority only by intimidating a very large part of the Italian people, by making them believe that Togliatti and his men may come into power, that Russia and its Yugoslav satellite may intervene to put them in power and keep them in power, and that then the anti-Communists will be persecuted.

By the same token the prospects of the Gasperi coalition depend on proving to the wavering mass, that it is safe for them to rally to the non-Communist side. That is the purpose of the show of military force in Rome, Florence, and Milan. That is the purpose of our own show of force in the Mediterranean. And no doubt it was at least in part the purpose of the Russian maneuver in Berlin to neutralize these assurances: to create a sense of insecurity among those who are timid, intimidated, and time-serving, that if they do not support or submit to the Italian Communists the Russians will in the end get them.

MUCH, perhaps the whole issue of war or peace, depends on whether Italy shows that communism cannot expand by a cold war. If communism can expand by waging a cold war, then it will mean, I am afraid, that we are in an era of endless civil strife which cannot be concluded by diplomacy. It will mean that the nature of the conflict is such that constitutional governments cannot deal with it by any of the measures which have hitherto regulated international affairs.

But if it is demonstrated that limits of Communist expansion are the limits of the Red Army, then the great conflict may still be soluble by redressing the balance of power in order to negotiate a diplomatic settlement. For then we shall know that though the Communist movement is formidable, it is not, divorced from Russian military power, decisive. Our fundamental problem will be clarified; it will be to see to it that the Russian army does not advance, and that in the end, by pressure and compromise, it recedes.

Elba Frontier

By Sumner Welles

Retaining The German Mind

GENERAL CLAY tells us that we have established on the Elbe River a frontier for western thinking and western philosophy.

The mounting crisis in Europe has necessarily caused the abandonment of the plan for the establishment of a civilian administration in our occupation zone in Germany. But the consequent continuation of United States military government raises the question of what progress we may now expect in the inculcation in the German mentality of our kind of thinking and our form of political philosophy.

American military government has so far failed in its propaganda. By its failure to carry out any effective and democratic reconstruction of schools and universities, the German youth, whose minds were poisoned by the Nazi doctrines, have had only a scant opportunity to learn for themselves why freedom is preferable to the police state. It has failed to provide adequate facilities for adult education. It has failed to make available to the inhabitants of western Germany full and objective news of what is going on in the rest of the world.

Most Germans in the western zones will tell you privately that democracy is responsible for their present misery. They have not been made to realize that it is American democracy that is saving them from starvation.

THE MILITARY government is getting ready to remedy its former fiasco in propaganda by preparing for an all-out campaign to tell the Germans what the European Recovery Program will do for them.

Leaders of the Christian Democrats and of the Social Democratic Party are to accompany the delegates of the military government to the forthcoming Paris economic conference. ERP operations during the first year are expected to bring imports valued at two billion dollars into the bizonal area and to result in three quarters of a billion dollars' worth of exports. If the practical benefits that western Germany will derive from the recovery program can be brought home to the individual German, the continuing inroads of communism will be at least temporarily checked.

Helpful as economic improvement and the effects of an efficient publicity campaign can prove to be, they will only solve a part of the problem.

The existing division between west and east may continue indefinitely. It is imperative that some means be found to remedy the failure of the military government in the fields of education and of political reconstruction. The short-range objective is to counteract Soviet influence. The long-range objective should be to prepare the way for the conversion of the German spirit so that the Germans west of the Elbe may become safe members of the European community.

UNDER present circumstances a large part of the arrangements for the civil administration of Germany must properly be under military control. But the American military authorities are not fitted by training, knowledge or inclination for the formulation of an educational or political program.

Is not this the moment when Washington should call upon private individuals and organizations to help in framing a long-range program for German political reconstruction and German education, and to take part in supervising its execution?

The Germans in the western zone feel isolated. Freedom of information is as yet unknown. Except in relief work there is no close relationship between the German religious groups and those of the west. A few American labor leaders have been permitted to do some effective work, but far more remains to be done if the German trade unions are to reject Communist domination.

And while if German democracy is to be more than a fiction it must be the outgrowth of German initiative and represent an authentic German aspiration, surely much good could come from frequent visits to Germany by outstanding leaders of the major political parties of the United States as well as of western Europe and by a continuing contact between them and German democrats.

WERE THE Administration to establish as an advisory council on German policy a committee composed of representatives of the American press associations, of the American publishers and editors, of such religious bodies as the Federal Council of Churches and the National Catholic Welfare Conference, of American labor, and of spokesmen for the two great political parties, an enlightened and constructive long-range policy could soon be formulated.

If the determination and control of our educational and political program in Germany continues to be left in the hands of the military, the results will be as sterile as they have been until now. There would then be scant hope for that rebirth of Germany which is essential to the future peace of the world.

J. C. Frémont

Fremont Bestowed the Name GOLDEN GATE Upon the Entrance to San Francisco Harbor

While preparing his third famous expedition at the outpost city of St. Louis in June of 1845, JOHN C. FREMONT, noted explorer, scientist, soldier and statesman, requested Corcoran & Riggs to honor his draft for $6,000 in payment of supplies.

With Kit Carson as guide, this expedition reached the Pacific Coast and played an important part in bringing California into the Union. Frémont returned in 1850 as one of the State's first two Senators and subsequently became presidential candidate of the newly-formed Republican party.

Thus at an early date did the banking firm of Corcoran & Riggs reach "hands across the continent".

Since that time the RIGGS check has traveled to the ends of the earth, carrying with it the name and fame of Washington's Great Historic Bank. Today many thousands of depositors find it easier to advance their financial affairs—at home or abroad—by the use of that time-honored banking instrument.

Public Health Post Assumed By Scheele

Dr. Leonard A. Scheele stepped up yesterday from director of the National Cancer Institute to Surgeon General of United States Public Health Service.

He succeeded Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general for the past 12 years, who by special legislation, retains his present rank of major general in this quasi-military arm of Government service.

General Parran becomes assistant surgeon general of USPHS and will serve as United States representative on the Interim Commission of the World Health Organization and on "other assignments in connection with international health problems."

Oath of office was administered to Dr. Scheele at the Federal Security bldg., by Dr. Lewis Ryles Thompson, former assistant surgeon general who retired in 1936 after 36 years active service with USPHS.

In taking over, Dr. Scheele said he foresaw no drastic changes in the service's work, but said emphasis was shifting further to "new problems relating to health of an older population."

Geriatrics, the division of medicine concerned with old age and its diseases, "will receive more and more attention of USPHS," he said.

Prince Georges Grand Jury to Have 125 Cases

The April term Prince Georges County Grand Jury yesterday began study of approximately 125 cases prepared for it by State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie.

The jury, as it began its duties, was apprised by Chief Judge William M. Loker of its prerogatives as an inquisitorial body. The judge, in his charge, however, mentioned no specific conditions he felt needing investigation.

On the bench with the chief judge as the Circuit Court's new term opened at Upper Marlboro was Associate Charles C. Murphy.

3 Women On Jury

The new grand jury includes three women, and Judge Loker made special mention that it was the first time he had ever charged a grand jury containing women.

Members of the grand jury yesterday visited the county jail from which several prisoners have escaped in the past few weeks and several other county institutions. Three cases involving escapes from the jail are among these to be presented to the 23-member body.

Cases prepared for presentment included one manslaughter case, 21 aggravated assaults, 7 burglaries, 2 housebreakings, 12 storehousebreakings, 4 larcenies, 6 automobile larcenies, 9 forgeries, 9 false pretenses, 14 nonsupport, 3 escape from jail and 10 miscellaneous cases. Approximately 25 cases have been added to the list in the past few days.

Members listed

Members of the grand jury are:

C. Norris Hartman, Suitland grocer, foreman; Mrs. Eleanor R. Hirsh, 6707 C st., Seat Pleasant; Mrs. Josephine P. Starr, 6208 43d ave., Fairtaville; Mrs. Louise H. Peach, Mitchellville; William S. Wise, Alton B. Truman, Grover C. Erby, John L. Baumann, Paul E. Auth, W. Eugene Radcliffe, Hanson D. Powers, Howard I. Beall, jr., John D. Smith, Emory Fowler, Holie L. Watts, William Chapman, Grover Scott, Arthur A. Duvall, William A. Bob, DeSales Herbert, William Reed, Frank Greco and Robert C. Kraft.

George B. Harding, Edna B. Cross, Raymond Orcutt, Anna E. F. Allen, Joseph Pinkney, Andrew R. Gill, Ruth C. Young, George E. Weed, James P. Ronchi, Frank E. Ward, J. F. Maupin, Lawrence Henry, Robert Bolee, Hinman Robey, Grace Bryant, Anna Buck, Arthur Rawlings, William N. Eller, Carl Peterson, Frank J. Baumann, sr., William A. Davis, Bessie Tolson, Paul Holliday, Harry W. Scaggs.

The second week's petit jury, to start Monday, includes:

Omer W. Clemons, Blanche N. Hamilton, Raymond E. Young, Leigh Keech, Sydney C. Richards, Bert Ayton, J. Francis Dyson, Louis M. Koehler, William Van Horn, R. Harford Mikell, Irving Norfolk, William Hall, Richard I. Quander, Walter Kincaid, Carl Nagel, Anna Bagleman, Frank L. Dyer, Alonzo C. Gross, Anna E. McEntee, Eleanor M. Smoke Abating Program Filed By D. C. Terminal

The Washington Terminal Co., operators of Union Station, yesterday submitted a program for smoke abatement to the District Commissioners which called for operation of an increasing number of Diesel locomotives.

The firm was fined $400 in February after the city launched a crackdown on smoke law violators. Daily prosecution was theatened unless the company submitted a program of proposed changes.

In a letter to Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, engineer commissioner, the firm's manager, B. R. Tolson, listed steps which have been taken or are planned.

General Young praised the program as a "step in the right direction," but warned that "constant vigilance" to curb smoke and fly-ash violations resulting from servicing of coal-fired engines of other railroads is necessary to avert further prosecution.

Rep. Burr Harrison Undergoes Operation

Representative Burr P. Harrison (D., Va.) yesterday underwent an operation for an intestinal infection at Doctors Hospital here.

His office reported his condition was satisfactory, but said it probably would be six weeks or two months before he would be able to return to work. Harrison had planned to undergo the operation in Winchester next week, but his condition became worse and required an immediate operation, his office added.

One on the Aisle—

Coup for Olney In Helen Hayes

By Richard L. Coe

THE CROWDED CRYSTAL BALL: Helen Hayes will open the Olney Theater season . . . This is quite a coup for the Olney . . . Miss Hayes will do James M. Barrie's "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire" with her daughter, Mary MacArthur, who will act her daughter in the play . . . The celebrated mother-daughter team will play 11 performances at Olney beginning Friday night, May 28 . . . The Hayes supporting cast will be much the same as that which appeared with her last season in several New England summer theaters, with John Williams as her leading man and Patricia Kirkland, daughter of Nancy Carroll and Jack Kirkland . . . As for the Olney itself, these days are seeing great activity out there . . . The theater's been enlarged to 576 seats on an inclined floor which will guarantee good sight lines from all sections of the house . . . The stage has been completely rebuilt and its depth will be greater than that of any New York theater except the Metropolitan Opera . . . This means that Olney's plays can be as production-heavy as the writers demand; previously, picking the plays has had to take into consideration the physical limitations of one set, or, as in the case of last summer's "Dream Girl," plotting of vast ingenuity . . . As if the country air weren't enough, the house also will be air-cooled . . .

Miss Hayes, who recently closed her run in "Happy Birthday," says she's tickled at the prospect of once again playing to Washington audiences . . . She has no intention, she says of playing the National "under present circumstances."

MARY MARTIN'S company of "Annie Get Your Gun" is in Richmond this week, and out-of-town ticket marm, Mary Elizabeth Stabler, at Lanseair, 1616 K st., is trying to work out a busload for Saturday afternoon's performance. . . . If you're interested call her at National 6750 . . . Miss Martin, by the way, has just turned down New York's invitation to take over during Ethel Merman's six-week vacation . . . Both the Annies, it seems, want to spend some time with their youngsters.

GRETA GARBO'S going to make another picture . . . This good news, after a seven-year dearth of Garbo films, means that Greta the Great will play George Sand in a new screen play about the French literary lady . . . Do you suppose it's needless to worry about how Sir Alexander Korda will treat the lady who cropped up as quite a babe in the person of Merle Oberon in "A Song to Remember"? . . . It's not yet set where the film will be made.

JUDITH ANDERSON is saying goodby to "Medea" May 29 . . . There's been a tiff between the star and the management (Robert Whitehead and Oliver Rea) and she has turned down their request that she stay beyond her contract limit (May 31) to play a few weeks in Baltimore and Washington . . . Efforts are afoot to find someone to do "Medea" next season, but so emphatic has the publicity been in favor of Miss Anderson's histrionics that the cards would be stacked against any actress following Anderson in the part . . . One hears that somewhere at the bottom of this is a question of the almighty dollar.

THINGS ARE HUMMING on the Connie B. Gay front, where the hayseed impresario has plotted a big do for Roy Acuff and his Smoky Mountain Boys Friday night at Constitution Hall . . . Gay boasts that this one will rival last fall's visit to the colonial purlieus of the Grand Ole Opry . . . Seats now at Campbell's, Irvin's Sport Shop and the Clyde Moody Record Shop.

THE METROPOLITAN has been consulting its astrological calendar to assure the right stars for the showing of "The Sign of the Ram." . . . The sign of the ram, if you don't know, is for persons born between March 21 and April 20 . . . Which, makes Thursday's opening of the Margaret Ferguson novel right by the zodiac . . . Doris Lloyd of the National's "An Inspector Calls," was remarking yesterday on how a good part of her chores for Columbia on that one were to be certain the international cast gave out with more or less the same version of English.

CECIL B. DeMILLE has just retraced Gary Cooper's "Unconquered" journey . . . He came in by train yesterday from Pittsburgh and found the Cumberland Valley trip beautiful as ever . . . This week he'll be paying some visits to the Hill, where his views will interest members of the House Labor Committee in particular . . . He's staying through Saturday night's Gridiron Dinner, where he'll be a guest of that illustrious band . . . We asked him if the Mayflower bathtubs were to his liking and he replied they were; that, as a matter of fact, people are always disappointed in his own bathtubs . . . Seems that visitors to the DeMille home always lure his wife to take them on a tour of the house, expecting to find Lucullan tubs and lavender soap . . . Professionally, the DeMille touch leads to the erotic in plumbing; personally, he's even as you and I, a trifle frightened of the extraordinary.

Montgomery Taxi Permit Drive Begun

A crackdown was begun yesterday on Montgomery County cab drivers who failed to apply for hacker permits.

Eight drivers and operators were charged with violating the county taxi cab ordinance in warrants sworn by Hack Inspector Charles H. Carter.

Samuel Carr, Bethesda police court clerk, said the cases had been set for hearing Monday at 9:30 a. m.

The taxicab ordinance has been opposed by a segment of the county's 250 drivers, enforcement has been delayed because of litigation now pending which attacks the constitutionality of the ordinance.

Dick Miles Retains Table Tennis Title

Columbus, Ohio, April 5 (AP).—Dick Miles of New York City successfully defended his national table tennis singles championship Sunday night, defeating a fellow New Yorker, Marty Riesman, 21-12, 16-21, 22-20, 16-21 and 22-20. Peggy McLean of Hollis, N. Y., was crowned women's champion by outlasting Reba Monness of New York City, 21-11, 12-21, 21-13, 21-14.

FRANK CAPRA, who arrived in town yesterday, is here for Wednesday night's preview of "State of the Union." This all-invitational affair at the Capitol is being sponsored by the White House Correspondents Association. Capra produced and directed the Crouse-Lindsay Pulitzer Prize winner with a screen cast that includes Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, Van Johnson, Adolphe Menjou and Angela Lansbury. It will be shown at the Palace this month

"Merci! Mr. McCarten" for your magnificent review in THE NEW YORKER"
Great Fun from France
IT'S been a long, long time since any picture has made me laugh as much as "Volpone," a French film that does complete justice to Ben Jonson's play about an antic miser. The screen adaptation, by Jules Romains and Stefan Zweig, takes a number of liberties with the Master's work, but all of them point up the comic nature of his ideas, and I'm sure that Jonson would have approved of every one of them. The piece has the sort of free-wheeling, slapstick air that used to characterize movie comedies in the days before they became articulate and began to substitute dull dialogue for pantomime.
There is also plenty of straightforward ribaldry, and a marvellous grab-bag style about the costumes, which look as if all hands had let their sartorial imagination run wild at a rummage sale. As the miser who pretends to be dying just to see how his pals will act, Harry Baur (whose own death is not the least of the crimes the Nazis are accountable for) is the most satisfactory Volpone you ever laid your eyes on, and it is embarrassing to think that there isn't a movie actor in America who could stay within range of the same camera with him and not be reduced to inconsequentiality. The cast that romps through "Volpone" with M. Baur, however, is worthy of him. The fine French talent for making each character in a film an unmistakable individual is almost everywhere apparent; in fact, only Fernand Ledoux, as Corvino, the gentleman who offers his wife to Volpone to ensure a mention in his will, merits a bit of censure, since his performance isn't quite up to the standards of the company he keeps. I could, I suppose, describe all kinds of scenes that might amuse you, but I'll confine myself to mentioning a trial in which a supposed invalid is accused of rape and a policeman is wonderfully droll in his inability to understand why anyone should shout about a seduction in Venice. Well, altogether, "Volpone" is hilarious and you certainly ought to see it. Besides M. Baur, the picture prominently displays Louis Jouvet, who plays Mosca with enormous dash, Jean Temerson (Voltore), Charles Dullin (Corbaccio), and a pair of handsome ladies named Marion Dorian and Jacqueline Delubac.

Alexandria Woman Dies in Home Blaze

Charred Body Found By Firemen After Neighbor's Call

An Alexandria woman was burned to death in her home yesterday, apparently when a couch on which she was sitting caught fire.

She was Mrs. Beulah G. Lester, 40, 20 W. Maple ave., whose charred body was found by firemen after a neighbor noticed smoke seeping out of the closed house.

Mrs. Lester

Seriously injured in another fire yesterday was 18-year-old Marian Holmes, 48 S st. sw, who was admitted to Casualty Hospital with second- and third-degree burns to the lower part of her body after a gas stove explosion at her home about 7 a. m.

Her mother, Mrs. Irene Holmes, 30, was treated for slight burns suffered when she tried to put out the girl's burning clothes.

Exact cause of the Alexandria fire had not been determined last night, but police conjectured Mrs. Lester had lit a cigarette and then had either fainted or dozed off while sitting on the couch.

Her husband, Virginia State Trooper Richard H. Lester said his wife had complained of feeling dizzy when he left for work in the morning. He said he had returned to the house on business about 11:30 a. m. and found her still in bed.

Fire Chief Bernard J. Padgett said the doors were locked and windows closed when firemen arrived at the smoke-filled house. Without any draft, the fire might have been smouldering as long as two hours, he said. Damage to the room was confined to the couch, the floor and wall nearby.

Subpena Evasion

Woman Gets $75 Fine On Contempt

Charged with criminal contempt for evading a subpena, Mrs. Mary Thompson, 48, of 1744 Q st. nw., yesterday was fined $75 in District Court and narrowly escaped a jail sentence.

Mrs. Thompson had been summoned to appear as a witness in the recent abortion trial which brought the acquittal of Attorney James J. Laughlin and Dr. Henry L. Peckham.

In fining her, Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws declared, "I am going to back up my marshals when they are serving subpenas." He indicated that if not for her age, nervousness and fearfulness of court proceedings, he might have sent her to jail.

A former landlady of Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, key witness in the trial of Laughlin and Dr. Peckham, Mrs. Thompson was alleged to have refused to make her presence known to a United States marshal and to have failed to come to court after learning a subpena was out for her.

Deputy Marshal Alexander Hare said she admitted him to her home, but told him Mrs. Thompson was not in. Mrs. Thompson testified yesterday that she was told by someone in Laughlin's office that she would be called if needed, and that she finally did make her presence known to the marshal.

Mrs. Thompson yesterday was released in $150 bond pending appeal of the contempt charge. Attorney Laughlin, who had summoned her to the trial in the first place when he was helping in his own defense, represented her yesterday.

Indictment Lays $66,000 Swindle to 3

A Pennsylvania construction man was swindled out of $66,000 here when he tried to buy a power shovel and crane, the District grand jury charged in an indictment returned yesterday.

Indicted for false pretense in the shovel deal are Anthony J. Forte, 36, who lives in a suite at the Willard Hotel; Dominic S. Fago, 40, of Buffalo and Jack Quigley, 47, of Pittsburgh. The complainant is Durward C. Penoyer of Biegler, Clearfield County, Pa.

Penoyer told police that Forte was represented as having clear title to the apparatus which was shown in operation at the Viers Mill Village housing development. On January 6, according to the indictment, Penoyer paid Forte a $66,000 check and went back home to wait for his power shovel.

The next day, according to the charge, the defendants flew up to Biegler and said they were unable to cash the check. Penoyer had it certified at his bank.

When the shovel and crane failed to arrive, Penoyer flew down here for an explanation. He was told the shovel would soon be available and was given a $5000 check to cover a month's rental of the shovel. Penoyer said the check proved worthless.

In another case, a 25-year-old woman cashier and her husband were charged with 25 counts of embezzlement in allegedly taking $9750 fro mthe Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., Woodward Building. The cashier, Mrs. Mary Lillie Thompson, 25, of 4800 N. Fairfax dr., Arlington, told police most of the money was spent in betting on horses at Laurel, Bowie and Pimlico race tracks. Her husband is Charles D. Thompson, 30.

Marshal P. Fletcher, 54, a former Army lieutenant colonel, of 3511 Davenport st. nw., was charged with fraudulently accepting $1200 from the Federal Government. Fletcher, according to the indictment, accepted the money for salary and maintenance after he had been retired. Fletcher told authorities he did not believe he had been retired formally.

A first-degree murder indictment was returned against Sylvester T. Greene, 37, of 412 I st. nw. He is charged with crushing the head of Frank W. Howard, 55, of 1435 9th st. nw., with a two-foot long pinch bar on February 25.

Howard Hicks, 23, of 1122 7th st. nw., was charged with perjury in allegedly falsely swearing to a robbery warrant for a man with whom he had a fight over a woman.

Four men were charged with rape, robbery and carrying a deadly weapon, in an assault on a woman in a truck here on March 14. Named are Aaron F. Rodgers, 22, of 247 W st. nw.; Sylvester Vaughn, 20, of 307 Lowrie pl. ne.; John H. Sistare, 26, of 1826 Frederick pl. se., and Leon R. Newton, 20, of 520 Alexandria pl. ne.

Two men were charged with robbery in the December 19 payroll holdup of the Rufus H. Darby Printing Co., Inc., when $8500 was taken, according to the indictment. Charged are Mack Wilson Fierst, 40, and Robert S. Melton, 40, both in custody of police.

On Tuberculosis

X-Ray Check Proposed for All Patients

X-rays for tuberculosis of all patients admitted to hospitals for any cause was recommended here last night by Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, District tuberculosis chief.

If for no other purpose, said Dr. Coulter, such routine X-ray examinations should be made "to safeguard our nurses."

Dr. Coulter spoke before the area Graduate Nurses Association, private duty section, in special meeting last night in the auditorium of the District Medical Society, 1718 M st. nw.

Until five years ago, Dr. Coulter said many of the District's nursing schools did not X-ray their students at any time during their entire three years of study and training. Today he said, "though the situation is far from ideal," students nurses are being given chest X-rays examinations "fairly regularly."

Terming tuberculosis an especial occupational hazard of nursing, he advised all nurses to be X-rayed once annually; nurses in general practice to be examined semi-annually, and nurses treating tubercular patients to be X-rayed every three months.

Chief of the tuberculosis division of the District Health Department, Dr. Coulter debunked many practices and "undue fears" associated with the spread of the disease.

Isolation of tubercular patients in hospitals is not necessary, he said, "if proper nursing and medical techniques are being followed." All the nurses and doctors need to know to prevent the spread of the disease is that the patient under their care has tuberculosis, he added.

Coal Miners Fail To Resume Work

Norton, Va., April 5 (AP).—Southwest Virginia coal mines continued idle today as the area's 15,000 miners apparently failed to heed a court order to go back to work.

Three operators' associations listed at least 52 major mines still down, and there was no reported instance of a mine resuming production.

The Norfolk & Western Railway said it had not received any reports of miners returning late in the afternoon for work on the night shift.

President William F. Minton of UMW District 28 said yesterday he did not order the men to return, and added that "no one, unless the miners themselves" could say whether they would.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., April 5.—Connie Mack is very happy about his pitching staff and slightly distraught about his first baseman. He doesn't quite know what to make of Ferris Fain, the whiz kid from the Pacific Coast League, who had the distinction of leading the American League in fan mail last season.

POVICH

Young Mr. Fain set Philadelphia on its collective ear last season with his wonderful antics that included a respectable .292 batting average, a mess of sensational plays around first base, and his hollering at everybody, in a nice way.

He was so efficient for the Athletics that Mr. Mack late in the season took cognizance of his value by saying of Fain and Eddie Joost, his shortstop, that "they are my ball team." By that time it was dawning on the other league clubs that the A's had, indeed, come up with a potent sort of rookie in Fain, whose presence was more helpful than liver injections to a dead-fish Philadelphia club.

MACK WAS AWARE that Fain was a fun-loving sort. He had seen him on the overnight train jumps when Fain entertained the A's with his ability to squirt water the length of a Pullman car through as fine a pair of split front teeth as ever came into the big leagues. Hose Co. No. 1 at its best, couldn't throw as long a stream as young Fain when he was in condition, the A's declare.

But Mack has been distressed all spring by the young fellow, at a time when he is disappointed in the performance of Rudy York who was hired to fill in for Fain after a recent knee operation. Fain hasn't swung a bat or thrown a ball for the A's yet this year. It's doubtful if he will be in the opening line-up. Fain wasn't content with one operation on his knee this year. At the end of the season, he had a hunk of cartilage removed at Johns Hopkins, and Mack thought he was set for 1948.

He refused to sign a contract in January, and when Mack agreed to his terms a bit later, Fain signed and then without notice to Mack underwent a second knee operation for some stray chips, in California. The doctors counseled him not to set foot on the ground until late March, and now he's in the A's troupe north, a doubtful starter in the opening game.

HE WAS ONE of the outstanding rookies of 1947, but the Macks came up with him quite by accident. Fain had a big year with the San Francisco club in 1946, and Manager Lefty O'Doul thought he had arrangements with the New York Giants to draft another man off the Frisco club—an account pitcher, so that Fain might be eliminated from the draft under the rule preventing more than one player from being drafted.

The Giants crossed up O'Doul, though, when they learned they could draft Jack Lohrke, the third baseman, from another Coast league club. Fain was thus exposed to the draft and the A's, by reason of finishing last in 1946, and having first choice, quickly grabbed up Fain. He was the last player to be claimed at the $7500 figure before the draft price went up to $10,000.

Fain got in a scrape with Eddie Pellagrini, the Red Sox shortstop, last summer and was set down for 10 days for taking a punch at Pellagrini. He claimed that Pelly gave him the hip while he was rounding third base. Asked why he went to the extremes of punching the Red Sox infielder, he said blandly, "I was so mad I couldn't talk, so I punched him."

THE FACT THAT Fain is slightly hot headed was well known before he came into the majors. He had a fight with Gerry Priddy when they were both playing in the service in Honolulu. It was a beaut. The players of both teams formed a circle, and they had it out to the finish.

His father was a jockey. Fain thinks he is Dutch, but he isn't sure. He's proud of his throwing arm, not only around first base, but otherwise. He was always undecided whether to be a pitcher or a first baseman. With the A's last summer, he was always sneaking off and pitching for any sandlot club that would have him.

The A's call him burrhead. That's because of his thick-curled hair. He's a good looking guy, and that explains most of his fan mail. On Ladies' Day at Shibe Park, he's immense. He's one reason the A's think they can finish in the first division.

Quart of Milk Per Day

Olympic Athletes Get Same Diet as British Workers

London, April 5 (AP).—Great Britain will serve up the comparatively sumptuous heavy industrial worker's ration to athletes competing in Olympic games this summer.

In some items the athletes will get more than double the allocation of the ordinary white-collar worker. They will drink two pints of milk a day, compared with the normal allowance of two-and-one-half pints a week.

The big food bonus was announced today by John Strachey, Minister of Food.

The special food rules will take effect on July 8 and continue for eight weeks.

Another special concession to athletes—more than 5000 of whom are expected from 58 competing nations—was to free any amount of food they care to import.

Current regulations limit to 25 pounds the amount of food that can be brought in by visitors.

All grocery shipments by Olympic teams must be consigned to the organizing committee, fourteenth Olympiad.

This will be the daily food allowance for athletes living in Olympic villages: six ounces of meat, half ounce of bacon, two ounces sugar, two ounces butter and lard, one ounce cheese, one ounce preserves, one pound bread, one and one half pounds potatoes, one-third ounce tea, one-tenth ounce dried egg.

In addition to these items, which are the same as the ration for the heavy industrial worker, Olympis menus will be augmented with two pints milk a day for each person and eight ounces of candey per week.

This fare can be compared with the normal citizens' weekly allotment of three ounces of candy, one-and-one-half ounces of cheese and three pounds of potatoes.

Haefner Has Good Day So Nats Win, 5-2

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., April 5.—Little Mickey Heafner, who was getting his bumps every time he poked his toeplate onto a pitching mound this spring, found the Minneapolis club more to his liking today and the Nats had a ball game.

They beat Minneapolis, farmhands of the Giants, 5 to 2, with Haefner and Tom Ferrick yielding up three hits to the minor leaguers, whose two runs bore the taint of Washington errors.

Hoefner, an alumnus of the Minneapolis club, had the novel experience today of turning in a good performance for the first time this year. He breezed through the first six innings, retired the first 12 men in a row, walked nobody, and gave up only two hits, with his curve ball acting nicely.

Nats Get 9 Hits

The Nats accumulated nine hits, but there was nothing exactly inspiring about their swatting. Half of their nine blows (that's a good trick) were mush singles over second base, which prompted the press vox comment that "they must be hitting the ball with the morning paper."

Eddie Yost's two bagger to center, the only extra-base swat of the afternoon, drove in the first Washington run, in the second inning off Rube Fischer, big right hander. It scored Tom McBride, who reached first on an error by Buddy Almendo at shortstop.

The Nats scooted three hits through the infield in the fourth to improve their lead to 3-0. A walk to Evans started it, and the runs scored on fuzzy singles by Haefner, Sullivan and Kozar.

Haefner Goe sGood

Minneapolis didn't get a hit off Haefner until Tom Ray singled in the fourth and it evolved as a run a bit later when Sullivan threw wild on Maguire's grounder and Bamberger produced a long fly.

The Millers got no more in that inning because Sherry Robertson whipped a sensational throw to the plate to nip Maguire who was trying to score on Babe Barna's fly to right.

Tom Ferrick pitched the last three innings, gave up only one hit but that one drove in a run in the seventh. It was a single by Chuck Gilbert that scored Dutch Meyer. A previous wild throw by Eddie Lyons put Meyer on second.

Tomorrow the Nats meet more minor league opposition, the Newark Bears, at Tinker Field.

Westchester Beats Navy

Annapolis, Md., April 5 (AP).—Southpaw Buck Jones pitched and batted West Chester (Pa.) State Teachers College to a 9-2 triumph over Navy today, scattering nine hits and smacking a triple and two singles.

The Pennsylvania pitcher drove in three runs. It was Navy's first loss in four games and gave West Chester a four-straight record.

Graziano on Spot

Commissioners Tell Rocky That If He Fails, They Fail

Speaking like wardens admonishing a parolee to tread the straight and narrow, two boxing officials yesterday warned Rocky Graziano there was room for nothing except his best effort in his fight with Sonny Horne here last night.

Pulling no punches in their admonition, President Abe Greene, of the National Boxing Association, and Chairman Harvey Miller, of the D. C. Boxing Commission, told the middleweight champ that "you and boxing are on a spot tonight; there can be nothing flukey, or nothing suspicious about your showing."

They told the titleholder, barred in Illinois and New York, they felt he would give the fight everything he had, but that they wanted to impress upon him the seriousness of his first ring appearance in over nine months.

"The D. C. Commission pioneered your return to boxing because we believe in sportsmanship and fair play," Miller said. "You must justify our faith in you with your best efforts, else you fall and we fall."

Speaking after Horne and Graziano had weighed in, Miller said the D. C. Commission felt that Graziano had paid his debt for going AWOL from the Army by serving 10 months at Leavenworth.

"But you and we are on a spot because we have licensed you to box here," Miller continued. "We did this in the face of much opposition because we believe you deserve the chance to prove that you want to do the right thing from now on. We don't believe you should be deprived of your right to make a living. We also believe championships are lost and won in the ring, not in courts."

Graziano, who weighed 160 against Horne's 161, listened attentively. After Miller and Greene had finished their warnings, directed mostly at Rocky, but also at Horne, the stern-faced Graziano thanked Miller and Greene politely and also the two other District commissioners, Police Inspector Clarence Talley and Thomas Morgan.

Greene was a surprise visitor. He was introduced by Miller to the gathering of newspapermen, fighters, managers, handlers, as the "man who has done as much as anybdoy for boxing." Miller had other words of praise for Greene, but nothing quite as lavish as the remarks Greene had for Miller.

"Colonel Miller has 38 years of honorable service in the Marines," Greene said, "and if he goes along with Graziano, then I'm in his corner. Colonel Miller knows boxing from the bottom up. He knows it as a fighter, manager, newspaperman, coach and commissioner. I respect his decisions."

Shut-ins Shut Out of Chance To Enjoy Fight

Many phone calls came to the sports desk of The Washington Post last night protesting the failure to broadcast or televise the Rocky Graziano-Sonny Horne fight at Uline Arena.

The following telegram also was received:

It was very disappointing to the shut-ins and those unable to attend the Rocky Graziano-Sonny Horne fight that the bout was NOT carried by television or radio.

Having a polio victim in my family, he reads every word of the sports section of The Washington Post and looks forward to sports events over his radio and television sets.

If this fight had been televised and/or broadcast, it would not have affected the paid attendance, and it would have given those unable to attend an opportunity to enjoy this much talked about event.

ARIS M. BACAS.

Editor's Note: Promoters of the Graziano-Horne fight rejected an offer of $2000 for broadcast rights because the prospective sponsor refused to withhold until 6 o'clock last night an announcement that the bout would go on the air. There were no plans for televising.

Quantico Defeats Duke by 8 to 5

Durham, N. C., April 5 (AP).—A strong Quantico Marine baseball team, winner of the all-Navy championship last season, handed the Duke University Blue Devils their fourth loss of the season here this afternoon by an 8 to 5 count.

The Marines, coached by Hap Spuhler, former Duke athlete, won the game with a three-run rally in the seventh inning.

You Think Carnera Is Big? Wait Until You See This Guy

NEW YORK, April 5 (U.P.).—America is being invaded again.

This time it's by a 24-year-old Irish wrestler, 7 inches taller than Primo Carnera and 20 pounds heavier.

His name is Jim Cully and at the moment he carries 280 pounds on a skyscraper framework that goes 7 feet 2 inches.

Besides wrestling, the Irish giant also wants to learn how to fight.

"I want to learn enough here," he said, "so I can go back to Ireland and win the championship of my country. Then I want to come back."

"I came over here as a wrestler," he said. "I'd have done anything to get here. There wasn't any opportunity for a big man to learn to fight over there."

Cully said a hammer thrower and part-time wrestler named Burt Healion discovered him at an Irish carnival.

"I wasn't a freak," Cully grinned. "In fact, I was the manager of the show. But once we had to get a tent up in a hurry and I helped some of the boys put up the 1200-pound center pole. Healion saw me lifting and wanted me as a wrestler."

What Healion saw was Cully hoisting one end of the pole and five other guys lifting the other. Now it's America's turn to watch.

Ben Padgett, Marshall Win AAU Openers

Boston, April 5.—Two District of Columbia amateurs, bantamweight Bennie Padgett and Eddie Marshall, a 160-pounder, survived the opening day's punching in the annual National AAU boxing championships in the Boston Garden here today.

Padgett had easy pickings in the perso nof elongated Darrell Ladd, of Dayton, Ohio, in the seventh fight on the initial card. Padgett took control at the opening bell and maintained command throughout the proceedings to claim a unanimous verdict.

There was nothing perfunctory, however, in the triumph of Eddie Marshall, who belted out Baltimore's Harvey Jones just as the bell closed the initial stanza.

Both Rush Out

As the bout opened both lads rushed from their corners like bulls and starting flailing for keeps. Both landed repeatedly with each hand, and the fans were loving it. Several seconds prior to the end of the frame, the heavily-muscled Marshall uncorked a left hook flush to the Baltimorean's jaw that floored him at the bell.

Jones' handlers dragged him to the corner and worked feverishly to bring him out of the fog, but he was too far gone to answer the second-round gong, thus giving Marshall a TKO victory.

The Washington team's first loss came in the 126-pound sector when Pat Thomas was kayoed by John Thompson of Buffalo, N. Y., a heavily-favored opponent.

The end came by a knockout at 1:57 of the third round after Thomas had carried the attack all the way.

Pvt. George (Pancho) Abarca, the Andrews Field lad, was the second Washington entry to fall by the wayside. Here again it was a case of too little experience as Abarca was decisioned by Honolulu's Chester Yasui, a semifinalist in the 1947 nationals, in a flyweight contest.

Four other Washington entrants, in addition to Abarca, drew byes into the second round. They were Lightweight Claude Lawrence, Gild Stewart, a welterweight; Holly Mims, a 160-pounder, and Heavyweight Eddie Grant.

Top Jumpers in Middleburg Races

Middleburg, Va., April 5 (Spl.).—Topflight steeplechase horses will compete at the Spring race meet of the Middleburg Hunt Race Association, which will be held Saturday, April 10, at the Glenwood Race Course, Middleburg.

Heading a program of six races, the Louie Leith Cup, a gruelling 4-mile timber race, will bring out the best timber-toppers in training for this 27th annual spring meet. Houseman, the 1946 winner, and a Maryland Hunt Cup hopeful of Middleburg's Chris Greer, jr., is expected to make his first appearance of the year in the classic.

Handball Champ An Easy Winner

Chicago, April 5 (AP).—Gus Lewis of Hollywood, Calif., impressively launched his title defense in the national AAU handball championships today, requiring only 18 minutes to eliminate Chicago's Bill Binger.

Lewis, who drew an opening round bye, crushed Binger in the second round, 21-4, 21-5.

Former Champion Angelo Trulio of New York reached the third round with a 21-12, 21-17 triumph over Oscar Penchef of Toledo, Ohio. Paul Turner, St. Paul, Minn., northwest singles titleholder, easily disposed of Phil Marks of New York, 21-14, 21-4, after byeing the first round.

Uline Fight Verdict Is Unanimous

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Rocky Graziano, world middleweight champion, last night took a unanimous 10-round decision over Sonny Horne, Valley Stream, Long Island, in their nontitle bout at Uline Arena. Only 6000 fans turned out for the affair which was expected to draw 8200.

There were no knockdowns. Graziano weighed 160, Horne 161.

ROUND ONE

Graziano came out and missed a wild right so far that he almost fell down. Horne stood up to the champion and boxed smartly. Graziano landed a left to the head, then a right to the body that sounded like a man hitting a sack. Horne was stung by a long right to the head. All that Horne could do was peck away. Horne's right eye was swollen. It was Graziano's round easily.

ROUND TWO

Graziano crossed a hard right to the head and missed an uppercut by a mile. Horne kept his left in Rocky's face. Graziano stung Horne with a left to the body. Horne landed two swinging lefts and two rights to the head and Rocky looked momentarily befuddled as they mixed feebly on the ropes. Horne rapped home a series of lefts at the bell. Horne's round by a narrow margin.

ROUND THREE

Graziano whistled an overhand right to the head. They stood off and pawed at each other. Graziano nailed Horne with a right that almost floored him. Another right cut Horne's right eye and it bled freely. Rocky missed and missed and missed again. Horne rallied and shot Rocky in the midriff at the bell. Graziano's round.

ROUND FOUR

Rocky landed another right on Horne's injured eye. The fans shouted for Graziano to "get him" as he speared Horne on the ropes, but Horne took it gamely. Horne stabbed home a number of lefts and Rocky managed to land one of a half dozen roundhouse swings. Another Graziano round.

FIFTH ROUND

Horne came out fast and met Rocky with two sharp hooks to the head. They traded long swats to the body. Both began to look a little tired, swinging wildly. Horne's left picks up a member of points and the round, the porrest so far.

SIXTH ROUND

Horne's right eye was badly swollen. They settled down to a sparring duel. Rocky landed a left and right but Horne came back hard, driving Rocky to the ropes. It was Rocky, however, who fought his way out. Rocky nearly raised Horne off his feet with a right to the chin but Horne refused to do down. Graziano's round.

SEVENTH ROUND

A full minute passed at long-range boxing. Rocky drove Horne back once they came together. Horne looked tired but Rocky couldn't nail him. Rocky landed a right to the jaw at the bell. It was another Graziano round with Horne's right eye in bad shape.

ROUND EIGHT

Graziano landed on Horne's bad eye again, then brought blood from Horne's left eye. Horne caught a right uppercut on the jaw, but Horne came back and stung Rocky. Graziano's right to the face staggered Horne but Sonny came back and carried the fight. Both were covered with blood from Horne's bleeding eyes. They traded punches right up to the bell. Graziano's round.

ROUND NINE

Graziano got his right home to the head and body but Horne lashed the Rock with three stinging lefts. Rocky was making the fight, doing the forcing. Horne stayed away, pecking with a long left. He stung Rocky with a right and left to the head and Rocky got mad, fighting back like a corner lot kid. Horne staggered Rocky with a right to the jaw and had the better of a hot exchange near the bell. It was Horne's round.

ROUND TEN

They shook hands and Horne shot a left to the body. Horne crossed Rocky with a sharp right to the jaw, then lande danother. Rocky came back with swinging hooks to the body and head, but it was Horne who again ogt in the sharper blows. Graziano brought blood from Horne's poor face again a sthey fell into a clinch at the bell. Graziano's round.

Sell Tribe? 'That's Crazy,' Says Veeck

Cleveland, April 5 (AP).—President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians today branded as "the craziest thing I've ever heard" a report he planned to sell his Cleveland stock to Hank Greenberg and acquire the St. Louis Brown.

Greenberg, former American league home run king, recently became the second largest stockholder in the Indians' organization. Veeck himself holds the biggest block of stock.

The report had Veeck moving the Browns to Los Angles with the Los Angles club going to Long Beach.

"You can say that I plan to be around Cleveland for quite a while," Veeck told a newsman.

McCarthy Has Fence-Busting Gang in Bosox

By Jack Hand

Sarasota, Fla., April 5 (AP).—Joe McCarthy opens a new regime at Boston with an old Yankee-type club that can wrap up a ball game with one big inning. Only doubtful pitching stands between this fence-busting gang and the American League championship.

Marse Joe, winner of nine pennants, is on the spot in Boston. If the Sox beat his old New York club for first place, they'll say Tom Yawkey bought the pennant. If they don't, Manager McCarthy probably will get the blame.

A lot depends on the pitchers. Joe Dobson, Jack Kramer, Mickey Harris and Harry Dorish have been effective in the exhibition games. Harris' future still is uncertain because of his old arm trouble. The rest of the staff also belongs in the doubtful class.

Hughson a Question Mark

Tex Hughson, the 1946 ace, has pitched only three innings after an arm operation. Dave (Boo) Ferris, who slumped last season, has been slow rounding into form.

Ellis Kinder, purchased from the St. Louis Browns, has not impressed McCarthy thus far.

Yawkey put out $310,000 and players to get Stephens, a right handed power hitter, and Kramer an 11-game winner, from the Browns. Then he acquired Spence from Washington for two players and cash.

McCarthy has shuffled his lineup to present a strong power front. Spence has been made over into a first baseman. He is battling Jake Jones, who held the job last year, for the regular berth. Bobby Doerr remains at second. Johnny Pesky has been shifted from short to third to make room for Stephens.

Ted Williams in left field is, of course, the key man in the attack. Leading batter in the league last year with a .343 mark, he also led with 114 runs batted in and 32 homers. With Stephens and Spence following him in the batting order, McCarthy figures opposing pitchers will not walk Williams so often. He drew 161 free tickets to first last year.

Dom DiMaggio and Sam Mele in right complete the outfield. Veteran Wally Moses and Rookie Neil Sheridan, a .286 hitter at San Francisco last year, will be the spares.

Birdie Tebbets, a cagey receiver but weak hitter, is the No. 1 catcher. Boris Martin, formerly an outfielder with the Browns, is up for another trial as a catcher. He hit .319 at Toledo.

Michigan Has Two Big Innings, Defeats Hoyas, 9-2

Wolverines Score 8 Runs In 3d and 4th

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A disastrous third and fourth inning, during which Michigan scored all but one of its runs, yesterday cost Georgetown's baseball team its second loss in five games this season, 9-2, at the Hilltop.

Michigan, with four Rose Bowl gridmen in its line-up, won its second straight game in this area, with only six hits in its two big innings spree and eight hits in all. Georgetown's heavy hitters were held to five safeties and used one of them, a triple by Al Naples in the fourth frame, to score both its runs.

The victory went to Michigan's little Ed Heikkenen, who went all the way and was credited with five strikeouts. He gave up seven bases on balls. Lefty George Freisen started for the Hoyas, gave up a run in the first and faltered badly in the third, when a couple of singles, Naples' error and a walk sent three more Wolverine scores across.

Freisen Yanked

Freisen was yanked after pitching a triple to Dom Tomasi to start the fourth inning, but Relief Bob O'Connor fared no better. Two doubles and a single, plus some wild infield play brought the count to 9-0 with one out. O'Connor gave over to big Bob Gorra who pitched brilliantly from there in.

Gorra walked Wikel to start his 5 2/3 innings stint, but he forced the next two men up to fly out. He gave up only one hit the rest of the way and kept matters well in hand by allowing only one other walk.

Gibson, Pelaia Fight at Turner's

Headliners for next Monday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena will be Terry Gibson, 23-year-old Los Angeles welterweight, and Ernie Pelaia of Pittsburgh, Pa. They were signed yesterday for a ten-rounder.

Gibson made his 1948 bow at the arena last week, winning from Walter Rowan of Richmond, Va.

Pelaia will be fighting locally for the first time, but he has boxed in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Rochester and Miami, headlining shows in the latter city. Last season he won five, lost four and drew in another.

Yanks Ask Waivers on Spud Chandler

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 5 (AP). The New York Yankees today asked waivers on Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, 39-year-old pitcher, for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

The announcement was made by Coowner Dan Topping of the Yankees, while the club was in Haines City, Fla., for a game with its Newark, N. J., farm.

The waiver call on Chandler came only one day after another pitcher, Floyd (Bill) Bevens, was packed off to a Baltimore hospital with a lame arm.

Chandler, in 11 seasons with the Yankees, won 109 games and lost only 43 to boast the best won-and-lost percentage of any current big-league pitcher. He came up with a dead arm in midsummer last year. His 1947 record was only nine won and five lost. However, he led all American League pitchers in earned runs, with a 2.46 average.

The Georgian underwent an elbow operation last October—the second such of his career—but apparently, it helped little.

This spring he pitched three innings for the Yankees in an exhibition game against the St. Louis Cardinals and was hit hard.

The matter of asking waivers on Chandler was decided on by mutual agreement so that Spud might shop around for another job before the season opened. Earlier this year the Yankees released Pitcher Bobo Newsom under the same circumstances. Bobo is still trying to sell his services to a major league club.

Bad News For Max

State Department Vetoes Schmeling's Trip to U. S.

The State Department has vetoed, for the present at least, former heavyweight boxing champion Max Schmeling's plans to return to the United States for a series of exhibition bouts.

The Department's decision was revealed yesterday by Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.), who had registered a strong protest against the German fighter's proposed visit.

McDowell made public a letter from H. J. L'Heureux, chief of the State Department's visa division, pointing out that American consular officers in Germany are permitted to issue visas only to a very select group

"As Mr. Schmeling does not appear to come within any of the categories," L'Heureux wrote, "there apparently is no action which may be taken at this time with a view to providing him with a visa for admission to the United States."

L'Heureux said that any future entrance application by the 43-year-old fighter will be screened very closely even if normal visa service is resumed in Germany.

McDowell had protested that it would be a "shoddy trick" on American sports fans to permit the former Nazi paratrooper to fight here after serving with the Nazis.

"Should Mr. Schmeling make application for a visa at some later date when regular visa services are available," L'Heureux said, "you are assured that the consular office concerned will give due consideration to all the facts surrounding his case."

McDowell is a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee and chairman of its subcommittee on fascism.

J. H. Pritchard's Dog-Leg Shot Was a Gamble That Paid Off

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

J. H. Pritchard is a man who's willing to take a chance, but even he didn't expect to see the golfing fates smile so sweetly as they did.

Playing at the Fairfax Golf club Pritchard teed off on the 354-yard par four sixth hole. This hole is a sharp dog-leg and when his drive rolled to a stop short of the turn, de decided to gamble.

He took out his No. 6 iron and fired a shot for the green which stood on the other side of high trees bordering the fairway.

When he walked around the bend and neared the green, his ball was nowhere to be seen. After combing the sand traps and surrounding woods, he was about to take his penalty and play another ball.

But as you've probably guessed by now, his ball was in the one place where he didn't dare look—right smack in the cup. His golfing partners, G. L. Bowie and J. E. Kane, were just as flabbergasted as Pritchard when they found that the million to one shot had gone home—for an eagle deuce.

Mrs. M. Hale Dinneen won the Washington Golf and Country Club women's winter golf tournament which started October 31 and just came to an end.

Finishing with an average of 89 for 10 rounds, Mrs. Dinneen's handicap of 11 gave her a net 78. She also had the best putting average, 36 strokes per round. Class A gross prize went to Mrs. John J. Croson, and Class B gross award was won by Mrs. R. D. Young.

Other awards went to Mrs. Lloyd Dennis, 31-stroke putting average; Mrs. R. E. Aldred, second net, 105-24-81; Mrs. G. W. Calvert, third net, 97-16-81; Mrs. C. Seibold, fourth net, 114-32-82 and Mrs. D. R. King, fifth net, 115-32-83.

To be Big, don't belittle Little Things
Fine brewing is such a big project that it's the little things that count against you—if you don't watch them. Little grains of broken barley . . . little metal particles . . . little changes in temperature . . . seemingly little changes in timing or cleaning. Guarding against a multitude of such "little things" 24 hours a day contributes toward making ours the most expensive brewing process known to America. It produces results of such quality that Budweiser has become something more than beer—a tradition in hospitality.

Flying Weather Wins 1948 Debut

Washington Horse Beats Out Vanslam

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., April 5.—The Washington colors of Dion K. Kerr, jr., were carried to victory today in the Charlotte Hall purse, featuring the Monday program here. Flying Weather, operating with ceiling unlimited and track fast, made his first 1948 outing a winning one by a head margin.

Flying Weather lasted to triumph over Mrs. R. B. Berini's Vanslam right on the wire. Many fans will remember the giant mutuel paid by Vanslam last year when he defeated Flying Weather at Pimlico.

Third money in the field of 12 going 6 furlongs went to Tacaro Briar, owned by R. L. Hall, jr., of Marlboro, Md. The favorite, G. G. Gilbert, jr.'s Scholarship, was a beaten-off fifth.

Backers Paid at $14.60

Flying Weather, in his season's debut, was clocked in 1:12 4/5, the best 6-furlong time of the meeting so far. His backers in a crowd of 9000 received a $14.60 win mutuel.

Scholarship, much to the delight of the favorite players, went to the front at the break. Vanslam, Flying Weather and Lawless Miss were close up. Approaching the stretch, Lawless Miss, who had been in close quarters, weakened.

Flying Weather went to the outside of Scholarship and Vanslam came to the inside. In the stretch drive, scholarship flattened out when Jockey Red Howell applied the whip. Flying Weather then took command under Bobby Strange's urging.

Move Is Trifle Late

The Kerr hope opened a good advantage but Vanslam still packed punch. When Flying Weather began to tire, Harry Pratt roused Vanslam and sent the 7-year-old up along inside boldly. However, the move came a trifle too late.

Although favorite players had little chance to shout, most of the day's pay-off kept within reason. The Frances Stable's Aircraft, paying $13.40, won the first race while the Wild Goose Farm's Ned Canron took the second at $10.40. Those who played the 8 and 11 combination in the daily double collected $110.40.

Between races: Remember Royal Business, the one-time queen of the minor tracks? She had a colt the other day by Supreme, standing at the Funkhouser farm at Charles Town. Owner Capt. Ewart Johnson is considering naming the youngster "Royal Bennings" after The Washington Post handicapper . . . Jockey Martin Bletzacker injured at Havre de Grace last year, returns to action on the Tuesday program. He appears to be fit and ready . . . Seems odd that Willie Obert, the 63-year-old jockey who rode perhaps 2500 horses in his day, had to be killed riding a bycicle . . . Havre de Grace announces it will have train service as usual.

DIXIE SWEEP, $21.40, $8.60, $5.00; GREMLIN, $6.00, $4.00; BROAD DAYLIGHT, $3.00.

DIXIE SWEEP saved ground and rated in early stages, came through on the inside to take command and held on gamely. GREMLIN, with good break, came wide to improve position, hung in final drive. BROAD DAYLIGHT raced DESERT RATION into defeat to take command, tired through stretch. PINE LAKE trailed early and wasn't persevered with in final drive. MASON DIXON improved position between horses then faltered. DESERT RATION set good pace but stopped when displaced.

EAL Revenues Set Record in First Quarter

By S. Oliver Goodman

Eastern Air Lines, one of the few air carriers which operated in the black last year, reported yesterday that passenger revenues in the first quarter this year showed a gain of 46 per cent over the similar period last year.

President Eddie Rickenbacker added the first period's gross of $16,500,000 set a new high in Rickenbacker EAL's 20-year-history.

He said the air line carried 470,000 revenue passengers in the first three months, an increase of 21 per cent over last year. Revenue passenger miles totaled 295 millions, 20 per cent greater than in the first 1947 period. Air freight revenue in the first quarter was nearly three times as large as last year's.

Rickenbacker also commented that passenger revenues in March amounted to $6,300,000, more than one million better than the best previous monthly record.

Last week, EAL reported that operating recenues of $52,411,248 in 1947 were the highest in its history and an increase of 24 per cent over the 1946 total. Net profit of $1,259,196 was reported for 1947.

DEPOSITS OFF: New York City bank deposits dropped during the first quarter. The National City Bank shows a 7½ per cent dip; the Guaranty Trust Co. a 5 per cent decline; J. P. Morgan & Co. a 6½ per cent decrease. Observers chalk it up to withdrawal to meet income-tax payments and to the Treasury's credit restrictive policy.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: John W. Scott, jr., former commander in the Navy, has been elected comptroller of Corn Products Refining Co. . . . Arnold Welles has been named regional representative of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines in charge of the new office at 1104 Vermont ave. . . . Jean Epstein, formerly of Bill-board magazine, has been named Scott head of the newly opened New York office of the Alvin Epstein Advertising Agency of Washington . . . Thomas J. Watson, jr., vice president of International Business Machines Corp., has been elected a director of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of N. Y. . . . Halsey V. Barrett, formerly of Columbia Broadcasting System, has been named manager of DuMont's stations relations department.

PRC FITS: Grocers complained more under OPA, but they made more money. So says Peter C. Schmitt, president of a wholesale grocery firm in Buffalo. Under the old way, he said at a recent grocers' meeting, "we had lots of rules and regulations, but also lots of profits." The law of competition, now governing, "means that you arrive at much lower profit margins than those set by the Government," Schmitt claims.

ODD LOTS: Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. reported carloads of revenue freight last month decreased 23.9 per cent and attributed the drop to the coal mine shutdown . . . United States Rubber Co. announced an "extra-quality" low-pressure auto tire that will give up to 60 per cent more mileage due to a 25 per cent deeper tread of specially compounded rubber . . . A new issue of seven-million-dollar Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. bonds was awarded to White, Welt & Co. and associates on their bid of 101.5259 for a 3¾ per cent coupon . . . Swift & Co. plans to register with SEC an issue of 35 million dollars in debentures . . . Sears, Roebuck & Co., "to avoid having too much capital invested in land and property," has sold eight of its stores to the Equitable Life Assurance Co. and has leased them back on a long-term basis . . . Ford Motor Co. has begun shipping complete assemblies of some of its 1949 models to branch assembly plants but this does not mean any individual will be able to buy one before next June.

STIMULANT: One of the features in yesterday's trading on New York Bond Exchange was a strong advance in Atlantic & Danville Railroad second 4s, which jumped 8¾ at 24¾, and the first 4s which went ahead 7 points at 35. This activity came after Norfolk County (Va.) Circuit Judge Edward L. Oast ruled that Southern Railway would have to return Atlantic & Danville properties "in condition for modern operation" if the lease were not renewed.

N. & W. FIGURES: Norfolk & Western Railway Co. reported operating revenues for 1947 gained 27.87 per cent and net income jumped 48.91 per cent over 1946 figures. The year's increases were brought about by boosted freight revenues. The road's passenger business dipped 37.17 per cent from $10,751,000 in 1946 to $6,647,000 in 1947. Total operating revenues amounted to $165,862,000, highest in company's history, and an increase over 1946 of $36,147,000. Freight revenues were $152,828,000, an increase of $37,888,000. The 1947 net income was $35,332,000, an increase of $11,604,000 over 1946.

Bridge Crash Suits Settled Privately

Out-of-court settlements totaling $145,000 for 34 suits growing out of the Memorial Bridge bus crash of August 2, 1946, have been approved by District Court, it was announced yesterday.

One man, William Friess, 65, of 1106 North Edgewood st., Arlington, was killed, and 43 others injured when the bus was struck by a skidding automobile operated by Stephen L. Grover, then 18, of 2900 Connecticut ave. nw. The bus crashed through the bridge balustrade and landed upside down on the roadway below.

The 34 suits, totaling over a million dollars, were consolidated for trial, and David G. Bress became attorney for the complainants.

Under the settlement, the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. agreed to pay $125,000. Richard Acton, 1520 N. Kenilworth st., Arlington, a Navy Department employe, received the largest amount of this, $17,000, and payments to 18 others were scaled down to $1500.

In 15 other settlements, $12,500 of Grover's $20,000 insurance was divided among 14 claimants for medical expenses, while the estate of William Friess received $7500.

Grover was exonerated of a charge of negligent homicide by a Municipal Court jury.

Patapsco River Dragged for Missing Soldier

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—Baltimore police dragged the Patapsco River today without finding any trace of a missing soldier.

The search started after an Army blouse and cap were found on a bridge railing. A wallet yielded the name of Lawrence Allen Cross whom Andrews Field officials have listed as absent without leave since April 1.

Mrs. Ruby E. Crawford, who said her daughter is married to a soldier by that name, reported the couple had been living in Indian Head, Md.

James E. Cross, a brother, expressed doubt that the soldier drowned. He said his brother, 32-years-old and a master sergeant, had been in several Government hospitals for treatment of malaria which he contacted in New Guinea.

The Andrews Field provost marshal reported Mrs. Cross advised them she hadn't seen her husband since he left in a car for the base on April 1.

Price of Butter Moves Down in Margarine Fight

Butter prices, which responded with a giddy rise when margarine-tax repeal was blocked last month, have turned downward since the possibilities of margarine-tax repeal brightened.

Last Friday House sponsors of the tax repeal succeeded in getting sufficient signatures on a petition to force the legislation out of the House Agriculture Committee.

The wholesale price for 92-score butter, which was 88 cents a pound on the New York Mercantile Exchange last Wednesday and Thursday, was down to 86 cents Friday, and yesterday dropped 3 cents more, to 83. On March the same butter was 89½ cents wholesale in New York.

Henry T. Males, chairman of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association's wholesale butter and egg division here, yesterday predicted wholesale butter prices of about 65 cents a pound next month, part of the heavy production season.

Charter for Hospital

Charleston, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—The Preston Hospital Associates at Kingwood, a non-profit group formed to furnish more adequate hospital facilities, received a charter today.

It was incorporated by Dell Roy R. Davis, John F. Lehman and T. S. McIntire, all of Kingwood.

Expected Frost In Virginia Fails To Materialize

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—Frost expected in some Virginia fruit areas last night failed to materialize.

The Winchester Research Laboratory said today the mercury did not go below 43 degrees during the night and that there was no freezing weather in that area.

Henry M. Taylor, statistician for the joint Federal-State Cooperative Crop Reporting Service, said here today no accurate estimate has been made of the damage caused to orchards by frost Saturday night.

"Apples apparently escaped with less damage than the stone fruit—peaches, cherries, etc.," he said.

Dr. A. B. Groves, plant pathologist at the Winchester laboratory, said he "saw no damage added to what had already been reported a week ago" after a tour of Frederick and Clarke County apple orchards yesterday.

8 Class Reunions Set At Naval Academy

Annapolis, Md., April 5 (AP).—Eight class reunions have been scheduled already at the Naval Academy this spring, an alumni spokesman announced today.

The class of 1898 started off the season with a get-together here last week.

Alumni of 1918 will reunite April 24, followed by the class of 1919 on May 8; classes of 1903, 1923 and 1938, May 15; class of 1928, May 22, and class of 1908, May 29.

Rosemont Annexation

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—A referendum to annex the suburb of Rosemont will be included on the ballot for Martinsburg's city election 8.

Music Festival Attrasting Wide Interest in Va.

Charlottesville, Va., April 5.—All Virginia will share in the second Virginia Music Festival, featuring the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, to be held May 21, 22 and 23 in Scott Stadium at the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Randolph Catlin, the festival organization's president for 1948, reports steadily increasing interest in the event in every part of the Commonwealth.

Nearly 800 high school boys and girls have qualified in preliminary contests to compete in the finals. The contests will continue to about April 15.

Meanwhile some 200 singers in eight colleges and universities are learning the four choruses from Bach's B Minor Mass which they will sing with the Detroit Symphony during the first concert Friday night, May 21.

RUPTURED?
CONSULT YOUR DOCTOR
Ruptures are dangerous—see your doctor immediately. If he advises you to wear a truss, he will probably tell you to see Kloman's who are truss specialists, employing only expert fitters. We will fit you properly with a lightweight truss which has no discomforting under straps, springs or elastic and will positively not slip. It is invisible and anatomically correct.
Be sure to have the proper truss fitted correctly, as an improperly fitted truss does more harm than good. We fit the best quality trusses that modern science affords. Proper retention guaranteed, if worn as fitted and instructions followed.

ERA to Employ 1000 to 1500, With 500 to 900 Here

ERA: This is factual information for those many persons who are angling for jobs in the to-be-created European Recovery Administration:

ERA will have from 1000 to 1500 jobs, depending on how much work is done for it in existing Federal agencies. Anywhere from 500 to 900 will be in this city.

The jobs will be under the Civil Service system—all of them. Civil Service will do the recruiting for the agency. However, the administrator is given the authority to fix salaries for 100 officials—the salaries of 75 can't exceed $10,000 each, and the remaining 25 can't be more than $15,000 each.

A State Department personnel office is accepting applications. It's on the third floor of the Walker-Johnson Building on New York Avenue across the street from Emergency Hospital. When the ERA administrator is appointed and confirmed, he'll be given the file of the several thousand applicants and he'll make his own selections.

It's true that two groups—one in the White House and the other in the State Department—are making up lists of possible key ERA personnel. The personnel files of the old War Production Board and several of the other wartime agencies are being searched for clews to people who have had experience that will be valuable to ERA. But the administrator will make the final decision on the people to be hired. Definitely, no interim organization with temporary employes will be set up to handle the program until the administrator is confirmed. Existing agencies will handle the program temporarily.

A foreign mission will be set up in each of the countries to participate in the program. The administrator has a choice here. He can either (1) hire directly the people who will make up these missions, or (2) delegate this job to State which would hire them through its foreign service branch. But in any event, the people in the missions would be bossed by the ERA administrator. The best bet is this—State will hire the people through its foreign service.

PARADE: There's to be an Army Day parade today. The White House has decreed: (1) that Federal employes who are to participate in the parade are to be excused from their jobs for a reasonable time, and (2) that employes in Federal agencies in the line of march, or in the immediate vicinity, MAY be excused to view the spectacle. But it'll be up to the agency head to release or keep his employes on the job. It's reasonable to assume that most employes in the downtown area will be excused for about an hour to cheer the Army paraders.

AFGE: There was a report yesterday that James Burns has decided to serve out his term as president of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes. His present two-year term will expire in September. But the same AFL source said that he did not expect Mr. Burns to run for reelection. There are a score of persons "interested" in the AFGE presidency.

NOTES: Civil Service has announced tests for physicists at salaries ranging from $7102 to $9975, for four types of jobs in the Rural Electrification Administration. . . . Civil Service is sending out notices of ratings to people who took the P-5 through P-8 statistician exam 13 months ago. . . . The House has now approved a transfer of funds for the Bureau of Labor Statistics which would make unnecessary payless vacations up to 10 days for everyone on its 682-man staff here. Now it's up to the Senate to concur.

NAVY: It went on record yesterday as stoutly opposed to the Bridges bill to give organized labor a voice in the fixing of wages for its 220,000 per diem employes.

Undersecretary W. John Kenney told the Senate Civil Service Committee that the Bridges bill would be time-consuming; result in costly red tape, and that it would produce inequalities far exceeding those which it's intended to correct.

The bill was sponsored by Chairman Bridges of the Senate Appropriations Committee. It would require the make-up of Navy wage boards to be half Navy officials and the other half representatives of labor. It would also require the boards to consider wages paid by industry before Navy scales were fixed.

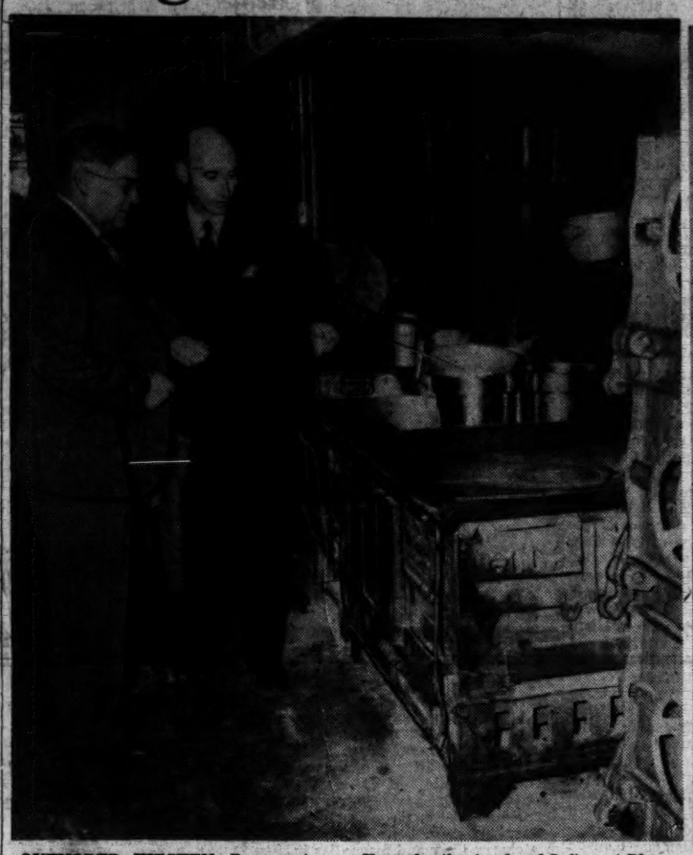
James A. Brownlow, secretary-treasurer of the AFL's metal trades department, indorsed the bill. He explained that labor unions had been given a voice in fixing wages from 1920 to 1947. He charged:

That the Navy is now the sole judge of facts and figures; that its now a one-sided system; that labor's right to help fix wages was wiped out by a high-handed and bureaucratic action; that the Navy now picks wage scales arbitrarily and out of thin air, and that morale in the Navvy shipyards has declined as a result.

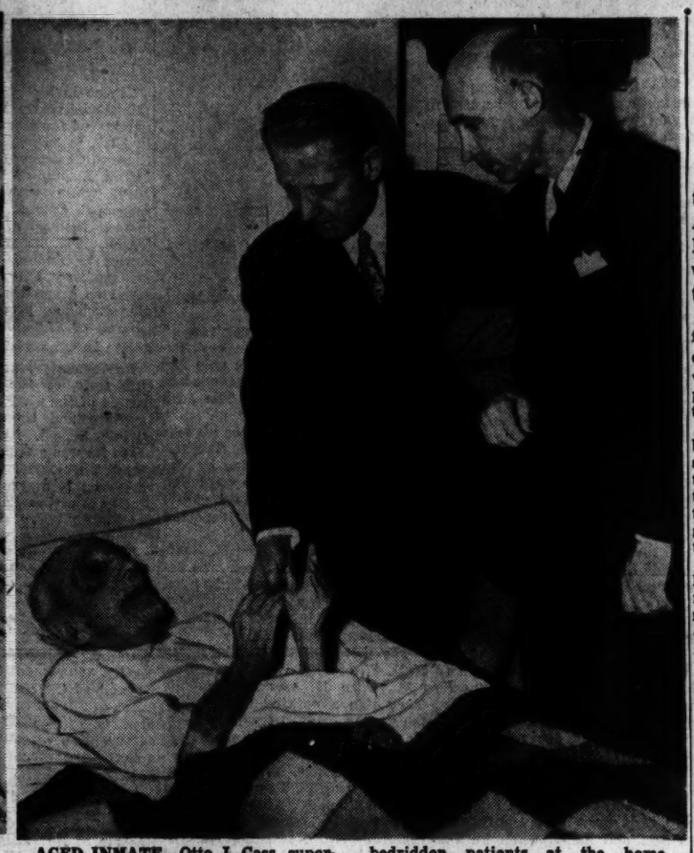
Kenney, however, said that less than 20 per cent of the Navy's per diems were union members and he hinted that the Bridges bill could be used, if approved, to persuade more per diems to join unions since only representatives of organized labor could sit on wage boards.

The Senate committee will meet on the problem again Wednesday. Today it will hold its regular meeting. There were unconfirmed reports that a motion may be made to reconsider the Federal employe pay raise bill. The committee gave its approval to a bill last Thursday to give postal employes a flat $800 increase and an average of $650 for most other Federal employes.

Home for Aged a Fire Hazard, Head Tells Congressmen; Food Called Insufficient



OUTMODED KITCHEN—Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) and Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) inspect the 30-year-old stove at the Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains. The stove is in constant need of reuair, they are told.



AGED INMATE—Otto J. Cass, superintendent of the home, and Representative Deane talk to a 100-year-old patient. The elderly man is one of 150 bedridden patients at the home. Cass informed the visiting Congressmen that older patients are not getting proper food.

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

"FIRE HAZARD"—Congressmen are shown what little chance bedridden patients would have of escaping from the wards in case of fire. The door (arrow) leads to the dispensary. A heating system consisting of covered horizontal pipes (dotted line) blocks cutting of fire door to the out-of-doors. Left to right are: A. J. Driscoll, chairman of the institution committee of the Welfare Board; Representative Miller, House District Committee Secretary Mabel Haller and Representative Deane. Two other archways lead from the room to other parts of the building. There is no direct outside exit from the ward

More Medicines Also Held Needed; Outbuildings Used By Sailors, Girls

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

"Every inch of construction" at the Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains is a "fire hazard," two visiting Congressmen were told yesterday.

Inmates do not have an adequate food intake because of an insufficient food budget and lack of vitamins in capsule form to supplement such budgets, they were told.

So little money is allowed in the budget for medical supplies that staff physician Dr. John J. Calarco told the Hill men he can treat only those with acute illnesses, while those with chronic illnesses must go without the special medical care they need.

The legislators were also told how outbuildings on the Home reservation, which need to be demolished because they are not usable, are being used as an "underground night club" for immoral purposes by persons who have no connection with the Home.

Worried Over Fire Hazard

Representative A. L. Miller, (R., Nebr.) chairman, and Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.), a member of a House District subcommittee on health, welfare and education heard the charges when they inspected the home and the adjoining Industrial Training School for Colored Children.

Otto J. Cass, home superintendent, said the home gets a clean bill of health from the fire department each month because it has plenty of fire extinguishers.

"But I'd like to know who's going to man them if fire breaks out at 2 o'clock in the morning. Certainly the inmates can't."

The "underground night club," as it was termed by Representative Miller, came to light when he asked Cass to explain to what use outbuildings on the home reservation, now vacant, could be put.

Cass replied he had requested they be demolished, because they are not usable by the institution and are now being used for immoral purposes.

Sailors, Gilrs Seen

"Do you mean a sort of undgerground night club" asked Miller.

Cass explained the reservation is not under D. C. police protection, and that sailors and girls have been seen coming out of some of the outbuildings in the morning. The home has only one night watchman.

"Is this a question of drinking, and playing cards?" asked Miller.

"Much worse than that," replied Cass. "Immoral actions are involved."

"Are there cots and beds in these outbuildings?" asked Miller.

"Just hay," Cass replied.

No Fire Door

In a tour of the infirmary wards, Cass pointed out that the Negro women's ward and the white men's ward for bedridden patients, which are joined by an arch, are high-ceilinged rooms wtih beaver board ceilings. There is no fire door between the two wards, and there is no way to cut a fire door through the outer wall of either ward without rearranging the heating system contained in those walls.

In report after report, Congress has been told by the District Board of Public Welfare that the present quarters of the Home for the Aged and Infirm are not safe.

"We should not need to wait for a catastrophe here before protecting these old folks," was the plea back in 1946.

A $1,500,000 authorization for construction of a new infirmary building at the home was "shelved" when a wartime presidential directive banned construction where "suitable" facilities already existed.

Cass told Miller and Deane he had protested last week to acting Welfare Department Director Raymond Clapp over the 13-cent-per-meal allowance at the home. This allowance permits no butter, no margarine and almost no sweets.

Food Budget Overspent

Cass explained that older people apparently do not get a proper vitamin content through the food they eat, and that cost of vitamins alone last year had been $1000. The food budget was overspent $13,000, he said.

He said that when he had talked with Clapp, and "became belligerent," Clapp has said the Welfare Department would give the home 5 cents more a day on its food allowance.

Miller asked, "Do you mean that the Board of Public Welfare has bridled you so that you can't ask for what you want?"

"Yes," said Cass.

Dr. Calarco told the Congressmen, who were accompanied by A. J. Driscoll, chairman of the Public Welfare Board's institution committee, that the $5000 allotted for medicines for the year had been exhausted by last January. He said that about 30 of the Home inmates have a syphilitic background, and that "five or six" are slowly dying of cancer.

Deane said his first visit had convinced him "more than ever before of the need for more complete administrative authority and action." He criticized what he termed "lack of vision" on the part of institution heads, but added that it is due, presumably, "to the fact that they've been silenced so long by the Commissioners, becoming robots, doing what they were told to do. This situation doesn't contribute to a healthy, progressive or economical administration."

Congressmen Told

D. C. Chiefs Seldom See Institutions

The District Commissioners could hardly be called frequent visitors at the District's welfare institutions.

Two members of Congress found this out for themselves yetserday while on a tour of two installations at Ble Plains, D. C.

Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) asked Wendell P. Tucker, superintendent of the Industrial Home School for Colored Children, whether any of the District Commissioners had inspected the home "within the past month."

Tucker replied that no Commissioner had been to the home within the past two years "taht I know of."

"Very interesting," commented Dean. "We were elected to try to render some service. We can do a better job by coming out and seeing what's going on. I know the Commissioners have a big job, but I believe this sort of thing is a strong argument for some kind of home rule." Dean made the inspection trip with Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.).

Later checkes revealed that Engineer Commissioner Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young makes "frequent" visits at the Home for the Aged and has inspected the Wisconsin ave. Industrial Home School, but officials at these institutions and at the Receiving Home for Children on Little Falls rd. said they did not recall any visits by the other Commissioners during the past two years.

Neither Commissioner John Russell Young nor Commissioner Guy Mason were available for comment last night.

New Courts Building Bill Is Blocked

The powerful House Rules Committee yesterday blocked the bill for a new Federal Courts building in Washington.

Rules Chairman Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.) said the bill "may be" pigeonholed.

He said Rules Committee members felt construction costs were pretty high now for the proposed $18,665,000 building to house the District and United States Appeals Courts here.

He said the committee decided to hold up the request of House Public Works Committee leaders for the resolution that would bring the bill before the House for a vote.

The Rules Committee decision was made in a matter of seconds in an executive session.

The committee in an open meeting had heard Representative J. Harry McGregor (R., Ohio) urge speedy clearance for the court construction bill.

His appeal was backed by Representatives Paul Cunningham (R., Iowa) and William M. Whittington (D., Miss.). All are members of the House Public Works Committee, which approved the court bill unanimously with a strong recommendation that it be considered an emergency project.

After the testimony, the doors were closed. Within a minute Chairman Allen stepped out and told reporters the committee had held up the court bill.

Bandit Gets $300 in Stickup At Busiest Hour in S & W Cafe

A brash holdup man invaded the S. & W. Cafeteria, 1425 G st. nw., at 6:40 o'clock last night while the dining crowd was at its peak and made off with $300.

The bandit approached a cashier in the Green Room of the cafeteria, located in the basement, pushed her arm and muttered: "Keep quiet, sister . . . don't talk."

The cashier, Josephine Grayson, 22, of 1867 Newton st. nw., said the man scooped a packet of bills from the register, then vaulted up the steps to the main floor of the cafeteria. He ran out of the cafeteria, fled east on G st., then south on 14th st.

Miss Grayson told police the bandit did not display a gun but kept his hand in his pocket menacingly. She described him as white, about 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and estimated his weight at between 140 and 150 pounds. She said he wore a brown suit and had his hat brim pulled down over his eyes.

Earlier in the day a bandit suspect who police claim has admitted a series of holdups in rapid order here Saturday and Sunday nights was arraigned in Municipal Court.

He is Calvin E. Davis, 22, of 1616 10th st. nw. He was held for action of the grand jury and his bond was set at $10,000.

Police said Davis identified himself as "Kid" Davis, a professional fighter. They said he admitted robbing four men Saturday night within 45 minutes with a realistic looking cap pistol.

They added that he had admitted bettering that record early yesterday when he stucky up four persons with his toy gun in only 30 minutes.

Police said Davis started off on his second night of holdups at 12:40 a. m. when he accosted George V. Johnson, 16, of 1617 12th st. nw., at 11th and Q sts. nw. Johnson had only $2.

Five minutes later, in the 1000 block of Q st. nw., according to police, the fighter waved his toy weapon at Richard B. Cupit, 25, of 1607 16th st. nw. Cupit reached for the pocket in which he was carrying a roll of bills. None of that, warned the holdup man, as he reached into his victim's hip pocket and extracted his billfold. The billfold was empty so the bandit went on his way no richer.

Then shortly after Davis was at 12th and O sts. nw., police said, where he held up Ernest A. Scott, 26, of 1334 12th st. nw., and got $2. When the bandit sauntered off down the 1200 block of O st. nw., Scott followed him.

As a result, Scott was able to witness a fourth attempt at a holdup at 1:10 a.m. in the 1200 block of O st. nw. This time the intended victim, Hubert C. Lawson, 39, of 1224 O st. nw., wasn't having any. He struck the holdup man in the face and the latter turned and ran.

Scott joined Lawson and they chased the bandit across Logan circle. They captured him and held him until police arrived.

Police said Davis bragged he has won 22 of 23 professional fights. The records show he lost that twenty-third fight here last February when he was kayoed in the first round.

He lost his twenty-fourth fight, too, police claim, when he tried to hold up Lawson. Police said that in addition to the cap pistol Davis was carrying a penknife, the blade open, in one of his pockets.

Goldberg Reelected Duckpin President

Named as vice president was Oscar Hiser, of Hyattsville Recreation Center, while Evelyn Gay, Takoma Bowling Alley manager, was selected as secretary, with Eddie Winslow, Hi-Skor manager, treasurer.

Bates Asks For Paring of D. C. Budget

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) yesterday called on Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) to pare the proposed 101-million-dollar District budget "in any way possible."

Horan insisted he saw no chance for major cuts in the budget for next year. He said he would answer Bates in detail by letter.

Bates heads the subcommittee in charge of District tax measures. Horan heads the group handling the budget. Bates has strongly opposed a sales tax. Horan believes the city should have one to finance the budget.

Bates declared the proposed budget is 2½ times what it was 12 years ago.

He said he saw in the sales tax the danger that it would be an incentive to "squander public money."

Horan stated he saw little chance for cutting into the District's proposed capital construction program. School projects are simply the continuation of those already authorized, he pointed out. He added that health and welfare services are now limited to a "reasonable" basis.

His subcommittee yesterday continued its closed hearings on operations of city agencies, including the Fire Department and local courts. Horan praised the operation of the Fire Department. He voiced concern that the municipal court judges are seriously overloaded and suggested the court may need more judges. Legislation to increase the number of judges previously had been sidetracked.

Oliver Top Scorer

New York, April 5 (AP).—New Oliver of Ohio's little Rio Grande College, led all college basketball scorers during the 1948 season on the basis of total points. He tallied 725 points on 217 field goals and 291 free throws in 33 games. Normal Hankins of Lawrence Tech, ranked second to Oliver in total points with 630.

Schools, Parents Launch Survey Of Handicapped

Distribution of 15,000 questionaires seeking information on the number of handicapped children in the Silver Spring area who are unable to attend public schools was begun yesterday.

Fifteen schools in the area of Silver Spring, Takoma Park, Kensington and Wheaton are serving as clearing houses to parent groups distributing the questionaires.

One parent, Mrs. William G. Fene, who headed 10 workers in the Montgomery Hills section, reported her crew distributed more than 1000 pamphlets in two hours. Others said they expected to complete the job this week.

The information is being sought by interested parents and school officials as a preliminary step in possible establishment of special educational facilities for handicapped children.

Ex-Brown Infielder Charged With Murder

Dallas, April 5 (AP).—H. T. Thompson, 22, second baseman for the Kansas City Monarchs, Negro professional baseball team, today was charged with murder in the shooting of a Negro here. He played 27 games for the St. Louis Browns last year.

Killed was James Sidney Crow, 35. He was slain following an argument in a Negro tavern early yesterday. Thompson gave himself up at police headquarters several hours after the shooting.

Alexandria Democrats Vote Today In Primary

Party Nominating Four of Eleven Candidates for City Council Seats

Alexandria Democrats will go to the polls today to nominate four of 11 candidates for the city council.

Voting hours are from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. at regular ward voting places. Ballots marked with more than four choices, the Democratic committee warned, will be tossed out.

The candidates, who last night wound up one of the bitterest campaigns in recent years, are Leroy S. Bendheim, Marshall J. Beverley, Roy C. Bragg, Arthur F. Campbell, John J. Ewald, Claude B. Harris, Randal J. Hicks, Ernest L. Mankin, Albert A. Smoot, David D. Squires and John T. Worthington.

The four nominated today will represent the party at the general city council election June 8.

All of the candidates during the campaign agreed generally that Alexandria needs more schools, better roads, nonpartisan local elections, a new city charter, wiser spending and complete tax collections. They disagreed, however, over campaign methods used to gain the nomination.

Four candidates, Campbell, Hicks, Smoot and Squires, have been criticized for "forming a slique." Running on the same platform, they have denied the charge and have countered that five other candidates are "machine-backed." The Veterans Committee for Veterans is backing Bendheim, Beverley, Bragg, Harris and Worthington.

Aerial 'Picketing' Planned Here by Striking Pilots

Striking pilots of National Airlines today will launch a schedule of "aerial picketing" over Washington with smoke-writing and banner-towing planes.

Larry Cates, Washington representative of the AFL Air Line Pilots Association, who made the announcement, said the planes, due in from Miami, Fla., would be based at Hybla Valley Airport. Information headquarters will be at the Hamilton Hotel, he said.

Picketing on foot will also be staged simultaneously at the Washington National Airport by airlines mechanics, Cates said. The pilots, whose headquarters are in Miami, struck February 3 over a 2-year-old grievance case. Clerks had struck earlier in a dispute over recognition and the mechanics then walked out.

The striking pilots plan to operate a smoke-writing plane over Washington which will spell out "National Air Line Pilots on Strike." Another plane is to tow a banner with the same words.

Preparatory School Group Elects Benchoff

Charlottesville, Va., April 5 (AP). Colonel H. J. Benchoff, head master of Massanutten Military Academy, today was elected president of the Virginia Association of Preparatory Schools.

Benchoff wa selected at the organization's annual meeting at the University of Virginia.

Other officers elected were J. H. Ratcliffe, of Christ Church School, vice president; Dean I. F. Lewis, of the University of Virginia, executive vice president; C. H. Kauffman, secretary-treasurer.

Correction

Due to a typographical error, an article appearing in The Washington Post Sunday, April 4, referred to Randall J. Hicks, Alexandria city council candidate, as a "veteran of World War II." Hicks was a veteran of World War I, but not of World War II. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Area News in Brief

Chipped Tooth Suit Backfires for $300

That front tooth of 9-year-old Janet Gamer, chipped in a playground incident over two years ago and the subject of 14 months of unsuccessful litigation, wound up costing her father $300 yesterday. District Court Justice T. Alan Goldsborough approved a motion whereby Janet's father, Justice Department Attorney Saul Gamer of 2939 McKinley st. nw., must pay that sum as legal fees to James E. Shiffiette court-appointed attorney for Monica Mulvey, 11.

The Gamers had filed suit against Monica and her father, Western High School Football Coach Fred Mulvey, 6359 31st st. nw., charging that Monica Mulvey's lunchbox struck Janet in the mouth. In their first suit, the Gamer's sought $25,000 damages.

That suit was dismissed, and they later filed another for $10,000. After hearing Monica tell that she was pushed by a third girl and fell against Janet, a jury last month ruled against the Gamers.

Rent Boost Recommended

An increase of 10.16 per cent on the rent of 51 units in the Sulgrave Manor apartment house at 5130 Connecticut ave. nw. was recommended yesterday by Rent Examiner William H. Clarke. The B. F. Saul Co., owners, had requested a 12.17 per month.

New rents will range from $45.65 for a one-bedroom, kitchen and bath unit to $10?.75 for a three-room, kitchen and bath apartment. Previous rents were from $41.50 to $92.50.

At a hearing yesterday before Rent Examiner Dennis K. Lane, a rent increase request on 40 apartments at 2525 Minnesota ave. se. was protested by a committee of residents who charged service was inadequate. Present rents range from $31.50 to $43 and requested rents from $36 to $57.25. The matter was taken under advisement.

Cecil Dickson Elected

Cecil B. Dickson, chief of the Gannett News Service here, was elected yesterday to membership in the Standing Committee of Correspondents in charge of the House and Senate press galleries. Dickson was unopposed for the committee place left vacant when Griffing Bancroft, former Chicago Sun correspondent, resigned upon joining the staff of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Woman Held in Bail

One charge of assault with a dangerous weapon placed against her following a fight Saturday night was dismissed yesterday, but Lucille Hill, 38, of 513 9th st. nw., was held in $10,000 bond on a similar charge resulting from another fight Sunday.

As a result of the second fight, Edward L. Smith, 39, of 436 6½ st. sw., is in Gallinger Hospital with a knife wound in his left lung. Smith, too, was charged with assault, and also with drunk and disorderly conduct. Lucille said he was stabbed while trying to knife her.

The other assault charge against her involved a fight with Geneva Greenley, 519 9th st. nw., also charged with assault. Charges against both women in that case were nolle prossed yesterday in Municipal Court.

Boys, Girls Week Coming

Youth-serving agencies of the Council of Social Agencies and the Community Chest, together with the play centers of the D. C. Recreation Department, will observe the twenty-eighth annual National Boys and Girls Week here from April 25 to May 1.

"Youth—Key to the Future" is the slogan for the week. Programs will be scheduled daily during the period at playgrounds, settlement houses, boys clubs, Ys youth hostels, Salvation Army centers, the Jewish Community Center, Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls units, and other agencies.

Uhler on Board

Edward K. Uhler, Annandale businessman, yesterday became a member of Fairfax County Electoral Board, succeeding Walter T. Oliver, jr. Appointed by Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown, Uhler will serve for three years on the three-man board.

Courses Organized

Senior life-saving courses under the District Red Cross water safety program are being organized at the Jewish Community Center, 1529 16th st. nw.

A class for women started last night and will meet regularly on Monday and Wednesday nights from 6 to 8 p. m. A class for men, beginning tonight, will be held on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 9:30 p. m. Members of the two classes must be 16 years old and possess fair swimming ability.

Red Cross Luncheon

Red Cross key workers in Greater Washington's drive for $1,080,000 will attend a "victory" luncheon today at 12:30 p. m. in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

At the last report meeting a week ago, it was announced that 245,474 residents had contributed $1,021,272, or 94.56 per cent of the 1948 goal. Officials expressed confidence the full quota would be met by today.

2 Held at Bowie

Two Baltimore men were arrested yesterday at Bowie Race Track on charges of maintaining and operating a lottery.

Prince Georges County Policeman E. F. Gray reported the men were accepting bets in the backfield. Listed by police as Morris Halikman, 35, and Isadore Rainess, 36, they were released on $500 bond each for hearing Thursday in Hyattsville.

Officer Held Justified in Roof Shooting

Police Pvt. Francis M. Moran of the Fifth Precinct was justified in shooting a man who had broken a drug store skylight Saturday night, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

The victim, Joseph Andrews Barnes, 22, died at Casualty Hospital about an hour after the shooting.

Moran testified he shot Barnes from the kitchen window of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Webb at 1442 B st. se., next to the one-story drug store at No. 1444.

He said he flashed a light on the housebreaker, whose head was visible above the skylight, and told him he was covered. He ordered him twice to come out and throw his hands up he testified warning him the second time that he was going to shoot if his orders were not carried out. The man put his right hand to his hip pocket the policeman testified. Then he shot once, paused, and fired twice more.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb testified they had called police when they heard the skylight being smashed, and saw a man on the drugstore roof. Webb said he heard Moran tell Barnes twice to stand up.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Zimmerman, whose home at 129 15th st. se. adjoins the drugstore on the other side, corroborated the other witnesses. John B. Douglass, brother of Herbert Douglass, who operates the drugstore, also said he ahd heard the policeman warn that he going to shoot.

Vanishing Guard Trusty and Truck Mystery Solved

Staunton, Va., April 5 (AP).—The mystery of the vanishing prison guard, the trusty and the truck at the State lime grinding plant near here had vanished, too, today.

Unheard of for three days, they all three turned up yesterday in custody of the father of the guard.

Superintendent G. P. Bowman, of the plant, said Robert L. Sprinkler brought back his son, Robert L. Sprinkler, jr., who was the guard, together with Henry Kidd, the trusty, and the State-owned truck.

Bowman said the senior Sprinkler, who was a guard at State Camp 19, Scottsville, told him he found the pair at a house on United States Route 12, between Waynesboro and Elkton. They had been drinking, Bowman said the father related.

Young Sprinkler has lost his job as a guard at the plant and Kidd, who is serving a term for violation of parole, is no longer a trusty, the superintendent said.

Tuck Signs Bill For Referendum On Va. Poll Tax

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—Governor Tuck today signed into law th bill setting a referendum for November, 1949, on whether the poll tax shall be repealed as a prerequisite to voting in Virginia.

The measure, one of 40 signed by the governor today, provides for submission to the voters of the constitutional amendments approved by the last two sessions of the General Assembly.

The amendments also would empower the General Assembly to provide for a new system of registration.

Also included in the bills signed was an act to provide for a war memorial n Arlington and to permit Arlington County officials and school board to work with other groups for a stadium, athletic field or similar form of memorial.

Drawbridge Hearing

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—The Army Engineers announced today that a hearing will be held April 14 in Federalsburg on an application to revise regulations for operation of a drawbridge over Marshyhope Creek at Brookview, Dorchester County.

Girl, 10, Is Instantly Killed While Dashing for School Bus

Traffic accidents yesterday cost the life of a 10-year-old girl in Prince Georges County, resulted in serious burns for a motorist in Montgomery County and sent five other persons to District hospitals.

The 10-year-old, Rose Mary Thorne, was killed instantly in front of her home, 6191 Livingston rd., Silesia, Md., when a truck struck her as she was crossing the road to board an Oxon Hill school bus.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Thorne, who have four other children. The father is employed at the Naval Powder Factory at Indian Head, Md.

The tragedy was witnessed by the child's mother, who screamed a vain warning as the truck bore down on the girl.

Rose Mary, a fourth grade pupil, had celebrated her tenth birthday only five days earlier. She hadn't wanted to go to school yesterday, her mother said, because an older brother and sister, William, jr., 13, and Cecilia Elizabeth, 12, were remaining home because of illness.

Police identified the driver of the truck which struck the girl as Clemmer Basil Mills, 37, Waldorf, Md., lumber dealer. He was charged with manslaughter, failing to stop for a school bus and having inadequate brakes. His bond was set at $1000 and a hearing arranged for next Monday in the Upper Marlboro police court.

Police said the truck, which was traveling in an opposite direction from the bus, swerved against the bus after striking the child. None of the 12 children aboard the bus was injured. One of the children was Howard Thorne, jr., 16, a cousin of the victim who had boarded the bus ahead of her.

The driver of the school bus was Merrill C. Thorne of Oxon Hill. Rose Mary's family said he is not a relative.

After the accident, Prince Georges County Police Superintendent Ralph W. Brown issued orders to all county policemen to arrest any drivers observed passing in either direction a school bus which has stopped to pick up or discharge children.

Herbert L. Berry, 62, of Buckeystown, Md., was severely burned on his legs and hands when he was pinned in the wreckage of his flaming car on the road between Dawsonville and Boyds in upper Montgomery County.

ROSE MARY THORNE Struck Down

Police said Berry's car ran off the road, hurtled up an embankment, struck a telephone pole and a tree, crashed through a fence and then burst into flames. The accident occurred about 3 p. m.

Berry was unable to free his legs from the wreckage. Ellis Shackelford of Boyds, Md., drove by and pulled Berry free. Berry was taken to the Frederick Memorial Hospital where his condition was reported "undetermined."

In the District, Emma R. Shaffer, 82, of 122 3d st. se., was seriously injured at about 12:30 p. m. when she stepped in the path of a backing truck in the 200 block of Pennsylvania ave. se.

The driver of the truck, Harry Hutt, 47, of 5125 Illinois ave. nw., told police he was backing his truck into a parking space when the woman stepped from the curb. She was taken to Gallinger Hospital with a fractured left leg.

Four persons, visitors from Staten Island, N. Y., were injured when William W. Ahrens, 53, lost control of his car at about noon yesterday and crashed into a tree in the 1300 block of Rhode Island ave. ne.

Almond Takes Post April 19 As Virginia Attorney General

Congressman J. Lindsay Almond, jr., will be sworn in as attorney general of Virginia on April 19 by Justice Herbert R. Gregory at Richmond, it was announced yesterday.

Almond, elected by the General Assembly, succeeds the late Harvey B. Apperson, who died April 1.

Almond said he will rule as soon as possible on his position under the Swanson resolution, which calls for an investigation of the practices and policies of Richmond newspapers by the attorney general to determine if any violation of monopoly laws has occurred.

Meanwhile, the Sixth District Republican Convention has empowered the district committee to name a candidate for Congress to succeed Almond.

Talks on Health Wind Up Fete to B. T. Washington

Booker T. Washington Birthplace, Va., April 5 (AP).—Negro school children of Franklin County climaxed a two-day celebration of the birthday of Booker T. Washington today with observance of the 34th annual Negro Health Week.

Negro Health Week was sponsored by Washington to promote better health among the people of his race.

S. J. Phillips, president of the Birthplace Memorial to Washington, told those attending the celebration that the average life span of Negroes is one-third less than that of other Americans.

Dr. F. W. Clayter, Negro physician of Roanoke, Va., spoke on health education. Demonstrations were given on home beautification, meal planning, gardening, table setting and caring for the home and farm milk supply.

Health Official Will Ask Women To Quit Hospital

Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, head of the District Health Department's tuberculosis bureau, will make a bedside appeal today to 10 tubercular women patients at Freedmen's Hospital to accept a transfer to Glenn Dale Sanitorium.

The decision to make the plea was reached after a meeting yesterday between Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, and Herman A. Johnson, assistant superintendent of Freedmen's.

Transfer of the patients was ordered last month as an economy measure because appropriations for care of city patients at Freedmen's already are overdrawn, and Glenn Dale rates are lower.

Virginia Electric Agrees to 10 Pct. Increase in Pay

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—The Virginia Electric & Power Co. and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers agreed today on a 1948-49 contract providing for a 10 per cent wage hike.

The pay boost will be retroactive to April 1 and will affect 2250 Vepco production and maintenance workers.

Negotiations had been in progress since February 11. The IBEW had sought a 13 per cent wage increase and other contract improvements, some of which were granted in today's agreement.

A Vepco representative said the new contract will raise company expenses for wages by $500,000 to $600,000 annually.

Detectives Check Records in 'Fix' Case at Howard U.

Police will confer today with the office of the United States Attorney on what action can be taken in the "fixing" of students' records at Howard University.

Police action began Saturday when Carl Prince, 21, a university student, was arrested on a charge of using false pretenses in taking $100 from a girl student in return for promising to have her reinstated in the university.

He was accused by police of beeing the head of a grades fixing racket involving some nine clerks in university offices who allegedly removed students' records from the files. Some 200 or 300 students cards were said by Registrar Frederick D. Wilkinson to be missing. Two detectives went over the records yesterday.

Lawrence Price New Chief Deputy

Appointment of Lawrence Price to the position of chief deputy sheriff was announced yesterday by Sheriff Frank I. Davis of Montgomery County.

Price, a deputy for nine years, succeeds Hugh F. O'Donnell, 74, of 824 Sligo ave., Silver Spring, who retired April 1.

Missionary Meeting Set

Leesburg, Va., April 5 (Spl.).—Group No. 1, Woman's Missionary Society, Potomac Baptist Association, will hold an all-day session in Little River Baptist Church Thursday, beginning at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. Paul B. Watlington, jr., Purcellville, will deliver the sermon. The program will include a music selection by Mrs. Nellie Allensworth of Leesburg. A report on the State meeting at Lynchburg will be given by Mrs. G. E. Barham, Arlington. Mrs. T. M. Yakey, Purcellville, is the group leader.

Air Crash Victim, 4, Has Chance to Live

Churchville, Md., April 5 (AP).—Four-year-old Chris Bull, injured yesterday in a plane crash, was reported improved today in a Havre de Grace hospital.

Dr. Sheerin, Epiphany's Rector, Dies

Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, 50, rector of Epiphany Episcopal Church, and formerly vice president of the National Episcopal Council, died yesterday morning of a heart attack.

Dr. Sheerin

His death occurred at his home, 2312 Tracy pl. nw., where he had been resting since Saturday night, when he complained of being ill.

Thrice in his ministerial career Dr. Sheerin was nominated for elevation to bishop. In 1937, when rector of St. Paul's Church, Chattanooga, he was nominated Bishop of Tennessee. In 1940, while with the National Episcopal Council, he was nominated Bishop of Chicago. In March, 1947, he was one of four clerics nominated for Bishop of western New York. Much in demand as a speaker, he was summer exchange preacher with the Church of England in 1938.

Active In Organizations

He formerly was regent of the University of the South and a trustee of the St. Paul Polytechnic Institute and the Bishop Payne Divinity School. At the time of his death he was a trustee of the Virginia Theological Seminary, of which he is a graduate; national president of the Episcopal service for Youth; board member of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and of the Washington Mental Hygiene Institute, chairman of the Spreakers' Bureau of the Washington Community Chest.

Dr. Sheerin also was a board member of the Federation of Churches; mmebers of the social service department of the Federal Council of Churches; an honorary canon of the Washington Cathedral; member of the Washington Diocesan executive council and chairman of the diocesan department of social relations.

Dr. Sheerin was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., August 2, 1897, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. James Sheerin. He attended Kenyon College in 1915-17, and while a student at Columbia University from 1919-21, he studied theology at Union Seminary, New York City, before attending Virginia Seminary. The University of the South, Sewannee, Tennessee, awarded him a Doctor of Divinity degree in 1936.

Career in Ministry

He began his ministry as assistant rector of St. Thomas' Church, New York City. He served Trinity Church, Fredericksburg, Va., from 1925 to 1928; St. Paul's Church, Waco, Tex., from 1928-29; Grace and Holy Trinity Church, Richmond, Va., 1929 to 1934, when he went to St. Paul's, Chattanooga. He came to Epiphany Church in 1942.

Surviving are his wife, Marie Williams Sheerin; three children, Charles W. Sheerin, jr., student at the University of Virginia; Miss Marie W. Sheerin, student at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and Miss Elizabeth L. Sheerin, student at Holton Arms School here; and two sisters, Mrs. Benfield Pressy, Hanover, N. H., and Mrs. Theodore Lay, Palandone, Long Island, N. Y.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, will conduct funeral services Wednesday at noon in Epiphany Church. The Rev. Richard Williams, assistant rector of Epiphany Church, will assist. The body will lie in state at the church beginning Tuesday at 10 a. m.

Members of the vestry who will be pallbearers are Dr. John Minor, Dr. Harry Hurtt, H. Rozier Dulany, jr., Dr. Leonard M. Elstad, Richard Hynson, J. Pervis Milnor, Charles F. Roberts, Richard E. Shands, Richard H. Wilmer and John S. Graham. Private interment will be in the cemetery of the Virginia Theological Seminary. The family has requested donations to the Virginia Seminary Building Fund instead of flowers.

Best Charged With 2-Fold Aid to Nazis

Boston, April 5 (AP).—The Government charged today that Robert H. Best, on trial for treason, aided the German war effort by suggesting a two-fold program—the crestion of "war weariness" in America and lauding the Nazis as "crusaders of civilization."

Heading into the second week of trial, United States prosecutors told a Federal court jury that Best:

1. Advocated the "war weariness" campaign as the "only chance Germany has of concluding peace with America."

Frightened Flock Flees as Bells Toll Mysteriously

Cuernavaca, Mexico, April 5 (U.P.).—Fearful parishioners of the Church of the Tepetates packed up their belongings and moved to the other side of town today.

Three different times the bells in the church tower rang last night without anyone swinging on the bell cord. After the second ringing, Father Daniel Santana said "it was probably the wind," although there was almost no breeze. He searched the church, and found no one, but took the long bell cord off the clapper, just in case it was a prankster. Assuring the faithful they would not be disturbed again, he ordered them back to their homes. But half an hour later, the bells sounded.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Dies At 73 Following Heart Attack

Mrs. Rockefeller

Her death came at her Park Avenue apartment the day after she had participated in a family reunion attended by her daughter, five sons and 18 grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller returned last Friday from a vacation at Tucson, Ariz. They held the reunion yesterday at their Pocantico Hills estate near Tarrytown, N. Y.

A native of Providence, R. I., Mrs. Rockefeller, as Abby Greene Aldrich, was herself the heiress to a traction fortune. Hhe father was Nelson W. Aldrich, for years a powerful member of the U. S. Senate. Her brother is Winthrop Aldrich, noted banker.

She met John D. Rockefeller, jr., heir to the Nation's greatest oil fortune, when he attended Brown University at Providence from 1893 to 1897. They were married in 1901.

For many years Mrs. Rockefeller assisted her husband in the philanthropies to which a large portion of the family fortune was devoted. She also aided many women's organizations and was interested in collection of modern art.

Mrs. Rockefeller's survivors, beside her husband, include her daughter, Mrs. Abby Rockefeller Milton Pardee; her sons, John D. 3d, Nelson, Laurance, Winthrop and David; two sisters, Miss Lucy Aldrich of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. N. Stuart Campbell of Greenwich, Conn.; and four brothers, Edward B. and Stuart M. Aldrich, both of Providence, William T. of Brookline, Mass., and Winthrop W. of New York.

Funeral arrangements were not complete. The family announced that services would be private with burial at Sleepy Hollow near Tarrytown. The body will be cremated.

150,000 Jam Hains Point at Spring's Call

Tourists and residents crowded parks and public monuments. As an example, crowds estimated at 150,000 persons by Lieut. William R. Lutes of the United States Park Police jammed the Hains Point section of Potomac Park.

Among those taking advantage of the sunny day—during which the temperature hovered about the 60 mark much of the afternoon—was President Truman, who strolled up Pennsylvania ave. in mid-morning.

Aside from the escorting Secret Service men, the thing that set the President apart from most of his fellow Americans in the city was the fact that he didn't carry a camera.

More spring weather is due today, with the forecast reading "mostly sunny and warmer." The temperature is expected to reach 75 degrees this afternoon after an early morning low of 42 degrees. Low temperature yesterday was 35 degrees at 5:30 a. m.

The double blossom cherry trees are expected to bloom the latter part of the week, in time for the cherry blossom festival next Saturday and Sunday at Hains Point.

Families picnicked, couples walked hand in hand or bicycled, and fishermen lined the banks of the Potomac River, as sailboats spanked with the breeze and planes lazed overhead.

40 Enrolled For Cancer Course Here

A group of 40 nursing consultants and instructors in universities and hospitals today will begin a course in cancer control at Catholic University, Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Agency administrator, said yesterday.

The course, first in a Nationwide series, will last three weeks. It is sponsored jointly by the National Cancer Institute of the United States Public Health Service, and Catholic University. Those attending will represent public health agencies, universities and hospitals in the District, Maryland, Virginia and West V rginia.

Dr. Austin V. Deibert, director of control work at the National Cancer Institute, believes "probably half" of the annual cancer death toll could be avoided by earlier detection and prompt treatment.

"Because of her direct contact with people in their homes," he said, "the public health nurse is on our first line of attack. She must learn to recognize conditions which may become malignant unless remedied, and also to detect cancer in its early, curable stages. The hospital nurse, too, must learn increasing alertness to cancer signs. Both can help educate the public."

HELPS RESTORE SPRING FLOWER BEAUTY TO FADING SKIN

In the secret heart of every wife lives the hope that fading face and throat skin won't prematurely destroy her charm. If even a trace of such a fear haunts you, start today with ENDOCREME. For most women, ENDOCREME can help the skin retain, or recapture, firmness, freshness, smoothness, youthful-looking loveliness, to a degree hitherto thought impossible through cosmetics. ENDOCREME alone contains ACTIVOL, an effective replacement for a certain natural feminine substance essential to skin beauty. Absorbed by the skin, it helps restore normal growth to ageing cells and tissue. ENDOCREME comes to your dressing table backed by a ten-year record of widely proven benefits. Many report marked results in only 30 days. $3.50 (plus tax), 30 days' supply.

MRS. M. D. BITTENBENDER

The Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation was the scene of the marriage on April 3 of Miss Virginia Lee Stallings to Milton D. Bittenbender. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Lawson Stallings of Washington and the late Mr. Stallings. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Bittenbender, also of this city.

The Rev. Stuart F. Gast performed the ceremony and Dorsey K. Offutt gave his cousin in marriage. The bride wore an ivory satin gown with a seed pearl headdress and carried an orchid with her prayer book. Mrs. Paul R. Lehman, wearing light blue faille and carrying spring flowers, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Robert W. Jonscher, gowned in yellow faille, also attended the bride. Abbott Henry was best man and the ushers were Robert W. Jonscher, John Reed Levy and William Spellbring.

Schmitt—Mundie

Miss Agnes Mundie became the bride of Henry Alfred Schmitt at the Holy Comforter Catholic Church at 10 a. m. April 3. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Mundie of this city, she was given in marriage by her father. Mr. Schmitt is the son of John V. Schmitt of Washington and the late Mrs. Schmitt.

The bride wore white satin made with a long train, a veil of illusion trimmed in lace and carried roses and orchids. Mrs. William D. Stone attended her sister as matron of honor, wearing blue lace. Mrs. Alden D. Maffett and Mrs. T. Raymond Mundie were bridesmaids, wearing satin gowns, one in dusty rose, the other in sea green. Clarence B. Schmitt was best man for his brother, and ushers were Paul C. Schmitt, another brother, and Joseph E. Mundie and T. Raymond Mundie, brothers of the bride.

The bride attended St. Cecilia's Academy and the bridegroom Columbus University School of Law.

War Correspondent Recalls Dancing Under Red Banners On Blind Date in Tito-Land

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

Today is Army Day. Maj. Gen. F. L. Parks, chief of the Army's public information division, has suggested to war correspondents that this is an appropriate time to republish their favorite war story. Mrs. Thayer was a correspondent from Poland to Greece in Eastern Europe, arriving behind the Iron Curtain six weeks after VE-Day. Correspondents in these areas were rated as war correspondents, traveled in uniform until peace treaties were signed last year. This story was written in Belgrade at the beginning of August, 1945, and was published in Promenade.

I WAS HURRYING toward the British signal station to file a dispatch. The lights along the Kraljeva Milena were dim. Footsteps were echoing mine, and instinctively I quickened pace. Soon he came abreast. He was tall and dressed with more elegance than the usual Belgrade swain. He swept off his hat.

"Lady, don't get mad. I've waited outside the hotel three evenings to meet you. I have a friend working at your embassy and he told me your name."

I assured him I wouldn't get mad.

"I'm a sportsman and well known here—won't you come dancing with me?"

"Sure," I said, "why not?"

"I'll take you to the Engineers Club where they're having a dance. It would interest you, but you must promise not to speak English and to dance with no one but me."

It was dangerous for any Yugoslav to be seen with a foreigner. So I promised. I filed my dispatch and as we turned back to the center of town, the sound of Russian soldiers singing swelled through the warm dark. A marching song, excitingly pitched in several keys, its wild crescendo crashed abruptly as the platoon swung into the Kraljeva Milena. For a minute or two there was silence except for the stamp of heavy boots. Then like the crack of a pistol, a sharp command rang out. The soldiers wheeled in one incredibly swift motion and melted back into the gloom.

Suddenly I felt cold. "I'd like a drink," I said. We found a combination ice cream parlor and bar. The blazing lights were reassuring. My new friend ordered me a rakija. "I like to keep in training so I don't drink," he explained. He was older than I thought, and getting a bit bald.

"I'm 28, almost too old to be a boxer." His English stumbled badly. "I've fought in England, and in 1940 Mike Jacobs wired me to come to New York." He handed the sweaty waiter 10 dinars.

Lectures on Hating U. S.

THERE ARE NO taxis in Belgrade, and when we cut off the avenue into a side street he held my elbow genteely, steering me around odd shell holes and piles of rubbish.

"This is the first time I've been out with an American. You know, when any Yugoslav girl goes out with an American soldier, she is picked up the next morning by OZNA (Yugoslav secret police, coyly called Defenders of the People's Rights). I'll be questioned tomorrow if they figure out who you are.

"You know I'm on leave, but I'm still in the army and once a week an officer lectures us—tells us the United States stinks and why we should despise her. As practically everyone has a relative in the States, it doesn't go over very big except with those who have come along since the war. I'm still a private, by the way, because you can't get to be an officer unless you join Tito's party."

We turned a sharp corner, saw a large office building floodlit, two sentries flanking the entrance. Nestled in red bunting over the door were jumbo chromos of Stalin and Tito. "I don't care," he continued, "I'm getting out of the country."

"They'll never let you," I kibitzed practically.

"Oh, if you have the money it's easy to get across the border near Trieste . . . We're almost there . . . Please don't talk English!"

Twelve-Year-Old Voters

WE PASSED the sentries' scrutiny and entered a vast, shabby hallway. The engineers, it turned out, were radio employes and this was some sort of broadcasting station. Knots of young men and women were standing about. There were a few Partisan officers and a couple of small kids in regular uniforms. They had run errands or done some trifling favor when the Partisans were "in the woods." As a reward, they could wear khaki and were entitled to vote.

"Something new in civilization, isn't it, when 12-year-old children can vote?" remarked the prizefighter acidly. "But it's an easy way for Tito to snare some really legitimate votes."

The young men were either coatless or wore pinchback jackets which were considered the ultimate in Balkan chic. The barelegged girls had on the simplest, obviously homemade dresses. Though I wore plain black linen, my stockings and heeled shoes made me instantly conspicuous. A great many of the boys and girls greeted my companion, but he switched me away to avoid introductions.

U.S. Should Admit Worthy DP's, Mrs. Bridges Tells G. O. P. Club

"Displaced persons camps are one of the great cancers of Europe," declared Mrs. Styles Bridges, wife of the New Hampshire Senator, in an address yesterday before the D. C. League of Republican Women in the Mayflower Hotel.

"About 30 per cent of the occupants are Poles, 20 per cent Jewish and the rest from Baltic countries," she explained. "Many of them would make good American citizens." Mrs. Bridges said, advocating legislation to take our share of the DP's. "We could screen the DP's before bringing them in to make sure we are getting worthy ones," she declared.

Mrs. Bridges criticized the United States handling of the reparations problem in Germany. She said that soap and glass factories erecting war memorials to the Russia and her satellite countries as well as to France."

"I am not pro Nazi," she declared. "I think all munition plants should be destroyed along with other war potential. But soap and glass are so desperately needed by the Germans, I don't think it makes sense for us to destroy the plants, then have to buy the items for them. I think the 48 million Germans should become self-supporting and be taken off the backs of the American taxpayers."

Describing conditions in Italy, Mrs. Bridges said that the northern part is a "bee hive of activity," also that it is the strongest Communist foothold. "The Italians are working hard to rebuild their country," she explained. "They have food production up to 75 per cent of what it was before the war."

In her annual report to the league, Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, president, revealed that there has been a 25 per cent membership increase during the past year; that the league has doubled its cash balance in the treasury; that the league also raised half the campaign funds for the District State Committee.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Unattractive to Girls His Age, Man Married Older Woman and They Were Happy for a While; But Now She Is Jealous and He's Dissatisfied

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Five years ago, at the age of 23, I married a girl who was then 33. We were in love, and for a while we were happy. Our backgrounds were much the same and it seemed we had everything in common.

Lately, however, I have been unhappy due to the change in my wife. Everything has to go her way. She chooses our friends and carefully eliminates any very young women.

She seems to find every young girl "common," especially if the girl is attractive; yet she will coquette with any man she thinks attractive, even if he is little more than a bum. She will fall all over some man who isn't in her social class, and at the same time snub his wife.

Man Is Nervous; His Hands Shake

MY WIFE is clever and accomplished, but very jealous of any woman who has comparable talents, especially if the other woman excels. Neither of us is the rugged type, and we have one child, a boy, who isn't very husky either.

As a youth I never made much of a hit with girls my age; and it seemed truly wonderful when this love came into my life. But now I am becoming very nervous, my hands shake, etc., and I have to get away from home occasionally to steady myself. At this writing I am having a holiday at a resort hotel; but still I cannot forget my troubles. Can you help me?

G. E.

Situation Recalls Famous Conundrum

DEAR G. E.: This situation reminds me of the famous conundrum, "which comes first, the chicken or the egg?"

By implication you are holding your wife to blame for your tacit rejection of her; and yet the general feel of your story indicates that your instability may have evoked that change in her which you deplore.

To explain: You say that you have been unhappy lately, due to this change in her; and then go on to describe the change in terms which give a picture of an uneasy wife, harried by jealous anxiety, aggressively trying to eliminate potential love-rivals and promote evidence to the effect that she is still attractive to men—hence should be desirable to her obviously dissatisfied husband.

You recall that her love seemed truly wonderful at first, inasmuch as you were a failure, romantically, with girls your age. Which is to say that you married her in desperation, to assuage mate-hunger and craving for affection, taking a blind chance that rationally satisfying companionship might eventuate—and indeed without thinking that far ahead.

What Happened To Their 'Love'

IN PROPORTION as this arrangement appeased your initial indiscriminate hunger, your appreciation of her interest (or accommodating attitude) gradually dwindled; and simultaneously the male's natural instinct to seek affinity, previously discouraged, began to revive and operate, at least unconsciously, in your personality,—a threatening development, from your wife's viewpoint, which she soon sensed, and to which she reacted in the manner described.

Then, of course, you had plausible overt justification for feeling hostile and looking askance at her, and now the vicious circle is in full swing, with neither more to blame than the other, and each equally ignorant of what goes on psychologically.

This business of running away from the problem periodically to calm your nerves is a waste of time, which won't bring respite from tension, much less cure the trouble. In my opinion, a psychiatric study of personality factors contributing to the situation is the only sensible approach to a mutually beneficial solution. Substantial progress in self-understanding must be achieved, before common sense remedies can be developed.

Gen. Taylor Urges Woman's Democratic Club to Back UMT

Brig. Gen. John Thomas Taylor (ret.), national legislation director of the American Legion, yesterday called upon members of the Woman's National Democratic Club to urge immediate congressional action on Universal Military Training and the Selective Service program.

Guest of honor and speaker at the club's luncheon, held in headquarters at 1626 New Hampshire ave., he said that the House Rules Committee has refused to report out Bill H. 4278 to give the House of Representatives a chance to vote on UMT and Selective service. He blamed the Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin, the majority leader and other GOP heads for holding up the bill.

General Taylor told the feminine audience to contact in person or by letters congressional letters to get results on UMT. "The American people are for UMT," he said. "You should see that Congress follows the conscience and will of the people."

Pointing out the weakness of our present defense, the speaker said that Russia now has a standing army of over four million men. "We can't ever again depend on friends to hold the line while we prepare," he said.

Discussing the concept of "push-button warfare," he said: "The more powerful the weapons, the more manpower will be required to make and use them. It will require 10 fold more men to develop and guard airfields around the globe than were used in World War II. We must have a stockpile of manpower as well as of materials."

Southern Church Women Back Civil Rights Program, Mrs. Tilly Says

By Genevieve Reynolds

Mrs. M. E. Tilly of Georgia, member of the President's Committee on Civil Rights, declared last night that general sentiment in the south against the Civil Rights program has been greatly exaggerated.

Speaking at the opening session of the eighth annual meeting of B'nai B'rith Women Council, which convened in the Statler Hotel, she said that the "voices who oppose the Civil Rights Program are heard over and over again. No new ones join them."

Mrs. Tilly, who is enroute to Huntington, West Va., to address a gathering of the Methodist Women of the Northeast States, said that she had as much hope for the South as any other section. She recalled that the State Chairman of the Georgia National Democratic Committee last week issued a statement advocating equal education opportunities plus the vote for Negroes.

Then she told of resolutions passed by the Methodist Women of the Southeast States in a recent session at Orlando, Fla. One of the resolutions adopted called upon Methodist women to work for Federal and State legislation to guarantee civil rights to the peoples of the Nation. Another recommended work to supplement the Supreme Court ruling relative to admission of all individuals, regardless of race or creed, to educational institutions for graduate training in our schools, both church and State controlled.

"It was not political expediency that brought the President's Committee on Civil Rights into being," explained Mrs. Tilly. "It came about in the orderly course of events. Man has ever been in search of freedom and security. Our own Nation was established by men in search of liberty and founded on the principles that all men are created equal.

"Twice before our nation has taken stock of the rights enjoyed by its people to measure the progress made toward our ideals of government," she continued. "First time was when the Bill of Rights was added to the Constitution, and again after the War Between the States, when other amendments were added. Since then our population has increased to 140 million people and again it was time to measure progress."

The speaker emphasized that the President's Civil Rights report was not sectional . . . that it was not aimed at any one section of the country, but "sought to uncover the sins and ills wherever they happen to be—whether in the North, East, South or West, or in the Federal Government. The report is not a race report. It is the status of the civil rights of all," she asserted. "Whatever makes the Negro servile, the Jew exclusive, the Mexican evade citizenship, weakens our whole national fabric."

Mrs. Abram Orlow, president of the Supreme Council, reported to the 50 delegates present that the organization's membership increased from 92,000 to 103,000 during the past year.

"During the same period 52 new women's chapters have been organized and the total contributions to various B'nai B'rith projects, plus community philanthropic projects, increased from $600,000 to $850,000," she said. "Nine new chapters are functioning in foreign countries including five in Palestine, two in England, one in Australia and one in Mexico."

Among overseas activities she listed aid to the Home for Maladjusted Children in Palestine in the sum of $25,000; 3500 families adopted under the organization's Adopt-a-Family Program; purchase of medical equipment for B'nai B'rith Hospital in Shanghai; tons of clothing, medical supplies, kitchen utensils and household equipment for Joint Distribution Committee's Nation-wide S.O.S. drive.

Mrs. Raie Canetti, former president of B'nai B'rith Women in Athens, Greece, will be the principal speaker at this morning's session.

Adventure in Yugoslavia

moodily sat apart, blowing with melancholy dignity. The drummer chatted with pals. Sometimes, I suspected, they were tootling different tunes. Tight-packed, the couples shuffled to the limp jazz rhythm so different from the energetic circling of their native kolo.

We went downstairs to the smoky buffet where beer and monster slabs of bread spread with meat or cheese were sold. The floor was covered with sawdust. Every inch of wall space not embellished with Stalin or Tito was plastered with red banners.

Roughly translated, the legends read, "Happiness and security can only be based on Soviet-Yugoslav unity"—"Soviets, Yugoslavs, together we march to new frontiers, together we fight for our glowing future."

My friend waved a scornful hand. "Eyewash," he hissed. He was bubbling like a volcano about to erupt. Too many were watching, it was the moment to bow out.

"How Can I Get to America?"

ONCE ON THE STREET he let off steam. "There is no future here for anyone but Communists. I'm getting out right away. Please help me get out to the States!"

It was the same desperate refrain I heard a dozen times a day. "How can I get to America?"

"I can't help you," I replied. "It's impossible to get to the States now.'

"Well, at least, give me a letter to someone in Italy, someone who will tell me what to do," he begged.

"If they catch you and find a letter from me you'll be shot."

"They'll never find it. "Look!" He stooped, fumbled with his shoe, held a small object close so I could see it. I was baffled. "It's my heel. It's hollow and comes unscrewed!"

Sentries guarded my hotel, OZNA agents sat in the hall, no Yugoslavs ever dared escort me to the door. My prizefighting friend left me a block away. He kissed my hand.

"My friends will all wonder about you and be envious," he said gallantly. "If you don't mind, I'll tell them I'm having an affair with you!"

Before I could say a word he added hurriedly, "I'll call for the letter tomorrow afternoon." Then, like the Russian soldiers, he disappeared in the gloom.

The Child's Allowance

When starting a child on his own allowance, give him the usual advice about wasting his money and then let him alone to figure it out for himself. After a few weeks of poor balancing you will find he will soon discover for himself how to get the most out of it and this first-hand knowledge will do lots more good than advice from the older folks.

Book Shelves

When building shelves for books it is a wise precaution to allow 2 or 3 inches between the wall and books for free circulation of air. This is especially advisable if the books are old or valuable, for books jammed against the wall often mean that the dampness from the wall will permeate the book, cause mold and perhaps the loosening of binding and pages.

Blistered Walls

Moisture is the direct cause of blisters on painted walls and it is useless to try to remove the blemish by applying more paint. Moisture is entering the wall and the painted surface is being soaked from the back. The only way to prevent this is to locate the leaks and close them. All loose paint around a blister should be removed before repainting.

How to Remove Lipstick Stains

My problem is an apricot slipper satin formal with year-old lipstick stains on it. What's the best way to remove the spots? F. G. M.

Work petroleum jelly or lard into the spots. Allow to remain a while to soften stains. Then sponge with cleaning fluid, holding the spot over an absorbent pad. If trace of color remains, it may be removed by sponging with diluted alcohol (1 cup denatured alcohol to 2 cups water). Proceed cautiously in using the alcohol, as it may affect color.

Last fall your column gave the name of some solution, sold in jars, to put in a closet in sections of the country where mold was very prevalent. Could you give me the name, and, if possible, where it might be bought? P. B. L.

Solid calcium chloride placed in open containers in the closet or damp rooms will absorb moisture from the air. There are air dryers on the market which use this chemical and can be purchased complete with the chemical and the container for it. Or, you can buy the chemical and place it in flat metal containers such as a letter wire basket which have several decks. These can be purchased at stationery stores. Pile the calcium chloride into each basket and place the entire frame into a larger metal container to catch the drip. More calcium chloride is added every few days to make up for that which is liquefied by moisture from the air. Do not pour the resulting liquid on vegetation because it will kill it. It might be poured instead on driveways and paths to kill weeds. Calcium chloride can be purchased at most hardware stores.

How can I remove baby's formula, which contains milk and dextrimaltose, on a wool crepe skirt? It has not been dry cleaned. K. A.

Place an absorbent pad under the stained area and sponge with carbon tetrachloride. Let it dry, and if any stain remains, sponge with cold or just warm water. If this doesn't remove the stain completely, dampen the stained area with water, sprinkle with powdered pepsin and let it stand for 30 minutes. Brush away the pepsin and sponge with clean water to remove all trace of the pepsin.

Can you recommend anything for cleansing plastered walls with a lime (white) coat? We do not feel able to paint them at the present, but they do need cleaning—they have soot, crayon marks and are just plain dirty. L. W. S.

You might improve the appearance of your walls somewhat by washing them but, since a plastered wall is porus, not too much improvement can be expected by any cleaning method. To wash them, use one of the powdered wall and paint cleaning preparations on the market, the type which is dissolved in water. Or, use two tablespoons trisodium phosphate dissolved in a gallon of lukewarm water. For best results, begin at the base board and work upward. If you begin at the top, soiled water might run down the dry wall and leave streaks which are all but impossible to remove. Use a circular motion and be sure to rinse well before the soiled water has had an opportunity to dry on the walls.

Any crayon marks remaining after washing may be removed by covering them with a quarter-inch-thick layer of Fuller's earth, moistened with carbon tetrachloride. Allow to stand until dry and brush away. If this doesn't completely remove the spots, repeat.

To H. D. G., who inquired about removing a glass bottle stopper: A simple way to do it is to take another glass bottle and knock the neck of the bottle where stopper is stuck. After two or three little taps (harder if necessary), stopper comes out. R. N.

H. D. G. may be able to remove the glass bottle stopper that is stuck with glycerine. Drop glycerine into the crack at the top and leave it for a few days. If there isn't enough collar to hold the glycerine, she could invert the bottle in glycerine, maybe. After glycerine has soaked in between bottle neck and stopper, twist the latter loose. R. N.

Thanks to R. W. and R. N. for these hints. Thanks also to G. S. D. and B. W., who sent in similar suggestions.

Yes, one such preparation is sold by a local manufacturer's representative who can be contacted by calling Victor 6098 in the evenings. Since the preparation is mixed with water, draperies should be washable if you use it.

Chorus Routine Will Slim Thighs

By Ida Jean Kain

TURN on the music and swing into the chorus girls' routine to streamline the thighs. It takes a special exercise technique to slim down or round out this part of the figure. To show you how beautifully the technique works, our model Barbara Anne slimmed three inches off each thigh, changing her thigh measurement from 24 to 21 inches . . . the exact thigh measurement of the famed Radio City Rockettes. If you are slightly built, your thighs may be perfect at 19 inches. Or, stockily built, your should look right at 22 inches. It depends on structure.

Some of the most powerful, longest and largest muscles of the body flank the thighs. That makes it a bit easier to understand why lack of muscle tone has such bulging consequences for the plump gals, and leaves the thin gals out on a scrawny limb in a bathing suit. The action of the inner and outer thigh muscles is a combination of adduction, abduction and flexion—an in-swing; an out-swing, curving to the rear; and knee flexion . . . chorus girl fashion.

The first swing works directly on the inner thigh muscles.

Position: Standing, hand on back of chair for support . . . leg raised as high as comfortable, about parallel to the floor.

Movement: In a cross swing, move the leg directly inward, knee straight, then swing out to the opposite side as far as possible. Holding the leg at that level, swing six times, then swing the other leg. Rest and repeat six counts more with each leg.

Movement: With the point of the knee, describe circles, circling first in one direction for 10 counts, then in the other. Relax. Repeat, flexing opposite knee and circling.

It takes a different technique to reach those pin-cushion bunches of fat that cling persistently to the outer side of hip and thigh. Put a curve on the swing.

Position: Standing, left hand on chair back for support.

Movement: Swing the right leg, knee stiff, toward the side and back. Place hand on bulge and direct the angle of the curve through the bulge. Resist with the front thigh muscles as you circle slowly. Continue six times, rest, change sides and repeat with the other leg. Repeat another six counts with each leg.

Court Hears Rape Verdict Suit Appeal

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—A $50,000 judgment in the case of a woman who claimed she was attacked by a crew member on a steamer between Old Point, Va., and Washington, figured in one of two cases heard here today at the opening of the April term of the Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The other concerned a railway crossing accident case appealed to the court for the second time.

A Delaware corporation, Dichmann, Wright & Pugh, appealed from the verdict of a Norfolk District Court awarding $50,000 to Mrs. Lillian A. Weade, $1000 to her husband, Frederick M. Weade, and $5000 to her companion, Roberta L. Stinemeyer.

Evidence presented in the Norfolk court indicated that a crew member of the ship Meteor, entered the stateroom occupied by the woman and her companion August 4, 1945, and raped the woman.

The corporation in its appeal asserted among other arguments that the verdicts were excessive; the crewman was an employe of the United States under a contract between the corporation and the Government; a photograph offered in evidence was prejudicial; the court erred in its charge to the jury and in overruling the defendant's motions on merits.

The company attorneys claimed today that the ship was being operated by the United States War Shipping Administration and that the Government was the employer of the crewman. It claimed further that any recovery by the women should have been banned by their contributory negligence in leaving their stateroom window and shutter open.

In the second case heard today the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. appealed from a $7000 judgment that had been awarded Scott O. Deneen on a claim for damages for injuries suffered in a railroad crossing accident in West Virginia.

Criminal Action Is Ruled Out in Empire Collapse

No criminal prosecution will follow the partial collapse of the Empire Building, 9th and New York ave. nw., District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald and Assistant United States Attorney John C. Conliff, jr., said yesterday.

The decision was reached after a review of the report by the Empire Building investigating board, and an inquiry by the Police Homicide Squad. Conliff concluded there was insufficient evidence for prosecution. Dr. MacDonald issued certificates of accidental death for the four persons killed in the December 16, 1947, accident.

Nineteen persons have filed civil suits totaling $1,075,000 against Nick Papanicolas, building owner.

Compensation Pay Office Under Scrutiny

Centerville, Md., April 5 (AP).—State's Attorney Edward Turner announced today he is investigating the disbursing section of the umemployment compensation office in Queen Anne's County.

"My investigations," Turner said, "make it appear to me that the employes charged with the responsibility of disbursing unemployment funds in Queen Anne's County are not complying strictly with the statute coverihg such disbursements."

Berryville High Gets 3 Literary Winners

Berryville, Va., April 5.—The Berryville High School placed three winners in the tournament three winners in the literary tournament held at Woodstock. Archie Robertson and Alice Langbein won the boys' and girls' public speaking contests, and Philip Slagle was winner of the boys' prose reading.

Other district winners eligible to compete in the regional meet Saturday at Harrisonburg are Donald Marks, Stephens City, spelling; Jane Langlin, Woodstock, girls' prose reading; Jane Stinson, Woodstock, poetry reading.

Eastern Shore Parley On Fire Prevention

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—Formation of an Eastern Shore fire prevention committee will be undertaken at a meeting in the Salisbury State Teachers College next Saturday, State Insurance Commissioner Claude A. Hanley announced today.

Hanley is chairman of the Maryland Fire Safety Committee. He said the Salisbury meeting will be the first of four regional conferences to discuss ways of reducing fire losses.

$10,000 in Goods Stolen at Winchester

Winchester, Va. April 5.—Police today were investigating theft of about $10,000 in merchandise, mostly jewlry, taken from the Jewel Box Store over the weekend.

Jack Sporkin, manager, discovered the robbery when he opened the store this morning. Entry apparently had been gained through a rear door which was found open.

Women's Club Meeting

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—The convention of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs will be held here April 12-13, with a banquet April 12, when Miss Induk Pahk, of Korea, will speak.

Democrats to Pick Men for Councils In Virginia Cities

Charlottesville, Va., April 5 (AP). Charlottesville Democrats will vote Tuesday on nominees for three seats on the city council.

Seven candidatcs are in the primary field. They are Henry A. Haden, Strother F. Hamm, T. W. Etheridge, Harry J. Brown, Dr. Frank D. Daniel W. T. Barnett and Dr. B. A. Coles, the last named a Negro dentist.

In Williamsburg nine candidates are in the field for nomination for the five councilmanic seats in Tuesday's Democratic primary.

The candidates are Mayor Vincent D. McManus, Vice Mayor H. M. Stryker, Lloyd H. Williams and John G. Warburton, incumbents, and A. W. Hitchens, a former councilman; Elmer D. Messick, Winston Butts, Horace E. Henderson and Dr. C. F. March.

In Petersburg, Democrats Tuesday will ballot on a slate of seven candidates to nominate three candidates for city council.

The slate includes Gordon T. Winfield, John A. Long, Victor M. Halbert, Raymond J. Valentine, John G. Weeks, Frank E. Lescanec and Samuel W. Cole.

Revamped Guard Parade Feature Of Md. Army Day

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—Second Army units and Maryland's National Guard will march here Tuesday.

The Free State observance of Army Day will be concentrated in Baltimore, with Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, Second Army Commander, heading the activities.

The parade will include three bands, 1200 soldiers and WACS, 110 combat vehicles and 25 artillery pieces. While units from Fort Meade, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Edgewood Arsenal and Camp Holabird are marching, a formation of fighter planes will fly overhead.

The Twenty-ninth Division of the Maryland Guard will march as a whole for the first time since postwar reorganization.

Aberdeen Proving Ground will be open to the public. On display will be such war weapons as 100-ton tanks and a German rifle that shoots around corners.

NLRB Gets First Case Involving 'Illegal' Strike

CIO counsel told the National Labor Relations Board the act did not make unlawful the 1947 strike at the Perry Norvell Co., Huntington, W. Va.

Company and NLRB counsel contended the strike was illegal and was led by a committee serving as a CIO front prior to the termination date of a company contract with an AFL union.

It was the first unfair labor practices charge to be argued before the board since the new act became effective last August.

52 Scheduled For Graduation

Charles Town, W. Va., April 5.—Fifty-two seniors were announced today by Principal T. A. Lowery as candidates for graduation from Charles Town High School, May 26. The list includes 25 girls and 27 boys.

The Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, D.D., professor of theology at the Lutheran Seminary in Gettysburg, Pa., will deliver the baccalaureate the preceding Sunday evening. The address to the graduates at the finals will be by Dr. Robert D. Baldwin, of the College of Education, West Virginia University.

Miss Geraldine Fleming, of Kearneysville, has been named valedictorian by reason of her high scholastic record. George Via, of Ranson, has been name salutation.

Cumberland Man's Election Surprise

Cumberland, Md., April 5 (AP).—Cumberland's new mayor and council took office today, and named Thomas B. Finan city attorney and James M. Conway tax collector.

The appointment of Finan was expected, but selection of Conway, former collector, came as a surprise.

In each case the vote was four to one, with Mayor Thomas S. Post in opposition. Post supported Thomas Lohr Richards for attorney, and Edward P. Kaylor for tax collector.

"Mr. Conway's name was never mentioned in any of the three caucus sessions," said the Mayor.

$135,840 Fraud Trial Opens

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—Frank Novak, jr., went on trial today for the embezzlement of $135,840 which he claims he lost mostly to race track bookmakers.

Novak pleaded innocent to the charge of embezzling the money from a real estate concern which bore his name and of which he was president.

Last year Novak told Bankruptcy Referee Paul R. Kach he has lost more than $77,000 to four persons he identified as bookmakers. Civil suits have been filed against the four by bankruptcy officials.

$4,736,000 Road Aid For Maryland Approved

Maryland would receive $4,736,000 under a three-year, $1,500,000,000 Federal aid highway program approved yesterday by the House Rules Committee.

The bill, already approved by the Public Works Committee, would authorize highway aid funds starting July 1, 1949, with the States matching Federal contributions on a 50-50 basis.

3 bedrooms in one of the apts. and 1 in the other. Many have been sold to thrifty, conservative people who are living in 1 apt. and renting the other to help pay the cost of purchase and operation. They also make an excellent purchase for the small investor. Let us explain to you how this is done. We have a small group for sale at this time. Immediately north of the old Soldiers' Home, in a new development, where all houses are designed in the modern manner. Price, $17,000, with $4500 cash payment. Call A. H. Parker, RA. 2569 or TA. 2668.

MARY WORTH

SO YOU CAN SEE, MRS. WORTH, WHY WE FEEL BOTH FACTIONS WILL SUPPORT SENATOR BLACKSTON'S BILL WHEN IT IS REPORTED OUT OF COMMITTEE!
GOODNESS, MISS HALL!--YOU MUST HAVE LEARNED YOUR ABC'S FROM THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD!
ACTUALLY, I'M NEW IN WASHINGTON! THE SENATOR DREW ME OUT OF A STENOGRAPHERS' POOL A YEAR AGO! --THEN HIS SECRETARY RETIRED--AND HE GAVE ME HER PLACE!
MISS PRINGLE RETIRED ON PENSION, AUNT MARY!--SO YOU CAN IMAGINE HOW MUCH YOUNGER AND PRETTIER HER SUCCESSOR IS!
SHOP TALK! THAT'S THE CURSE OF CAPITOL DINNER PARTIES, MRS. WORTH!--LET'S CHANGE THE SUBJECT!--TELL ME ABOUT YOUR GRANDCHILDREN!

STEVE CANYON

SO THE SMALL YANKEE IS A NOBLEMAN! I DID NOT KNOW THERE WAS A TITLED GROUP IN AMERICA...
YOU'VE NEVER HEARD OF THE HOUSE OF FULL? IF WE HAD A COPY OF "JERK'S PEERAGE" OR "ALMANACH DE GOTHAM" I COULD POINT OUT HAPPY!
SO YOU THINK HAPPY THE EASTER SHOULD COMMAND A HIGH RANSOM, EH — AH, WHAT IS YOUR TITLE?
I MERELY SERVE HIS GRACE — FOR WHICH HE HAS MOST GRACIOUSLY DUBBED ME "KEEPER OF THE GRAND CANYON". I SHARE HIS EXILE!
AND IF THE MAID OF NINE ELECTS TO HANG YOU BOTH?
THEN OUR SEARCH FOR A REAL-LIFE BEAUTY TO PLAY IN HAPPY THE EASTER'S MOVIE ON EMANCIPATED ASIATIC WOMEN WILL BE OVER FOREVER!

JOE PALOOKA

SMASH!
STAND BACK... PUT YOUR HANDS UP... OR I'LL SHOOT...
THO'T YOU COULD FIGHT, MARVIN... THE WOMEN SAID YOU HIT HARD...!!

BARNABY

For the dramatic part of my radio show, Gus, we'll do this Ibsen play I ran across. I haven't read it yet. But you'll have the romantic lead—
I'll look it over—
What's Gorgon going to do?
Animal guest stars always provoke some degrees of merriment, Barnaby. At least in the studio. A few witty barks, a humorous howl or two, and—
But Gorgon can talk!
Sure.
Everybody in radio can talk, m'boy. It's no novelty. I'll audition him for his barking.
Arf! Arf! Arf! Arf! Like that?
But—
Jackmorley C.O. 4-6

MICKEY FINN

YOU'RE GETTING THIS DIZZY IDEA ABOUT RUNNING FOR SENATOR OUT OF YOUR HEAD, PHIL! RIGHT NOW!
OH, I AM, AM I?
YES! IT'S RIDICULOUS! IF IT WASN'T FOR DUMB LUCK YOU WOULDN'T EVEN HAVE BEEN ELECTED SHERIFF!
OH, I WOULDN'T, EH?
NO! THE ONLY REASON YOU WIGGLED IN WAS BECAUSE MEHOOEY WAS SHOWN UP AS A CROOK ON THE EVE OF THAT ELECTION! OTHERWISE YOU'D HAVE BEEN SWAMPED!
M-MAYBE SO! BUT I WAS RE-ELECTED ON MY RECORD! AND—
YOUR RECORD? IT WAS MICKEY AND TOM AND MYSELF WHO MADE THAT RECORD FOR YOU! YOU'VE GOT TO COME DOWN OUT OF THE CLOUDS, PHIL —AND QUICK!

PENNY

DON'T YOU KIDS EVER TIRE OF THAT SILLY, ETERNAL CHATTER?
YOU'VE BEEN ROMANCING THERE FOR THE PAST HALF HOUR.
IT'S SPRING, FATHER, AND YOUTH CALLS TO YOUTH!
YES, AND I PAY FOR THE CALLS!

WINNIE WINKLE

YOUR LAST INVENTION RUINED MY PERFECTLY GOOD TOASTER!
BUT THIS IS DIFFERENT! THE NEWSPAPER IS PUT ON THE PLATE OUTSIDE--
THIS RELEASES THE SPRING--POPS OPEN THE LITTLE DOOR--SLIDES THE PAPER IN--POPS THE LITTLE DOOR SHUT!!
I STILL SAY OPENING THE BIG DOOR AND PICKING UP THE PAPER IS EASIER.
NEXT
I CAN'T WAIT TO SEE HOW MY PAPER-BRINGER-INNER WORKED!
YES, I'M DYING TO SEE IT, TOO!
HMM! THE IDEA'S STILL GOOD! JUST GOT TO GET THE BUGS OUT OF IT!
RIGHT NOW A BETTER IDEA IS TO GO OUT AND BUY TWO MORE QUARTS OF MILK FOR THE BABIES!

DOTTY

HORACE, WILL YOU LET ME HAVE FIVE DOLLARS FOR SOMETHING?
WHAT FOR, DOTTY?
JUST SOMETHING--
BUT--CAN'T YOU TELL ME WHAT IT'S FOR?
WELL, IF I HAVE TO TELL YOU WHAT IT'S FOR, IT'LL COST YOU SEVEN DOLLARS!!
GULP--WELL, ANYWAY I SAVED TWO DOLLARS!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Disk Jockeys Wax Rich, but Shed Crocodile Tears

The May 5 edition of the Chesterfield Supper Club will "salute" five of Washington's outstanding disk jockeys.

On that day Perry Como will pay tribute to Art Brown and Mike Hunnicutt of WOL, Jerry Strong of WINX, Jackson Lowe of WWDC, and Eddie Gallaher of WTOP.

Mr. Como could hardly have picked a worthier quintet to plug. Among the five of them, they account for approximately half of Washington's net earned income.

For example, when Strong used to play golf five years ago, he toted his own bag to save the caddy fee. Now he has himself carried around the course in a sedan chair.

Gallaher tries to pretend there's no money in being a disk jockey. He says that when he takes his check to the bank to get it cashed, the teller asks: "How do you want it—heads or tails?"

But Eddie doesn't mind being "poor." He says, "After all, money won't buy happiness; money won't buy contentment; and it won't buy any of the other good things in life. Confederate money, that is."

Jackson Lowe frankly admits that his salary has reached record proportions, but he asks "Who can live on phonograph records?"

Art Brown, who can never pick a winner until the race is over, adds the sobering thought:

"So what if we do make a lot of money? Even a disk jockey can't make enough to last through the Maryland racing season."

The zaniest member of the quintet takes the most logical approach to the whole problem. Mike Hunnicutt concedes that he's doing all right, but he moans that the income tax takes a big bite out of his paycheck.

"It used to be," he muses, "that the Government asked us to pay our taxes with a smile. Now they want us to use money."

GIVE-AWAYS

"I enjoy your column, but do not like the Give-Away items. However, I have a white Spitz and her three puppies to give away. Two of the pups are males, one female. Will you please run this in your column?" (Victor 4168).

(Editor's note: Consistency, thou art indeed a jewel!)

PIED TYPE DEPT.

The other night we ran off several hundred copies of the early edition before this gem was caught and subsequently corrected:

"He told the court his wife, daughter of Columnist Walter Winchell, had wed him for the sake of publicity. They eloped in 1645."

M. Louise Evans of Warrenton, Va., wonders where eloping couples went in those days, before Niagara Falls became so popular.

Dorothy R. Holmes of 217 2nd st., Lewes, Del., comments:

PREPAREDNESS NOTE

Troops stationed at Fort McNair were given a special order last week which should cause the Russians to think twice before starting any monkey business with us.

Men standing inspection Saturday were instructed to have their shoelaces pressed.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

Aloise Verhunce of 4315 N. 4th st., Arlington, Va., was waiting for a streetcar on upper 14th st. Thursday morning in a pouring rain.

After a few minutes a car hove into view and then sped up to and past—the loading platform.

But a few yards beyond the the platform, the streetcar slammed to a sudden stop, and its front door opened.

Startled by this unexpected turn of events, Aloise boarded the car and was greeted by its grinning operator.

"You thought I wasn't going to stop, didn't you?" he chuckled. "April Fool!"

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—General Eisenhower will make an important speech before the New York Chamber of Commerce in June . . . George Washington Hill, jr., will not appear at the stockholders' meeting of American Tobacco . . . Agnes de Mille, who staged the dances for "Oklahoma!" fulfilled her ambition by dancing as a member of the cast at the fifth anniversary performance. "They're going to have to pass a law," vowed Miss de Mille, "to prevent what I plan to do on the tenth anniversary."

Oscar Levant, whose movie, concert and radio work have brought him almost unanimous praise from the critics in these fields, was asked how he reacts to all the publicity about him. "I'm completely indifferent to publicity," said Levant. "Frankly, with me it's a sleeping pill one way or the other."

Mrs. Groucho Marx keeps a day-by-day record of all the jokes uttered by her husband in their home. Gag-writers, preparing the scripts for movies in which Groucho appears have asked permission to glance at Mrs. Marx's collection, but she refuses to permit anyone to see it. "Groucho's jokes away from our house are for the public," she says, "but those he pulls at home are for our child and for me. I write them into a book every night. When our child is old enough, we'll read them together. They're private, for our own exclusive enjoyment."

Phil Baker, discussing the broad interpretation of "cruelty" as grounds for divorce in California, tells of a man who sued his wife and testified that when he came home he found a derby in the hall. "Are you sure 'cruelty' is the grounds on which you seek divorce?" asked the judge . . . "That's right," said the husband. "I can't live with a woman who wears a derby."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall's Bogota Difficulties

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of State Marshall faces no easy task at the Pan American Conference in Bogota. For he faces a group of Latin-American delegates not at all happy over the Marshall Plan and United States generosity toward Europe.

PEARSON

Privately, South American government officials are also not enthusiastic over the presence of John Snyder and Averell Harriman in the United States delegations. They fear this formidable battery of Cabinet officers will dominate the talks and put across a cut-and-dried plan, made in Washington.

What American republics don't like is American insistence that the Marshall Plan is the cure for all their ills. They are entirely willing—within limits—to sell goods and products to Europe for United States dollars, but they also want to start drawing up blueprints for long-range industrial development in this hemisphere.

In short, the Latins think the United States ought to invest heavily in their economy, instead of just buying up a sizable part of present production to ship abroad.

Some of those who hold this view are quite sincere, others strictly opportunist. Peron's Argentina, for instance, would be delighted to share in the proceeds of a "little Marshall Plan," but only on its own terms. That was made abundantly clear at the recent United Nations commercial conference in Havana, where Argentine delegates cheered for all the benefits of the World Trade Charter but balked at all the proposed obligations.

Other countries, including Mexico, Brazil, Venezuela and Peru, are genuinely and intelligently interested not only in their own economic future but in the hemisphere as a whole. Venezuela, especially, under her new liberal regime, is fast becoming a model for all Latin America on how to be prosperous though progressive.

Will There Be War?

Maybe no one will mention the word out loud at Bogota, but war is the No. 1 concern of everybody there. That is why the United States delegation wants to get the Latins signed up for the Marshall Plan—to help prevent war by stopping communism. But that is also why the Latins want to talk about other measures, too—to help prevent economic chaos if war comes anyway.

The United States bought practically everything Latin America could spare out of raw-materials production during the struggle against the Axis. As a result, our neighbor republics ended up with fat dollar balances but almost no stockpiles of materials. Since they couldn't replace machinery and equipment during the war, by 1945 their needs in this line were critical. But we also had tremendous domestic demands, plus price inflation. So what little the Latins have been able to get from us has made severe inroads on their monetary reserves while not satisfying their requirements.

Rightly or wrongly, many a top Latin-American statesman now anticipates another world conflict. If it comes, most of them will seek to have their countries participate wholeheartedly in the defense of democracy. But these statesmen likewise feel that democracy's brightest future lies in the Western Hemisphere, no matter what happens, and that the best way to make it live is to help all the people in it to make a living.

Canal Road Survey Voted By House Unit

By The Associated Press

A $40,000 study of a proposed scenic parkway along the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal between Great Falls and Cumberland, Md., was approved yesterday by a House Public Lands Subcommittee.

If approved a bill to authorize the survey by the Public Roads Administration and the National Park Service. The bill now goes to the full committee.

The canal was started July 4, 1828, when President John Quincy Adams turned the first spadeful of earth in Georgetown. It was completed to Cumberland in 1850 and continued in use primarily by coal barges until flood damage in 1924 and a decrease in traffic made its repair uneconomical.

The Government acquired the property in 1938 to preserve it as an historical-recreational parkway.

"A cursory study," the Interior Department told the committee, "would indicate that it might be feasible to construct a scenic highway along the route of the old canal between Great Falls and Cumberland that would utilize the Federal lands already acquired for parkway purposes."

At Great Falls the parkway would connect with the already authorized George Washington Memorial Parkway leading into Washington.

At Harpers Ferry the parkway would connect with the Blue Ridge Parkway when it is extended northward from the Shenandoah Mountains.

Show-off

A show-off is a fellow who . . . Believes he is a treat . . . Or else a girl who likes to think . . . That she is mighty sweet . . . In either case we recognize . . . The flimsy mask they wear . . . And know the glory they display . . . Is never really there . . . Because they are too obvious . . . In what they do or say . . . And by their efforts to pretend . . . They give themselves away . . . A show-off either talks too much . . . Or plays too big a part . . . And shows that he or she has no . . . Sincerity of heart . . . And when the show-offs get some sense . . . And really try to rate . . . They usually discover they . . . Are just a little late.

NEW Scientific Discoveries Used in Hair Experts' Exclusive Treatments Help You To GROW THICKER HAIR

R. W. FARRELL, Trichologist

Hopeless Cases Not Accepted

Hair Experts' Scientific Plan Allied with Nature's Functions!

Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae. First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff or other disorders through special gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to kill the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.

Then when the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments that start to show actual results within weeks.

Special Exclusive Laboratory Created Formulae Used ONLY by Hair Experts!

After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts' special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimulate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth.

Delay Is Deadly! Fatal Follicle Shrinkage May Negate Any Treatments!

Once your hair begins to show these symptoms: excessive hair in the combings; weak, short hair; excessive dandruff; itchiness, etc., you can be sure that a scalp disorder is already well under way. Follicle shrinkage is fatal!

Once it has set in your chance for thicker hair is practically negligible! Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free, private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care, and enjoy THICKER HAIR within a few months.

A MESSAGE TO THE NATION ON THE OCCASION OF ARMY DAY BY

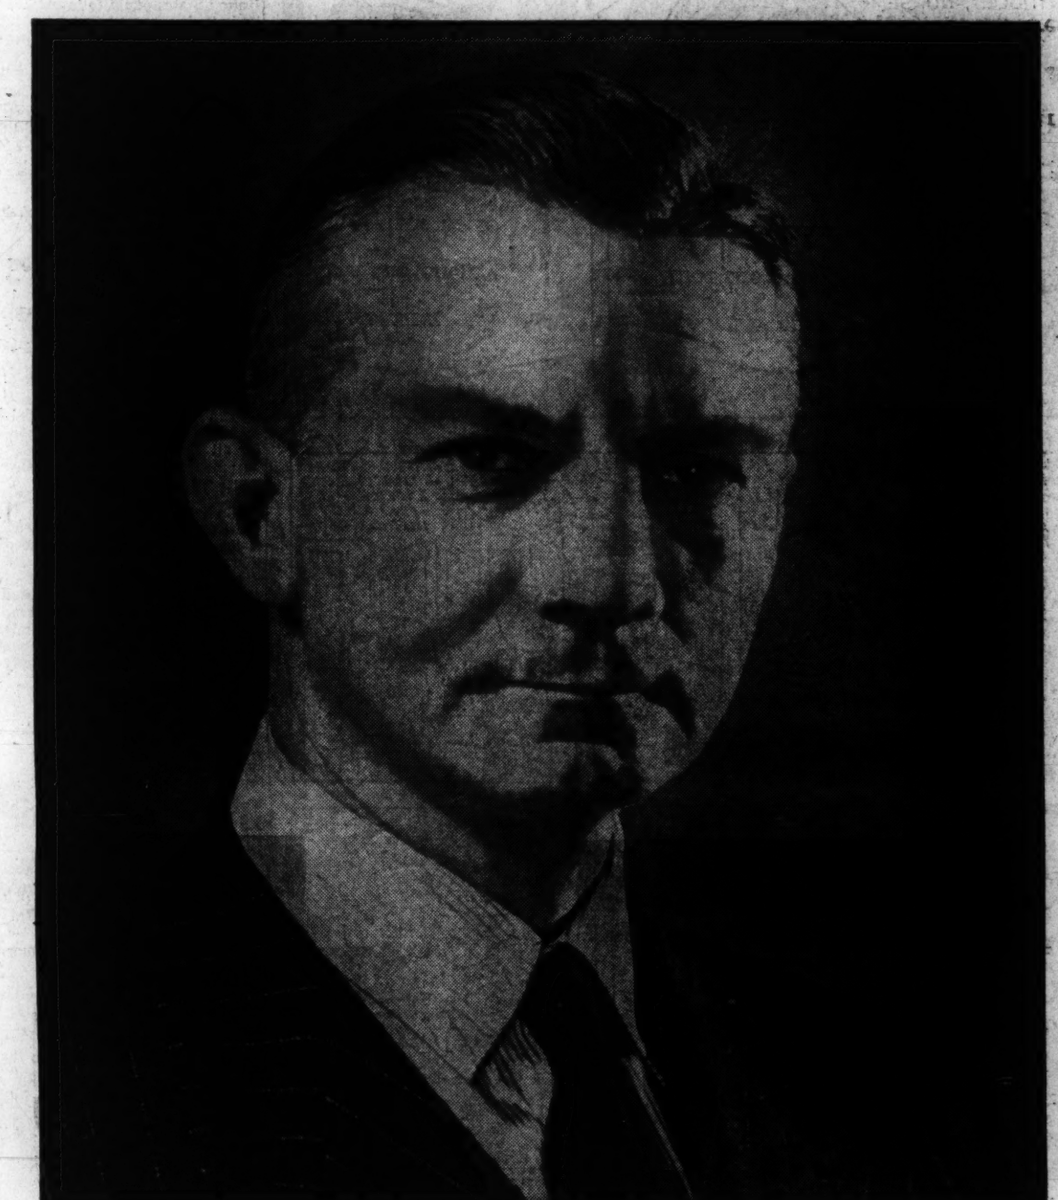
James Forrestal

SECRETARY OF DEFENSE



On this ARMY DAY, with American soldiers still guarding the territories surrendered by the enemy more than two years ago, it may be timely for us to remind ourselves that the Army, like all the military forces of the United States, is an instrument of peace no less than of war.

The spirit in which the difficult and delicate task of occupying lands and administering the affairs of our former enemies has been undertaken, reflects the willingness to assume a burdensome responsibility, and the unswerving devotion to the welfare and will of the public, which are characteristic of the Army of a democracy.

In both peace and war, the security of our country is the mutual responsibility of soldier and civilian alike. Both are citizens, both products of the same American system of responsible freedoms. The Army must be prepared for war, and must fight if necessary; but like all Americans, it prefers to build for a future in which we hope wars will disappear.

James Forrestal
Secretary of Defense.
